50 Feared Dead in N.J. Factory Explosion

Blast Pulverizes Six-Story Building At Linoleum Plant; 50 Are Injured

By International News Service

Kearny, N. J., Aug. 19.—More than 50 persons feared killed tonight in an explosion which literally pulverized one six-story concrete building and bulged out the walls of two others at the 50-acre plant of the Congoleum-Nairn plant in Kearny.

Another 50 or more persons were injured, some critically.

Thirty persons were considered almost certainly killed in the destruction of building No. 1289, the plant grounds. This building, in addition to being used as a factory, also housed offices of the company, largest producer of linoleum in the Nation.

Heard Over 5 Miles

Origin of the tremendous blast was unknown. It occurred at about 5:30 p. m., shattered windows within a 1-mile radius and was heard for more than 5 miles.

Building No. 12, where the explosion apparently centered, literally fell apart, its walls caving into a heap of rubble. It was here that the greatest death toll was feared and rescuers later tonight were digging frantically in the ruins for bodies of victims.

In all, 30 persons believed to have been in building No. 12 were unaccounted for. Sixteen workers were said to have been on the fifth floor at the time of the blast, and 14 others on the first floor.

Fifteen more employes were said to have been in one of the adjoining buildings wrecked. The first two bodies were recovered from this building several hours after the explosion. Six more persons were missing in the third structure partially shattered.

25 Hurt Fighting Fire

Fire blazed from the ruins immediately after the explosion, bringing fire companies from Kearny, Newark, East Newark and North Arlington. Twenty-five firemen, policemen and auxiliaries were injured fighting the flames which spread to three buildings before brought under control.

Hundreds of nurses, doctors, air raid wardens and other volunteers gathered quickly on the scene in response to disaster calls, and every available ambulance was pressed into service.

The blast itself was likened by spectators to the effect of a block-buster bomb scoring a direct hit. Building No. 12 "just fell away to piles of stone," one witness said.

Autos parked along the street in front of the factory were buried under tons of debris.

High Court Rules N. Y. Must Elect Lieut. Governor

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 19 (AP).—New York must elect a Lieutenant Governor in November, the State's highest court ruled tonight in a decision having national implications.

The seven-man Court of Appeals affirmed unanimously the ruling of two lower tribunals which upheld the Democratic State Committee's contention that a successor to the late Thomas W. Wallace, Schenectady Republican, must be chosen at the November 2 polls. Wallace died last month.

The high court, Democratic 5 to 2, gave no opinion.

Governor Dewey's availability as a 1944 presidential candidate may be lessened if a Democrat wins, political observers believe, inasmuch as the elected official would become Governor if Dewey resigned to enter the national campaign.

WPB May Ease Output Rule on Civilian Goods

Washing Machines, Electric Irons Under Consideration Now

Prices Held Outrageous

Production of washing machines, electric irons and automatic refrigerators may be resumed "soon" under a program being developed by the War Production Board Office of Civilian Requirements, it was learned yesterday.

Production officials hope to persuade the WPB Requirements Committee to allot "moderate" amounts of critical materials to their production. Officials refused to predict any date but said that the results in terms of finished products would not be evident until next year. It was expected that only limited quantities would be made for use where essential need has been clearly demonstrated.

Officials believe that all three items—manufacture of which was stopped during the period of conversion from peace to war—have now entered the "essential" civilian category, both because of a disappearance of inventories of prewar models and developing shortages among substitute lines.

Relief For Laundries

Thus, washing machines are needed in crowded war centers where commercial laundries are overburdened. Use could be made of them also in community laundries in war housing projects.

Electric irons are needed by the many newly-weds and by warworkers who have moved—also to permit home laundry to relieve the strain on commercial establishments.

The need for automatic refrigerators stems out of the development of war housing, and the appearance of ice shortages in many communities. In some cities, the ice business has so shrunk in recent years that the manufacture of old-fashioned ice boxes as a substitute for mechanical refrigeration would be impractical.

Iron and steel for the new program probably can be made available in sufficient quantities, but difficulties may be experienced securing some of the moving parts and gadgets and wood elements. Because of widespread substitution of wood for steel along with the shortage of lumber manpower, wood products have recently been added to the "critical" list.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that

Engineers Set Stage For Mammoth Show Of Fighting Equipment

The most powerful tank in the world today—the Army's great "Commando," the M-5—will be shown to Washington and America for the first time at the huge "Back the Attack" show opening here September 9.

This tank has helped to clear the way in Africa, in Sicily, on all the battlefields of the Mediterranean area—it is one of the many weapons that, if we on the home front do our part, will win the war for us and for democracy throughout the world.

It will be shown as a single weapon in the greatest show the Army ever has put on, in any city at any time. "Back the Attack," this miraculous display of America's fighting power, is being sponsored by The Washington Post, arranged by the United States Army at the request of The Treasury, and will coincide with the Third War Loan Drive, which must be a success to assure the Allies of the weapons with which to win the most perilous of all wars.

The show will open September 9 and close September 26.

First armored fighter to be powered by an automotive engine, the "Commando of the tanks" has two Cadillac V-type, eight-cylinder engines, linked as a "power train," which is its source of motive power and speed the rate of which is still a military secret.

Two "hydra-matic" transmissions operating through a transfer unit deliver the power from the engines to the tank tracks.

This is said to be the first use of an automatic shift ever attempted in a military vehicle, according to Army ordnance experts.

More Available Mechanics

Except for details required to adapt the units to tank design, both engines and transmissions are identical with those used in luxury passenger cars in time of peace.

One of the advantages of the automotive powering is because at least 10 mechanics are familiar with automobile engines to each soldier trained in the operations of air-cooled aircraft engines, formerly favored to power tanks.

Army officials explained the problem of servicing the tanks on the battlefield is greatly simplified by the M-5 automotive design.

Here, embodying every virtue of the General Grant (M-3) and the General Sherman (M-4) medium tank, with increased firepower, greater swiftness and agile as a swirling broncho, the Commando tank is the last word anywhere—on any battlefront.

Throughout yesterday workingmen were busy constructing the stage for the impressive show. It will be 23 feet wide and 75 feet long, an officer representing Col. Clarence Renshaw, Corps of Engineers, who is building the exhibits, explained.

Allocations on the exhibit grounds for the various arms and branches of service already have been made, with the Air Force

Here's What the WACS Carry In Those Great Pocketbooks

By Anne Hagner
Post Staff Writer

What does a WAC or WAVE or SPAR or woman-Marine carry inside that important looking pocketbook swinging impressively over her shoulder? Secret plans, possibly, or documents of state?

A Post reporter asked Lieut. Elizabeth Berge of the WAC recruiting office, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., to dump out the contents of her G. I. purse. And within, gentlemen were 43 separate items. A girl has to be pretty husky to join the service in times like these.

Lieutenant Berge said her pocketbook was a trifle understaffed yesterday; she had cleaned it out thoroughly, eliminating nonessentials, earlier in the week. Here is what she was toting:

Alligator wallet, blank note pad, leather folder containing pictures of her family, cigarettes, lighter with Army insignia, Red Cross blood donor certificate and button, comb, eyebrow tweezers, ration book, two cards handed her by sidewalk photographers.

Adjutant general's identification card with picture of herself and fingerprints, small slip of paper with telephone message, laundry receipt, match clip from restaurant in Des Moines, Iowa, lipstick, and a nifty little tracer bullet—not regulation, she pointed out, but a gift from an Army colonel she knows.

Three WAC pamphlets and a WAC application ("You never know when you're going to meet someone who wants to join up"), WAC fact sheet, letter from Col. Oveta Culp Hobby, director of the Women's Army Corps; letter (strictly routine) from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, wedding announcement from cousin, bank book, mirror, address book, check book.

Reds Tighten Kharkov Vise, Slay 2400

Take 30 Villages; Gain Elsewhere; Ordered to Turn Defeat Into Rout

By Edward D. Ball
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Friday), Aug. 20.—Russian troops sealing off Kharkov for annihilation gained from 3 to 7 miles yesterday on three sides of the city, killing 2400 Germans hurled against them in vain counterattacks, Moscow announced early today.

With only one railway escape route to the southwest reported open to the enemy garrison, already fighting Soviet shock troops spilling into the northeastern suburbs, the Soviet daily communique declared that more than 30 additional villages had fallen to the onrushing Red army on the west, northwest and southeast sides of the city.

Fourth Great Battle

Another Russian column attacking frontally from the east last was reported on the edge of the Ukraine stronghold in the fourth great battle for the prize railway city.

The bulletin, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, said that more than 20 villages had been seized in the parallel drive imperiling the German bastion of Bryansk farther north, and a supplement also announced gains southwest of Spas Demensk on the central front.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians were grinding down scores of German tanks and thousands of reserve infantrymen thrown into the battle of Kharkov. A Reuters dispatch also said that the Red greater momentum, and had rearmy was rolling ahead with ceived an order "to turn the German defeat into a rout."

A British radio report placed the Russians within 9 miles of Kharkov on the southeast, and the Soviet communique said that several villages had been captured in that sector.

Panic Breaks Out

West of Kharkov the Russians said that "panic broke out among the Germans" near one captured village when night-raiding Soviet automatic riflemen upset one enemy unit's counterattack plans.

The Russian effort to make Kharkov fall of its own weight has resulted in a great wheeling movement 85 miles west and northwest of the city. Russian units officially are declared less than eight miles from Sumy in the northwest and 25

50 Nazi Planes Knocked Down To Loss of Only 12 by Allies

By James M. Long
Associated Press Staff Writer

London (Friday), Aug. 20.—American Flying Fortresses, escorted by United States and Allied fighters, hammered the German-held airfields at Vlissingen (Flushing) and Gilze-Rijen in Holland late yesterday, and 34 enemy fighters were shot down to boost the day's bag to 50 German aircraft.

A joint British-American communique reported "good bombing results" at the airfields, which were struck after United States Marauders and RAF Mitchells had battered enemy airfields at Poix and Amiens-Glisy in France.

[American Flying Fortresses in their heavy attacks on Regensburg and Schweinfurt in Germany on Tuesday, shot down a total of 175 enemy fighter planes, it was announced officially today. American losses previously had been announced at 36 Fortresses. The Schweinfurt raiders, who got at least 95, returned to Britain, and the others were downed by the Regensburg flight which continued on to Africa.]

This swelling offensive against the nests of German air strength in western Europe kept American, British, Dominion, and Allied airmen shuttling across the Dover Strait nearly all day.

12 Allied Planes Lost

Total Allied losses for the day were set at eight fighters and four bombers, although one fighter pilot was saved.

Although 50 German planes were sent crashing, the enemy's losses may exceed that figure when reconnaissance establishes the damage to parked aircraft on the four bomb-pocked fields.

The bristling guns of the Fortresses accounted for 16 enemy planes, and escorting United States Thunderbolt and RAF, Dominion, and Allied Spitfires knocked down 18 while protecting the four-engined bombers and carrying out their own aggressive sweeps.

In the daylight attacks on France, United States Marauders got three enemy planes. Allied fighters shot down six more, and nine others fell as the fighters carried their offensive on into the twilight.

The Berlin radio went off the air shortly before midnight for what was announced as "technical reasons," suggesting the possibility of more night raids into the heart of Germany.

Both Key Bases

Gilze-Rijen is an important operational base in a strong German fighter plane belt and Vlissigen is a big base for German transport aircraft and fighters used chiefly in protection of German coast ship-

'In Every Way Available'

To 'Bomb, Burn, Destroy' Axis Called Goal of Quebec Parley

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Quebec, Aug. 19.—The Allied high command in secret session here is planning "to bomb, burn and ruthlessly destroy in every way available to us the people responsible for creating this war."

This first public statement on the progress of the historic Quebec conference to be made by a high official came today from Brendan Bracken, British Minister of Information and a frequent visitor, since his arrival yesterday, at the Citadel, where President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada are carrying on their discussions.

Bracken, who is very close to Churchill, having once served as his parliamentary secretary, told reporters that there would be no news on the Quebec war conference until it is over. Then, he said, the President and Churchill would issue a statement.

He was asked how he thought the war was progressing.

"I think it is going very well, indeed," he said. "But it is going to last a long time, and it is going to be a very hard war.

"When we have rounded up Hitler, the whole might of the British Empire is going to be given over to the task of defeating the Japanese, who are a ruthless and savage people."

A correspondent of Tass, the Russian news agency, asked Bracken what he meant when he talked of a long, hard war. Was he talking about the war in Europe also?

"It's all war," Bracken answered promptly. "The war may end in Europe, but we cannot regard it as being over until Japan has paid the price for her treachery.

"We are going to use every ounce of strength we've got against Japan. If anybody has any doubts about that, they should get rid of them. I don't think any of our Allies will be disappointed in the blow Britain will strike against Japan."

The Tass correspondent, incidentally, is the only one here whose country has not declared war against Japan. However, there was no particular significance in the fact that Bracken emphasized

Pope and Stalin Rumored at Quebec

Quebec, Aug. 19.—In the absence of real news, Quebec has been rampant with gossip and tall stories. These haven't been of a malicious nature. It is the kind of stuff that seems to be inevitable when there is a news vacuum.

One story that has swept through Quebec is that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is here. All that can be said of that one is this: If he is here, nobody in authority will say so. Pope Pius XII also is reported to be here. That almost certainly is untrue. But the prize of them all concerns Joseph Stalin.

Stalin not only is here, so the story goes, but the barber in the Chateau Frontenac has shaved him three times.

Nazis Reported Falling Back From 30-Mile Strip in South

BULLETIN

London, Aug. 19 (INS).—British warships shelled the French coast this afternoon, the Paris radio reported.

By Relman Morin
Associated Press Staff Writer

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Aug. 19. — United States warships freed from coastal duty by the conquest of Sicily have joined Allied heavy artillery and battle planes in the swelling bombardment of the Italian mainland, it was disclosed today.

[The Algiers radio reported the Germans yielded before the concentrated naval and air bombardment of southern Italy and evacuated the extreme southern coastal strip, falling back on a new line 30 miles to the north, the International News Service said.]

New forces were massed at strategic points all along the Allies' 2000-mile Mediterranean line.

There is little doubt that the next blow will come soon against the walls of Hitler's European fortress.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers told the people of occupied Europe for the second successive night to perfect their preinvasion preparations and that the time of action might be near.)

Bad Moment for Nazis

The hammering of Italy and recent heavy air raids on southern France and Rumania, plus reserves newly built up apparently are giving the Nazis and their satellites their worst moment in nearly four years of war.

Emulating its tactics of the period before the invasion of Sicily, the Berlin radio repeatedly broadcast that large Allied naval and merchant forces were concentrating along the shores of Sicily and North Africa.

Civilians emerged from caves and tunnels in the hills about Messina where many had lived the greater part of six months under the Allied bombing that was to free them from German domination.

Aerial "wrecking crews" chased beaten Axis forces across southern Italy, bombing and machine gunning trains, truck convoys, small ships and every other type of transport in which German and Italian survivors of the Battle of Sicily were extending their getaway.

Palmi Shelled From Sea

American and British field batteries maintained their duel with enemy coastal rifles on the extreme toe of Italy. The Axis 15-inch guns were hurling 2400-pound shells across Messina Strait. The lighter but more rapidly loaded Allied guns smashed back.

Allied Headquarters in the Southwest Pacific (Friday), Aug. 20. Slow progress was made Wednesday by American and Australian troops in ferreting the tenacious Japanese from mountain ridges barring the way to the airdrome at Salamaua, New Guinea, and from jungle isles flanking the newly-captured Munda airdrome in the Solomons.

Five miles southwest of Salamaua, whose airdrome would put the Allies within easy fighter plane range of big Japanese holdings on New Britain, hard-won ridge positions were consolidated.

"Our ground troops are now in control of Bobdubi Ridge," today's communique said.

Swiss Report Nazi Removal Of Government

Enemy Also Rushing Troops From Atlantic Wall, Dispatch Says

By Lewis Hawkins
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Aug. 19.—An unconfirmed, roundabout report said today "the whole German government has left Berlin," and the Nazis were also said to be rushing troops from their Atlantic wall to defend bases in northern Italy.

The transfer of the German government from Berlin was reported in a Bern, Switzerland, dispatch, quoting Hitler's Voelkischer Boebachter, broadcast by the United Nations radio at Algiers today.

There was no amplification of the report. Such a move might be intended to save records and archives from bombing or, less likely, might be a first step toward seeking "open city" status for Berlin.

Recent neutral reports said some German governmental offices were being moved to Vienna, or possibly Linz or Breslau. Removal of the whole governmental force would be a stupendous transfer, for it is estimated that 1,000,000 of Berlin's 4,300,000 people are connected with

British Mission Here to Plan Aid In Attack on Japs

The British Information Service said last night that a special British mission headed by Maj. Gen. J. S. Lethbridge, Royal Engineers, had arrived here for studies looking to "maximum British cooperation with the United States in future operations against Japan."

The mission is composed of officers from all three British fighting services, most of whom have served in the Far East. After completing studies in this country it will move to the Pacific battle fronts for first-hand surveys.

Besides General Lethbridge the group includes Brig. H. Bartlett, Royal Signals; Rear Admiral F. H. W. Goolden and Surg. Capt. H. W. Fitzroy Williams, navy, and Air Commodore L. L. MacLean and Group Capt. W. R. Clements, RCAF.

Washington Beauty Engaged To Marry Lieut. Rudy Vallee

The engagement of Lieut. Rudy Vallee, of the Coast Guard, and pretty Bettejane Greer, formerly of 1409 33rd st. nw., but a Hollywood actress for the past year, was announced yesterday in Hollywood, Calif., by Vallee.

Due to the fact that Vallee is now a band leader in the Coast Guard, the wedding will not take place until after the war as, he said, he does not know where he will be assigned.

The romance had its beginning when Vallee saw the Washington girl in a newsreel when she was modeling a uniform for the WACS in Washington. Intrigued, Vallee called her over long-distance telephone and suggested that she come to Hollywood. She did. She got a contract with Howard Hughes, but has not yet appeared in a movie.

Miss Greer has an exceptionally clear soprano voice that won her many engagements with Washington orchestras before she went to Hollywood.

In 1941 she appeared in the Arts Club with Hans Kindler, in a show staged by the club and the leader of the National Symphony Orchestra was warm in his praise of her ability as an actress.

This will be Miss Greer's first marriage and Vallee's third. He was first married to Miss Leonia Cauchors, in May of 1928 but this marriage was annulled a few weeks later. He was later married to the late Fay Webb, the daughter of a chief of police of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Efforts to reach her relatives here last night were unsuccessful. She is the daughter of Charles D. Greer. She left here in July of 1942.

Leaders of Air Raid on Ploesti Receive Congressional Medals

By Charles A. Grumich
Associated Press Staff Writer

Cairo, Aug. 16.—For "conspicuous gallantry in action and intrepidity at the risk of their lives above and beyond the call of duty" in the August 1 raid on the Ploesti oil fields, Cols. John Roger (Killer) Kane of Shreveport, La., and Leon William Johnson of Moline, Kans., have won the Nation's highest decoration—the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The awards, announced to the United States Ninth Air Force by the War Department today, were made for the precisely-planned low-level attack by more than 175 Liberators on Rumanian oil fields which had fed the Axis war machine one-third of its petroleum.

The Oak Leaf Cluster to the Distinguished Service Medal was conferred at the same time upon Brig. Gen. Uzal Girard Ent of Northumberland, Pa., for outstanding operation against the enemy in the Mediterranean theater, including the Ploesti attack.

General Ent, chief of staff of the U. S. Army in the Middle East and Ninth Air Force bomber commander, asserted that the ruinous assault which laid a blazing blanket over the rich fields, was expected to force the defeat of the Axis to a faster conclusion.

Kane brought his Liberator, Hail Columbia, to a crash landing in Cyprus after the mission.

When Kane and his crew scrambled through the escape hatch after the landing, they dropped to their knees and kissed the ground.

Lieut. John S. Young of Dallas, Texas, the copilot, said the bomber came back only because "the two great ham-like arms of 'Killer' Kane grabbed it and held it together until he got it back."

At the briefing, Kane told his power installations around the Gulf of Gioia and violent explosions followed the shelling, a communique announced. The major target was the oft-bombed railroad town of Palmi, 20 miles above Messina. Gioia Tauro, six miles farther north, also was bombarded from the sea.

Meanwhile, it was officially announced that two complete German divisions and the entire Italian Sixth Army were wiped out in the Sicilian campaign as casualties or deserters.

The Sixth Army, composed of two corps which once numbered 300,000 men, with 1700 field guns and 150 tanks, was the fifth field army which the Italians have lost since 1940. Only about half its personnel, however, were killed, wounded or captured. The others donned mufti and quit, filtering through the lines as civilians.

The Germans, in addition to the two divisions killed, wounded or captured, lost large amounts of heavy equipment including a number of 60-ton Tiger tanks which were captured in good running order.

President Roosevelt sent congratulatory message to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower calling the victory especially thrilling "when we realize that the enemy forces in Sicily amounted to 405,000 men."

Claim Big Allied Losses

The Allied announcement yesterday that Allied casualties in Sicily totaled 25,000, against Axis losses of more than 167,000 men was ignored in a German high command communique broadcast from Berlin.

It declared badly, without any confirmation, that about one-third of the Allied troops engaged in the Battle of Sicily were killed or wounded, that a "large number" were captured. It stated that other Allied losses included 383 tanks and scout cars, 652 planes, 61 surface transports, a cruiser, 7 destroyers and 3 corvettes.

There was no refuge in Italy for the troops that escaped Sicily.

Allied airmen hunted them down at crossroads and mountain passes, and the skies were empty of Axis fighters.

United States invaders destroyed 10 trucks near Bagnara. Two antiaircraft emplacements were shot up by warhawk machineguns. RAF and South African fliers blasted a concentration of about 25 military vehicles.

Some enemy detachments abandoned the land route and took to small boats up the Italian coast, hoping to evade the dragnet, but war planes intervened there also. Mitchells and Lightnings sank a merchant vessel and damaged a large landing craft.

Kennedy's Son Safe; Saw His Boat Cut in 2

By Leif Erickson
Associated Press Staff Writer

U. S. Torpedo Boat Base, New Georgia, Aug. 8 (delayed) (AP).—Out of the darkness a Japanese destroyer appeared suddenly. It sliced diagonally in two the PT boat skippered by Lieut. (j. g.) John F. Kennedy, son of the former American Ambassador in London, Joseph P. Kennedy.

Crews of two other PT boats gave up as certainly killed that Monday, August 2, Skipper Kennedy and his crew.

But Kennedy, 26, and 10 of his men were rescued today from a small island deep in Japanese-controlled Solomons territory and within range of enemy shore guns.

I was aboard the PT boat making the rescue through reef-choked waters off Ferguson Passage. (Ferguson Passage is between Gizo and Wanawawa Islands in the New Georgia group).

Two men of Kennedy's crew were lost when the enemy destroyer rammed the boat.

Those who survived with Kennedy were: Ensigns Leonard Thom, Sandusky, Ohio, executive officer and former Ohio State tackle; Ensign George Henry Robertson (Barney) Ross, Highland Park, Ill.; Machinist's Mate Patrick H. McMahon, 39, Los Angeles; Machinist's Mate Gerald L. Zinser, Belleville, Ill.; Gunner's Mate Charles Harris, Boston; Radioman John Maguire, Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Machinist's Mate William Johnston, Dorchester, Mass.; Ordnanceman Edmond Mowrer, St. Louis; Torpedoman Roy L. Starkey, Garden Grove, Calif., and Seaman First Class Raymond Albert, Cleveland.

McMahon was burned badly on his face, hands and arms, and Zinser suffered burns on both arms. Johnston was sickened by fumes he inhaled. Ross was unhurt, but coral infected his arm

Ross and Kennedy saw the destroyer coming. "I turned to make after he was rolled on a reef by a wave.

Chronologically, Kennedy, Thom and the crewmen told the story this way:

a torpedo run," Kennedy said.

But Kennedy quickly realized the range was too short for the torpedo to charge and explode.

"The destroyer then turned straight for us," he said.

"It all happened so fast there wasn't a chance to do a thing. The destroyer hit our starboard forward gun station and sliced right through. Our tanks were ripped open and gas was flaming on the water about 20 yards away."

McMahon, Zinser, Harris and Johnston had been spilled in the water. Thom swam out after Johnston. Ross went after Zinser.

Kennedy went out to get McMahon who had been at the engine station and was knocked into the water in the midst of flaming gasoline.

"McMahon and I were about an hour getting back to the boat. "Watertight bulkheads kept the bow afloat," Kennedy said. "There was a very strong current."

After getting McMahon aboard, Kennedy swam out again to get Harris.

The skipper and his men shouted and called for the two missing men but could get no response. About 2 p. m. Kennedy decided to try to reach a small island.

Kennedy swam to the island towing McMahon. The others clung to a plank and swam in a group.

The men stayed on this island until Wednesday, when all coconuts on the island's two trees had been eaten.

The two natives found the group Thursday afternoon. On Saturday morning a canoe loaded with natives brought food and a small kerosene stove and gave the men food and coffee. That night a little after midnight our rescue boat guided by a native pilot went in the twisting passages to make contact with Kennedy on an outer island.

American Marauders swept over Poix and Amiens-Glissy in France in the morning and British bombers followed up the Poix raid with a second pounding of the Axis airfields there. The Americans encountered severe opposition from anti-aircraft fire and fighters.

In the later raids over Holland weather was unfavorable and one formation of Fortresses found the target so obscured by heavy overcasts it returned without dropping bombs.

Few Nazi fighters were able to break through the Allied fighter cordon.

men:

"It would take an entire army the size of the British Eighth Army a year or more to fight its way up there and smash the source of Axis oil.

"We are going to do it with 2,000 men in a single day."

Kane led the third element in the flight. He encountered mountains shrouded with clouds so thick that the formation became separated from the others.

Kane decided to strike alone if it became necessary.

It became necessary.

Skimming the ground in the planned low-level attack, Kane defied enemy fighters and brought antiaircraft artillery into action to drop his bombs into the already-roaring mass of flames on the target and the explosions sent smoke billowing up into the very bombbays of the attacking craft.

The "Hail Columbia's" No. 4 engine caught a direct hit. Five 40-millimeter shells smashed into the ship. Another engine was hit. The main wing spar buckled. The top of a propeller was clipped off. Another propeller was nicked, leaving a hole the size of a silver dollar. The ailerons began to look like sieves.

The nightmarish flight to Cyprus through the mountains, with the crew forced to jettison every dispensable item, was climaxed by a crash into a wall at the Cyprus landing field which ripped off one wheel and one propeller.

Colonel Johnson's experiences as leader of the fourth element was pretty similar.

As command pilot of his group, he flew as copilot with Major William H. Brandon of Nashville, Tenn., his operations officer.

miles from Poltava. Both these cities are railway junctions on a network of railways leading to Kiev, Ukraine capital, and the enemy's Dnieper River bend defenses.

On the Bryansk front the Russians were reported less than 20 miles from that city, with Soviet bombers attacking German airdromes both there and at Roslavl, 80 miles to the northwest.

Northwest of Dmitrovsk-Orlovsky, which is 65 miles below Bryansk, the Russians said their troops plunged across a stream and killed more than 200 Germans.

Scores of German tanks, motar and artillery batteries were destroyer or captured during the day on the basis of incomplete reports, and total enemy casualties on all fronts exceed 4000.

A Berlin radio commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, acknowledged that the Russians were "attacking with great tenacity, particularly southeast of Kharkov."

The German plight was so desperate that the Moscow newspaper Pravda said the Nazi command had ordered the garrison to fight to the last man and was even placing wounded convalescents in the front lines. Slightly wounded were not allowed to leave their posts, Pravda added, quoting prisoners.

The Germans were counter-attacking again and again in an effort to break the strangling bear-hug, but Moscow said all these blows bogged down in a welter of blood and burning tanks. Despite the increasing peril to the German garrison, there was no sign of attempted evacuation. The Nazis seemed intent on standing and fighting as ordered.

The German communique, recorded from radio Berlin by the Associated Press, said the whole front from Leningrad to the Black Sea was ablaze with violent Russian attacks which the Nazis said were repulsed uniformly.

civil or military government.

Bern reports said a substantial part of the government, including many sections of the foreign office, high command, war, navy and home affairs have been transferred to Vienna since August 1.

A German legation press bulletin issued in Bern today said Berlin had no illusions about the bombing fate in store for the capital.

Berlin is preparing, it said, but "no metropolis, no front and no government in the world, not even the United States of America, is in a position to give the civil population as adequate protection as that given front soldiers."

No one doubted, it added, the Anglo-Saxons were willing and able to give Berlin what Hamburg and the Ruhr got.

(The Berlin newspaper Nachtausgabe, quoted by the OWI, denied last Saturday that the government is leaving Berlin, but admitted that certain documents and staffs to handle them have been evacuated.)

A well-founded report said the Germans were moving several divisions of troops into Italy from Germany and France to save northern bases which the Allies could use as springboards for pulverizing air attacks upon southeastern Germany.

At the same time, there were strong hints the Germans were drawing some troops from France and the Low Countries for service in Russia.

This added up to the likelihood Hitler's forces in western France and the Low Countries have fallen below 30 divisions for the first time since he won that area.

This seemed to indicate German reserves are dangerously low.

It also indicated Germany is gambling that the Allies cannot mount a full-scale offensive from the west before weather halts the Russian drive in the east and releases enough troops to restore western defenses to the old level of 35 to 40 divisions.

The rainy season on the Central Front where the Russian offensives now are hammering might come as early as September 1, although it usually begins around September 15 and last several weeks.

It is generally agreed if "General Mud" is up to his usual Russian form, no army in the world could maintain big offensive operations while he in the field.

General Mud will be succeeded by the old Russian ally, General Winter, but not before mid-October or November even on the Leningrad Front in the north. By that time, the weather might be an Axis ally in the west, particularly in regard to air support for ground forces.

German plans for the defense of Italy remained obscure. The Nazis may have up to 75,000 men in southern Italy, including 25,000 to 40,000 evacuated from Sicily, but there are no clear signs yet whether they are planning to make a serious stand south of Rome.

At any rate, it is certain with this force added to the divisions in the north—variously estimated from 8 to 15—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's men likely would be called upon to meet by far the largest German force they have yet encountered if they drove into Italy.

With their communications exposed to Allied air power and naval bombardments, and with the constant threat of landings in their rear, it appeared doubtful if any real stand could be made by the Germans south of Leghorn, but extensive delaying actions by mobile units would be likely if Allied armies moved up the boot of Italy from the toe.

October Draft Shows Need for Some Fathers Near

October draft calls for the Army and Navy just received by the War Manpower Commission are "only a shade under" the calls scheduled for September when 312,000 men are to go into the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard, high manpower officials said yesterday.

On the basis of these calls, officials stated that it was "statistically certain" some fathers would have to be called in October to fill quotas, although it was probable the only pre-Pearl Harbor fathers called would be from among the new additions to the nondeferable list announced last week.

Extensions Expected

There was also "a strong possibility" nondeferable fathers would be provided in sufficient numbers to make any drain on other father groups unnecessary, officials said. Observers believed, however, this statement was made on the assumption the nondeferable list would be extended further from time to time.

The current draft picture was provided newsmen at a round-table discussion with Larence A. Appley, executive director of WMC, William Haber, assistant executive director, and Col. George Baker of Selective Service.

The officials stated they had received no word from military officials that there would be any cut in the previously announced goal of 10.8 millions in the armed forces by the end of the year.

Army Nearing Peak

Newsmen called attention to a public statement by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox that there would be 2,861,000 in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard combined by January 1, while only 2.6 millions at the year's end are called for by current WMC statistics.

WMC officials admitted the discrepancy, but had no explanation to offer for it—indicating the planned size of the naval units may have been increased recently.

Observers believed this fact might explain the failure of the October calls to fall materially below the September call. A sharp drop in calls before year-end has been anticipated because the Army is fast approaching its peak of 8.2 millions scheduled for January 1.

With the naval units at Knox's figure and the Army at 8.2 millions on January 1, the armed forces would total 11,061,000 instead of WMC's estimate of 10.8 millions.

Some Already Inducted

According to WMC's estimates, the naval units are to increase 500,000 in 1944 to a total of 3.1 millions on July 1, 1944, with the Army staying at 8.2 millions plus any required replacements.

When the nondeferable list was extended, draft boards were advised to expect further additions to the list from time to time. Under present rules, a nondeferable may be taken even prior to the October 1 deadline for the drafting of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

When called by a draft board, a nondeferable may get an additional 30 days to seek another job provided he registers immedaitely with the United States Employment Service. Under the original nondeferable list, some pre-Pearl Harbor fathers have been inducted into the armed forces since May 1.

There was some speculation WMC might plan to take fathers only by the nondeferable route to water down existing congressional opposition to drafting parents. WMC officials contended the decision to take fathers works to the advantage of war plants, since such men in war activities will be the last taken under the present program.

Sidelights on the War

Mediterranean Best for Invasion, Soviet Says

Moscow, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Soviet naval commentator Ivan Yermashev wrote in the newspaper Red Fleet today the route across the Mediterranean "appears to be the best route to the continent" for opening a second front in Europe.

The newspaper made an implied appeal for an assault to draw 60 or more German divisions from the Russian front. Previously Rusian newspapers have indicated only a smash from England directly across the Channel would meet Soviet needs.

Corporal's Valor Rewarded

London, (Special).—Firing from the hip, like the hero of a "Western," as he charged his foe single-handed, a lance corporal of the Irish Guards performed what has been officially called "an achievement that can seldom have been equalled" and is today wearing the crimson ribbon of Britain's most signal decoration, the Victoria Cross.

He is John Patrick Kenneally of Tipton, Staffordhire, and his exploit took place last April in Tunisia.

As an enemy company formed to attack his own unit, Kenneally raced down a bare forward slope under fire, shooting his Bren gun from the hip straight at the enemy troops. They disappeared, and he returned to the crest of the hill to hurry on their retreat with deadly accurate fire.

Forty-eight hours later, Kenneally gave an encore performance with the aid of a sergeant of the Reconnaissance Corps, inflicting so many casualties that the enemy again retreated. Wounded in the leg, he hopped from one fire position to the other, refusing to give up his gun, and continuing to fight throughout the day "with great courage, devotion to duty and disregard for his own safety."

Leaders Oppose Amendment to Aid Rights of Women

Cleveland, Aug. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and 79 other woman leaders have signed a letter opposing the equal rights amendment pending in the United States Senate, Miss Elizabeth Magee, general secretary of the National Consumer's League, announced today.

Copies of the letter were mailed to every United States Senator and Representative, Miss Magee said in a statement. She termed the amendment a "gold brick that may glitter, but would hurt if it hit."

"We believe in equal rights for women," the opponents of the bill told Congressmen. "We oppose the so-called equal rights amendment because it disregards the fact that while men and women are equal in right, they are not identical in economic and social function or in physical capacity."

Spouting Whale 'Shot' Down Plane

Burlington, Wis., Aug. 19 (AP).—O. C. Hulett, boss prevaricator of the Burlington Liars Club, has a yarn he would like to enter in the 1943 lying contest but is reluctant because he thinks it might be true.

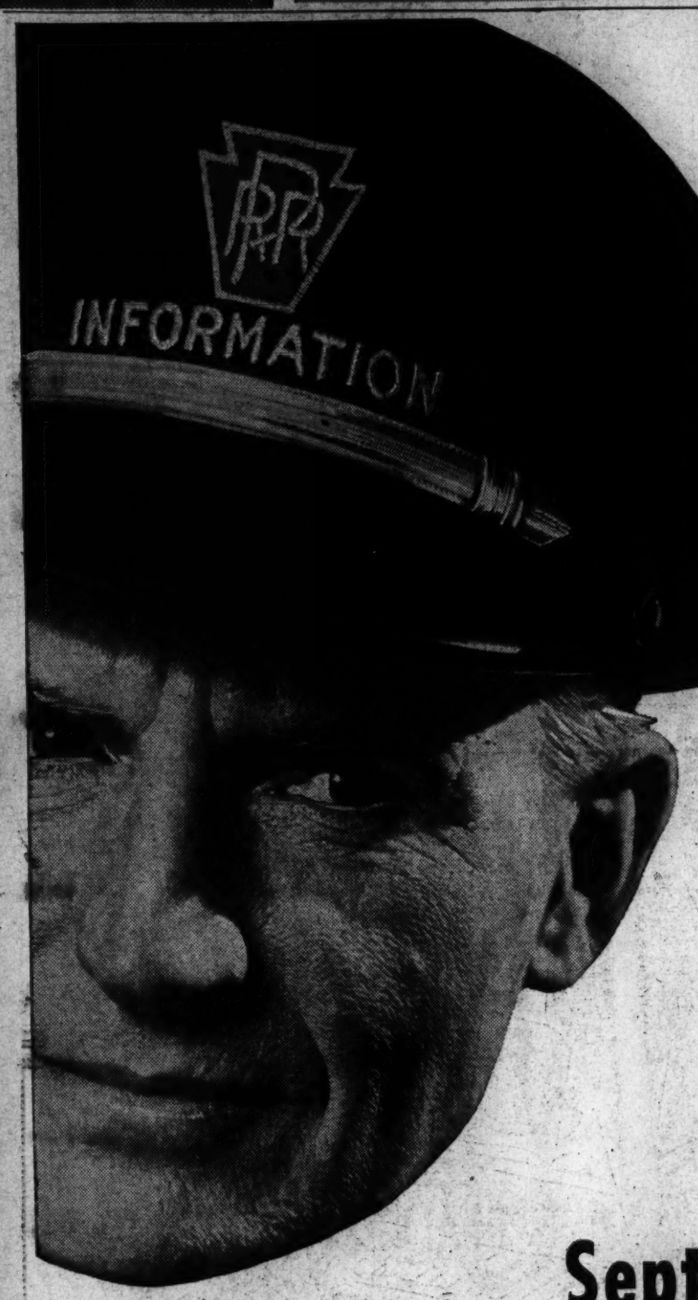
"I got the story in a letter from Flying Officer Ralph W. Ritchie, stationed in the Middle East with an RAF squadron," Hulett reported. "Richie says he is an American, born at Ottumwa, Iowa, and is trying to transfer to the American air forces."

Ritchie's story:

"My plane was badly holed during a recent fight. I only had one motor working. Later I sighted what appeared to be an enemy submarine. I decided to shoot it up, so I went down to within 5 feet of the water.

"Just as I approached I noticed it was a whale and I had to laugh as my front gunner was blazing away. But I didn't laugh long.

"As I passed over the whale he blew and the water he spouted drowned out my remaining motor and I had to land in the sea—the only pilot in this war, I think, to be shot down by a whale."



IS IT RIGHT FOR ME TO TRAVEL OVER LABOR DAY?

September 3-4-5-6-7

YOUNG LADY, the answer lies in your conscience.

As you know, our first duty these days is to make every seat and berth count in the war effort.

At present, a third of our coaches—and half the Pullmans—are busy transporting troops.

That doesn't leave much for general transportation, does it?

Out of what remains, it is necessary to provide accommodations for large numbers of Service men traveling on furlough . . . heavy business travel in connection with the war effort, which goes on just the same, holiday or no holiday . . . officials traveling on Government business . . . and for parents visiting sons and daughters at camps.

Therefore, if you travel during the period September 3rd to 7th inclusive, the question to decide is, is your trip more essential—or as essential as theirs?

If it is essential, and cannot be deferred, don't be disappointed if you find the only thing available is standing room. For Labor Day week-end is a long holiday period and trains will be crowded.

Finally, if you must go, make every effort to leave before and return after the period mentioned—September 3rd to 7th inclusive—or if you cannot, try to take a train leaving early in the day. Moreover, you'll find wartime travel more comfortable if you take only one bag aboard.

To Destroy Axis Held Aim At Quebec

that it was "all one war" while answering his question. Obviously, the British minister of information did not know the Tass man was a Russian.

Bracken arrived here yesterday in a flying boat with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and attended a dinner last night at The Citadel, where President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill were the guests of honor.

A lively Britisher, whose wild mop of hair is variously described as red, pink and straw-colored, he called a press conference this evening for the chief purpose of telling reporters that there was no news, and wouldn't be any until the conference is over and Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have issued a joint statement and perhaps held a press conference.

It is becoming apparent that the Allied leaders are disturbed over the torrent of speculation that has been pouring out of Quebec for the last 10 days. This undoubtedly is the biggest of all the Anglo-American war conferences. The mechanics of it, however, are no different from what they were in Washington or at Casablanca.

In Washington, newspapermen have learned from experience that there is no point in trying to divine what goes on at a war conference in the White House. The top-ranking strategists do not give out any information. What is to be said is said by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, and these two, of course, are careful not to betray any actual war plans.

Eisenhower Congratulated

Quebec, Aug. 19 (INS).—President Roosevelt today wired his congratulations to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the successful conclusion of the Sicilian campaign and disclosed in his cable that the enemy forces routed by the Allies on the island totaled 405,000 men.

The President's message—which concluded with the words "well done"—follows:

"The Sicily campaign now successfully concluded in accordance with the timing and planning of the Allies has thrilled all of us. This is especially true when we realize that the enemy forces on Sicily amounted to 405,000 men.

"The events of the past 38 days show what can be done by teamwork based on preparation, training, timing and, above all, on gallantry on land, on sea and in the air.

"From the ancient Citadel of Quebec, I send to you my warm congratulations; and to the officers and men under your command—British, Canadian, French and American—my thanks and enthusiastic approbation. Tell them 'Well done'."

leading in amount of space to be used. Here captured German, Italian and Jap aircraft will be shown along with P-38s, P-40s and P-51s and other American aircraft.

The stage is to face an arena 300 feet in diameter, with a 45-foot space on five sides of it for spectators. Here all the implements of modern warfare will be displayed for residents and visitors to view.

Armed guards posted throughout the 18-day exhibit will be on duty day and night. The Army band and the Air Force band, together with a WAC band will furnish musical entertainment. Combat teams, gun crews, tank crews, drilling formations—all will be a part of the show.

Each day 15 minutes will be devoted to speakers in behalf of the war bond drive and a daily guard mount of the White House military police will be held.

School children, too, will be given a special tour of the exhibits, and all clubs in Washington yesterday were urged by Carlton C. Duffus, Treasury war finance liaison, to plan mass attendance.

Wednesday the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organization went all out in their support of the "Back the Attack" exhibition.

A mobile machine records unit, used by the adjutant general's office of the Army to keep complete records on the movement, promotions, and all detailed information on officers and enlisted men and women in the service will be one of the interesting exhibits, the War Department announced.

Called machines with mechanical "minds," these units go into the field with divisions to keep a constant day to day record of all soldiers.

Other features of the AGO will include a complete field postoffice to demonstrate how soldier's mail is handled overseas and an acutal V-Mail unit at which visitors can write letters on the spot to their relatives and friends overseas.

Another innovation, a headset destined to play a major role in saving the lives of American soldiers has been provided for the fighting forces by Signal Corps engineers.

They will be on exhibit at the "Back the Attack" show.

Now being manufactured in large quantities by the Western Electric Co., the new headset furnishes the answer of how signal men can wear, headsets under the new type steel helmets, which come well down over the side of the head. This new equipment replaces the headset which forced Signal Corps men to go into battle zones bareheaded.

It permits protection against head wounds, keeps out battle noises and affords excellent reception. The headband is made of semi-sprung steel which can be bent to fit the head. The set does away with the discomforts caused in tropical lands by the large rubber earcups.

Hundreds of other exhibits will be brought into Washington by the Army for the duration of the show. Soldiers from nearby stations who will participate in the massed demonstrations and man the crews necessary for the hundreds of weapons will be in place and ready for the opening of Washington's greatest military demonstration.

Civilian Goods Rules of WPB May Be Eased

the allotment of steel for civilians for the fourth quarter of the year—125,000 tons—will permit manufacture of bed springs, kitchenware, furnaces, safety pins and other goods in expanded volume. A total of 100,000 tons of steel were allotted to civilians during the third quarter of the year.

The fourth quarter allotment will be spent as follows:

Kitchen utensils and household goods, 20,000 tons.

Bed springs, 12,500 tons.

Cooknig stoves, 9000 tons.

Warm air distributing equipment, 17,000 tons.

Hot-water heaters, 20,000 tons.

Hooks, eyes, and similar items, 8400 tons.

Heating stoves, 10,000 tons.

Pins, safety pins and needles, 427 tons.

The WPB is also working out a program to increase repair parts to keep civilian items in good working condition. Materials used for repair parts are not charged to the Office of Civilian Requirements' quota.

The current emphasis on civilian requirements stems from the determination of both War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson to schedule essential civilian needs along with military requirements, instead of permitting the civilian to shift for himself in competition with the armed services.

The program is being handled by Arthur D. Whiteside, WPB director of civilian requirements.

Coast Guardsman Who Spotted Spies Awarded

John C. Cullen, 22-year-old Coast Guardsman who sounded the alarm which led to capture of the Nazi saboteurs who landed on a Long Island beach June 13, 1942, has been awarded the Legion of Merit, the Navy announced yesterday.

CULLEN

The citation for Cullen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cullen, 215-33 49th ave., Bayside, Long Island, read:

"When several Nazi saboteurs bearing boxes of TNT and other destructive apparatus landed on the beach at Amagansett, Cullen, unarmed and helpless against their menacing threats, cleverly allayed their suspicions and thwarted their subversive intentions by promptly accepting a proffered bribe, then sounding an alarm that led to their eventual capture."

The saboteurs subsequently were convicted at a trial before a military commission in Washington.

Nancy Oakes 'Positive' Husband Didn't Kill Father

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Nancy Oakes de Marigny, 19-year-old wife of Count Alfred de Marigny, said today that "I am going back to Nassau and stay as long as my presence there is of vital aid and comfort to my husband."

Count De Marigny is charged with murder at Nassau, Bahamas, in the slaying of his father-in-law, Sir Harry Oakes, Yankee-born gold mining millionaire, July 8.

Mrs. De Marigny, who has made several trips betwen Nassau, New York and Canada since her husband's arrest, said today:

"What we have learned here will eventually be revealed in court. I am more than convinced—in fact, you can say I am positive—that Freddy is not the guilty party. I have always believed that Freddy could not have done this terrible thing—now I know that he did not. . . . I am the only person who can help Freddy."

U. S. Not Hindering Private Imports, Says OEW Official

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Morris S. Rosenthal, assistant director of the Office of Economic Warfare, told the Nation's private importers today that the Federal Government, in its program of procuring strategic war materials from abroad, had no intention of encroaching on private enterprise.

In a speech for delivery before the Commerce and Industry Association of New York, Rosenthal said imports into the United States during the past year "have been about as large in volume as in some prewar years, despite the loss of many important areas of supply."

Witnesses Denied Convention Hall; 20 Held in Jail

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 19 (INS).—Approximately 20 members of Jehovah's Witnesses—most of them women—are held in the jail tonight for investigation on the eve of the scheduled convention of several hundred members of that religious sect in the city.

The Witnesses, city officials stated, probably will be charged formally with disorderly conduct for distributing pamphlets and literature on the streets in violation of a city ordinance.

Meanwhile, considerable opposition to the convention developed.

The Witnesses advertised they would hold their meeting in the Columbia township auditorium, but directors of the auditorium met today and decided to require bond of $150,000 before permitting the organization to meet there. They gave as their reason the leasee seeking the auditorium is an individual and not a corporation.

New Job to Start On Normandie

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—As the list of the former French liner Normandie was reduced to 30 degrees today, Navy officials announced salvage crews would begin work on the big hull's interior next week.

They estimated salvage crews would be able to hold the vessel at a 30-degree tilt for about a week, and that meanwhile workmen would start removing the 19 concrete bulkheads.

It is expected to take three or four weeks to remove the bulkheads, the Navy men said, and when that is done ballast tanks on the starboard side will be filled with water—a process designed to bring the ship on a more even keel.

$5,350,000 Pipeline To Northeast Denied

Petroleum Agency Says New England's Facilities Sufficient

By Edwin D. Gritz
Post Staff Writer

Prospects of meeting petroleum needs in the Northeast were indirectly disclosed as satisfactory yesterday in a report disapproving construction of a $5,350,000 trans-New England pipe line.

The report was issued by the Petroleum Administration for War just 24 hours after an announcement by the same agency stating a decreased flow of petroleum supplies and over-consumption of gasoline by civilians was darkening the general petroleum picture.

Although pointing out the fall in petroleum flow was temporary, Acting Petroleum Administrator Ralph K. Davies, indicated continued over-consumption of gasoline may put off lifting of the pleasure ban and make increased allotment of gasoline to motorists impossible.

Reasons for Refusal

But in yesterday's report, which took a long-range view of the Eastern petroleum situation, Davies said the construction of the 114-mile 10-inch pipe line from Albany, N. Y., to Boston was turned down for the following reasons:

1. Existing transportation facilities are now sufficient to provide the entire East Coast with its full, equitable share of the petroleum supplies which can be made available in the States East of the Rocky Mountains.

2. Petroleum supplies are being increased and will continue to increase during this year. Transportation facilities already under construction will be adequate to move all of the increased production. Any further new transportation facilities would not increase supplies but would merely render idle some of the existing facilities.

3. Even on the assumption unexpected new domestic supplies of petroleum could be obtained, thereby creating the need for additional transportation for equitable distribution, the proposed pipe line represents a very inefficient use of critical materials.

Much Steel Involved

PAW's decision on the pipe line has been forwarded to New England Congressmen, Senators, Governors and other interested groups who have pressed for such construction as another way of bringing petroleum relief to New England.

'Big Inch' Breaks Again

Doylestown, Pa., Aug. 19 (AP).—A break in the "big inch" pipeline carrying crude oil from the Texas oil fields to refineries in the East was discovered near here shortly after noon today.

Farmhands, who discovered the break, said it was about 18 inches long and two or three inches wide. The oil, they said, was gushing 2 feet in the air and had spilled approximately 10,000 barrels into a nearby field.

Stool Pigeon

'Eye' Detects Loss of Time In Shipyard

By the Associated Press

Sausalito, Calif., Aug. 19.—An electric stool-pigeon at one of the country's major shipyards has disclosed, says the management, that the plant is losing three hours of work every day because of early quitting and late starting at lunch and shift-change periods.

This asserted loss, plus the three hours regularly allowed for lunch periods, indicates that although the yard operates continuously it works at its normal pace only 18 hours out of each 24.

As a result, the Marin Shipbuilding Corporation, operator of the yard, has appealed to the workers themselves to find a remedy. It has offered $1000 in war bonds for the best suggestions.

The stool-pigeon, as it is called by a management publication, is a recording watt-meter, which registers continuously, on paper, the amount of electric power being used in the big plant.

A one-day record of the watt-meter indicates that power consumption begins to drop rapidly and progressively about 11:30 p. m., 30 minutes before the midnight change, and hits a practical bottom before the whistle blows. The indicator then moves up slowly for about one hour, reaching a normal level shortly after 1 a. m.

This shows, says the company, that workers begin turning off their machines fully 30 minutes before quitting time and that the oncoming shift is slow about getting them going again. Similar drops and recoveries are shown for other shift-change periods.

Soldiers Patrol Italy as Peace Agitation Rises

Bern, Aug. 19 (AP).—New peace demonstrations in Rome were reported today as soldiers patrolled the northern industrial region to check or prevent disturbances, dispatches reaching here said.

A food crisis was reported in the Como region and elsewhere in Piedmont and Lombardy where hundreds of thousands of homeless Milanese, driven from their homes by Allied bombs, sought refuge.

The Milan newspaper, Corriere Della Sera, said the food crisis there continued extremely grave and that very few stores were able to operate.

A Rome dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve, meanwhile, quoted certain circles in the Italian capital as expressing belief that differences between the Anglo-Saxons and the Russians regarding peace aims were the "last trump" that Germany as well as Italy would know how to play "despite the present military situation."

The dispatch added that these alleged differences "would force more acceptable conditions" for the Axis.

Wright Has New Idea

Australians Vote Saturday to Fill 74 House Seats

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 19 (AP).—Australians in their second general election of the war Saturday will fill all 74 seats in a new House of Representatives, with Prime Minister John Curtin seeking to strengthen his Labor Party bloc.

Curtin called the election after his administration was upheld on a vote of confidence by only one ballot last June.

His Labor Party held 36 seats in the House, and was supported by two independents.

In the Senate, where 36 also will be elected, the opposition held 19 votes to Labor's 17.

Election campaigns so far have stirred little interest. Curtin has promised a program of work for everyone after the war, and Arthur Fadden, opposition leader, offered postwar repayment of part of the income tax and pay-as-you-go taxation.

U. S. Advances Sound Money Postwar Plan

The United States advanced last night a revised proposal for postwar international machinery to stabilize currencies, but held firmly to the idea of basing it on gold.

The British have put forward a stabilization program which would not require establishment of a central fund backed by gold.

In making public the revised American proposal, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau expressed confidence "England and ourselves will get together on a plan designed to avoid the pitfalls that beset world trade after the last war."

Both the American and British plans are aimed at preventing wide fluctuations in the relative value of currencies of different countries in order to promote international trade. The theory is that business is handicapped when, for instance, the value of the British pound in terms of dollars, changes from day to day.

The United States originally suggested last April establishment of a five-billion-dollar international fund of which this country would contribute two billion dollars. This fund would stabilize currencies by fixing the rate at which it would buy and sell member currencies.

Embodying chiefly technical changes and clarifications based on discussions with and suggestions from monetary experts of nearly 30 countries, the revised proposal alters among other things voting requirements to remove an American veto power over decisions of the fund's governing body. It also sets forth in more precise terms the amounts of gold that would be required from participating governments.

Some observers saw in the revision a tendency to lean toward views expressed in a Canadian plan published last month as an effort at compromise between the British and American proposals.

Yugoslav Patriots Reported Attacking

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Algiers radio said today that Yugoslav patriots have made a "surprise attack" on Belgrade and are conducting military operations in the vicinity of the Yugoslav capital.

The Moscow radio said the Yugoslavs had occupied the town of Devialno in the Drina River Valley west of Belgrade and captured "large amounts of arms and ammunitions and two storehouses filled with grain for Germany."

D. C. Hero Took Death in Hands 1000 Times

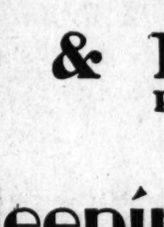
By Hanson H. Hathaway
Post Staff Writer

Sergt. Floyd A. Sipe, 31, of 6901 New Hampshire ave. nw., is a guy who doesn't think he is a hero, but who has, nevertheless, taken death in his hands a thousand times.



SIPE

With his platoon of combat engineers in Kasserine Pass, outside, Tibesa, Africa, in advance of oncoming American invasion forces, he dug up some 30 tons of land mines. Those 30 tons represented a record and roughly some 1000 individual mines. Personally inspected each one. Each, if set off by unsuspecting feet, by the clattering weight of tanks or the instant pressure of racing jeeps and peeps, meant death, quick and sure.

"Any one of these mines could wipe out a company," he related yesterday. It doesn't occur to Sergeant Sipe to figure that "dedeathing" all those mines is, perhaps, as heroic an exploit as saving that many lives.

His immediate regret is that when he got his, it was through an aerial bomb, concussion of which shattered his right leg, just as he was doing his biggest job of mine digging in the Segenan Valley.

Before this, however, was a reluctantly unfolded story of the Oran invasion of last November 8, a story of hand-to-hand encounters with Italians and Germans in desperate response to the American bid for preliminary starting points beyond the 100-foot high cliffs that looked down to the sea.

"As combat engineers, trained in handling land mines, it was our job to go ahead of the invasion main body," he said. "We had good training for the job in England.

"More than once machine guns opened up on us as we inched our way along watching our electrical mine detectors, or probing suspiciously fresh earth mounds with bayonets and knives to get at the mines underneath.

He made a gesture of impatience. "Machine guns are an awful nuisance under conditions like that," he said, quite soberly. "We'd have to stop work, duck for cover, and then do a bit of overtime getting at them and putting a stop to their chatter."

"I got clipped in the leg the first time about half an hour after we landed on Oran beach. It wasn't much but they sent me back of the lines after Oran fell.

Sergeant Sipe and his men were working hard that day in the Sagenan Valley. Our troops had captured Oran and were fanning out toward El Guitter and Tibesa.

"We had this particular mine field all cleared except for a small patch of ground when this German bomber came sweeping down on us.

"I was kind of busy at the time and didn't pay much attention until I woke up a few minutes later.

"This bomb the German dropped hit a few yards from me, and the concussion knocked me for a loop. That was curtains for my part in the war. My leg was so badly busted the surgeons thought they'd have to take it off. But, it mended."

Station Got License After 2 Were Fired

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 19.—Arnold B. Hartley, former announcer for foreign language radio station WGES in Chicago, testified before a Congressional Subcommittee investigating the Federal Communications Commission today that the station received a permanent license after it dismissed two announcers, Stefano Luotto and Remo Conti.

Hartley, now a program director at Station WOV, New York, testified the owner of the Chicago station, Dr. John Dyer, sent him to Washington last October to find out why the FCC would not give the station a permanent license.

He said two officials of the FCC's war problems division, Jerome H. Springarn and Nathan David, told him the FCC had received complaints about the two announcers.

Eugene L. Garey, counsel to the subcommittee of the Cox congressional committee, read into the record a letter Hartley said he wrote to Dr. Dyer after talking to Springarn and David.

"If we want to sleep at night, Luotto and Conti will have to go," the letter read. "They will have to get off the air.

"If we don't clean up, it is possible that we will be called to account on two purely technical charges, since the FCC will not in all likelihood fight the case of the Luotto issue."

He said he was aware at the time that the FCC had no authority to ban station personnel, but that the two announcers were dismissed last March, and afterward Station WGES received a permanent license.

Double Ring Job Threatens Supply Of Wedding Rings

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The double ring wedding ceremony, once just an added sentimental touch, is attaining such wartime proportions that it threatens the future supply of gold wedding rings.

The sentimental link of that additional gold band now is demanded by many fighting men, W. Waters Schwab, member of the manufacturers' advisory committee to the War Production Board, said today—and as a result, jewelers from coast to coast are being plagued with a growing shortage of rings.

Manufacturers are already restricted to half their 1941 production. Schwab cited the following figures:

In 1941 three were about 1,500,000 weddings in the country, and about 15 per cent of them were double-ring ceremonies.

In 1943 the wedding total was expected to reach 2,000,000, with 70 per cent double-ring ceremonies.

U. S. Jury Indicts 2 For Holding Negro Against His Will

Attorney General Biddle announced yesterday that a Federal grand jury at Mobile, Ala., had returned an indictment charging O'Neal Bodiford and Ralph McGaugh of Fort Deposit, Ala., with violations of the civil rights, slavery and peonage statutes in the holding of Luther Carter, Negro farmhand, in what the jury termed involuntary servitude.

Biddle said the indictment states that Carter left Bodiford's farm to work for a sawmill operator at Bay Minette, Ala., on April 13, 1943, and it is alleged the defendants went to the sawmill where they beat Carter and forced him into their automobile with the intention of returning him to Bodiford's farm to work out an alleged debt.

Husband Reports His Wife Missing Since August 1

Mrs. Oneida Jessica Smith, 23, copropriotor with her husband, Ray C. Smith, of a restaurant at 1759 L st. nw., has been missing from her home, 1745 L st. nw., since August 1.

MRS. SMITH

Mrs. Smith has light, wavy brown hair, a fair complexion, and is 5 feet 8 inches tall.

According to her husband, Mrs. Smith left her home on that Sunday afternoon stating she was going to visit friends. She was wearing a white blouse, a blue flowered skirt and white shoes. Missing from her wardrobe is a blue checkered sport suit. She carried a brown and white striped wood and fabric bag and wore wedding and engagement rings.

CAB Names Pilot In Andes Crash

The Civil Aeronautics Board said yesterday that the failure of the pilot to follow "normal operating procedure" probably caused the crash of a transport plane in the Andes Mountains in Peru, January 22. Four members of the crew and ten passengers were killed.

The plane, operated by Pan American-Grace Airways, crashed near Chaparra, Peru, while en route from Santiago, Chile, to Lima.

Prices of Calif. Grapes Cut in Half by OPA

The Office of Price Administration cut 50 per cent or more off the price of California table grapes yesterday by establishing specific cents per pound prices at the country shipper, terminal market and wholesale levels. The order is expected to drop the retail price from between 40 and 60 cents a pound to between 17 and 20 cents.

The price of hops grown on the Pacific Coast was also fixed today, at levels above the average for last year but substantially below the prices at the end of 1942. No increase in the price of beer and ale will be permitted to result.

Abandon Dignity In Air Battle, Is General's Advice

Brig. Gen. Frank A. Armstrong, 41-year-old fighting flier, has returned to his home in Richmond, Va., after leading the First Bomb Wing of the American Eighth Air Force in few of its attacks on Germany and German-occupied territory in Europe, it was announced yesterday.

General Armstrong, quoted in a formal War Department announcement, has as one of the rules of war in the air, "There's no place for dignity at 25,000 feet with a battle in progress." He proclaimed the rule in telling about his piloting a plane in the first heavy bomber attack on Rouen, last August. His navigator called on the plane's phone, "Swing the plane, please."

"Don't ask me," shot back the general. "Tell me."

Navy Commends Lt. Comdr. Munson For War Service

Lieut.-Comdr. Curtiss B. Munson, 2312 California st. nw., has been commended for his part in the capture of Algeria last November, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Lieutenant Commander Munson, a member of the U. S. Naval Advance Party during the assault of Arzew, Algiers, November 8, 1942, participated in the consolidation of the port and the seizure of three hostile merchant vessels and one patrol craft, the Navy stated. Rear Admiral Randall Jacobs, chief of naval personnel issued the commendation.

Born in Washington in 1892, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Munson of New York, Lieutenant Commander Munson attended St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and graduated from Yale in 1916.

His wife, Mrs. Edith Cummings Munson, now at their ranch in Edmonton, Alberta, was at the time of their marriage in 1934 a well-known society sportswoman. In 1923 she was national women's golf champion and Western champion the following year. She is the daughter of the late David Mark Cummings, Chicago capitalist. The Munsons have three daughters.

Sir Clive Baillieu, British Material Envoy, Is Resigning for Industrial Post in England

Sir Clive Baillieu, British member of the Combined Raw Materials Board and member of the British Supply Mission, is resigning both these posts to return to London as deputy president of the Federation of British Industries, the rough equivalent in England of the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce here.

A statement issued by the federation declared Sir Clive will be nominated as president next spring.

While the official announcement of Sir Clive's resignation was made in London yesterday by the Minister of Production, the industrialist met with newsmen yesterday afternoon in the office of his American counterpart on the Combined Board, WPB's William Batt, to discuss the implications of his transfer.

War Coordination

He is taking the nongovernmental post, he said, because "in wartime Britishers serve where their government requires their services. The Ministry of Production," he added, "has agreed that I return to take up the position with the Federation of British Industries."

"The job to which I go will still be linked with the problems of war. The FBI, like all similar bodies in England, has been cooperating closely with the government in harnessing industry for an all-out war effort," he declared.

Although a native of Australia, Sir Clive has spent so many years in England he is considered an Englishman by his countrymen. The 53-year-old industrialist first went to London in 1923 and has since then been actively associated as director and chairman with some of the largest industrial interests in the empire, including Austral Development, Ltd., the Dunlop Rubber Corporation, the Imperial Smelting Corporation and the British Metal Corporation. His chairmanship of Imperial Smelting and also of the Zinc Corporation, Ltd., succeeded that of the late Viscount Robert Horne.

Sir Clive's wife and daughter, who have been with him in Washington since he came here in 1941 as Director General of the British Purchasing Commission, will return to England with him. His three sons are all in military service—one invalided in Australia, one in Sicily with the British Eighth Army, and one a gunner in England.

William Batt, who yesterday officially expressed appreciation for Sir Clive's excellent cooperation on the combined board and regret at his resignation, will accompany the Britisher on his trip home.

Questioned as to his business in London, Batt would say only he planned to take up several matters concerned with the board's business of locating and allocating vital raw materials for the Allied war effort and would discuss the matter of Sir Clive's successor.

"I might take over a half dozen safety razor blades for someone in England," he added, grinning.

Police Hold Sailor in Death Of Waitress

A 23-year-old sailor attached to a United States battleship was held by police last night in connection with the death of Mrs. Margaret L. Cwikiel, 23, of 916 H st. nw., a waitress.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered the man's detention following an autopsy at the District Morgue. The result of the post mortem examination was not revealed and, it was said, a decision will be withheld until further medical investigations are made.

The sailor was taken into custody near the Cwikiel home about 11:30 p. m. Wednesday, after the woman collapsed on the floor. Police said Mrs. Cwikiel's mother, Mrs. Anne F. Guise, reported her daughter and the sailor had an altercation over $5.

Detectives were reluctant to reveal the results of their questioning of the sailor except to say he admitted striking the woman.

Already Under Bond, 2 Boys Taken Again

Two 'teen-age boys, already under bond as suspects in a $75 robbery in nearby Maryland, last night were rearrested and charged with a series of thefts in the Southeast section of the District.

The boys were taken into custody by Precinct Detective James Duvall, H. L. Sprague and James Lowery as they entered a film theater at Minnesota ave. and Benning rd. se.

Services Club For British Opens Here

The first club in America for the non-commissioned men of all British forces was opened last night at 1773 Columbia Rd. nw.

It is to be known as the British Empire Forces Club, and is sponsored by the Shop Committee of the British War Relief Society of the U.S.A.

There are Union Jack and other such clubs for British service men in several other cities, but each of these was organized for one specific branch of service. Washington's club is for the land, sea and air forces.

There were plenty of WRNS, ATS and CWACs at the opening last night, but women members of the British forces will be welcome hereafter only as the "dates" of servicemen on Saturday and Sunday nights when hostesses will be on duty.

Membership cost is $1 a month. The club was opened officially by A. B. Grant, vice president of the British War Relief Society. He expressed appreciation for the 28 million dollars the BWRS has raised in America.

The club was accepted in behalf of the service men by Armament Sergt. Maj. E. F. Crouch, representing the British Army, and Vice Admiral Wilfred French, representing the Royal Navy.

There was also a short speech by Sir Ronald Campbell, high British official here.

The club has dart games, ping pong tables, a lounge and outdoor tables for refreshments. Most of the furnishings were donated, and have been repaired by British service men.

There was bagpipe music last night by Pipe Major Garrioch, who once made music for the famous Gordon Highlanders and who is now a Washington greenhouse keeper.

Wages Cause Pa. Coal Parley To Adjourn

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—Pennsylvania anthracite miners and operators today adjourned their wage negotiation conferences subject to call of the chairman, as Major W. W. Inglis, operators' spokesman, announced that "We cannot get together on the major question of wage rates."

Representatives of the United Mine Workers issued a statement upon adjournment, in which they said they would "present our case and defend our position before the (War Labor) Board in Washington Monday."

The WLB assumed jurisdiction yesterday over the dispute, in which miners originally sought a daily wage increase of $2 over the basic $5.08, and underground travel pay.

U. S. Ship Afloat 32 Hours After 2 Torpedoes Strike

Miami, Fla., Aug. 19 (AP).—It took more than a submarine's torpedoes to sink a tough American merchant ship attacked in the South Atlantic early in July with a loss of only one life.

Thirty-two hours after two torpedoes ripped into the vessel, a friendly warship finally sent her to the bottom with shellfire.

Capt. Joseph Linder of New York, who told of the incident upon his arrival here, kept his crew aboard for hours in the hope of salvaging the vessel. The 69 survivors finally were taken aboard a patrol vessel and landed at a South American port.

One man was killed in the explosion of a torpedo.

Monopoly Views By Wallace Aimed At Small Minority

Vice President Wallace declared yesterday that his recent criticism of corporations was aimed only at the small minority.

He coupled a blessing for the profit system with an assertion free enterprise must be preserved in the nation's postwar economic life.

Wallace called in newsmen to declare that a recent speech in Detroit, in which he accused some big corporations of monopolistic practices, had been "misunderstood and misinterpreted" as a general attack on the corporate form of business organization.

Officers Take Oaths

Convention Of 40 and 8 Women Ends

Installation of 11 officers for the fiscal year of 1943-44 and reports by committees concluded the two-day annual convention of the District of Columbia Department of the Women's Auxiliary of the 40 homme et 8 chevaux of the American Legion last night at the Washington Hotel.

Attired in white dresses adorned with corsages and wearing scarlet capes and plummed headdress, the new officers took their oaths before a gathering of distinguished guests headed by Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, head of the Veteran's Bureau, and Mrs. Hines.

Mrs. Mary B. Corwin, retiring chapeau departmentale (president) presented the gavel to Mrs. Helen K. Ware, who was unanimously elected her successor the night before. Others who took office during the ceremony were Mrs. Vesta Rodruck and Mrs. Rae R. Koantz, given the post of demi chapeaux departmentaux for the salon Mrs. Clara Searcy, l'archivist; Mrs. Marie Totten, la superintendante; Mrs. Eva Carrico, la concierge, and Mrs. Carolyn Kiser and Mrs. Frances Snow, color bearers.

Guests in addition to Brig. Gen. Hines were Patrick J. Fitzgibbons, past department commander of the legion and Mrs. Fitzgibbons; the new legion department commander and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. C. Francis McCarthy and Grand Chef de Gare of the 80 and 8 John Keller and Mrs. Keller.

Two Gold Star Mothers, Mrs. F. P. Nash and Mrs. Mary K. Killeen, were tendered an ovation. Miss Hilda Nelson lead in the singing of The Star Spangled Banner. Miss Emily J. Carey offered the invocation.

Canton Area Easy To Retake, Says Rickenbacker

New Delhi, June (Delayed).—Eddie Rickenbacker, round-the-world observer for Secretary of War Stimson, told American newsmen here June 10 that the Chinese, aided by the Fourteenth U. S. Air Force, could retake the Canton-Hongkong area any time they chose.

"From there," he pointed out at an informal press conference, "we could seriously disrupt the Japs' lines of communications to the Southwest Pacific. We would have a four or five-day crack at their convoys with our bombers. If we missed them one day, we could go back for them the next. We could force the Japs into the open sea, where our submarines and warships could come to grips with them.

"The Canton-Hongkong area would put us in a springboard position for an attack upon Formosa. With Formosa in our hands, we could set up a line of communication with the States that would be only half as long as the one now connecting America and China."

Rickenbacker paused here only a few hours before proceeding by air to Russia. (He is now back in the United States.)

Antistrike Act Adherence Blamed For Speech-Culling

Richard T. Frankensteen, vice president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), complained yesterday that a Columbus, Ohio, radio station had used the Smith-Connally Antistrike Act to prohibit him from making a "political speech."

Announcing he had taken the matter up with the Federal Communications Commission, Frankensteen said that he was forced to exclude all reference to the Ohio congressional delegation before speaking over radio station WHKC on August 8.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 19 (AP).—John Moses, program director of radio station WHKC here, said today portions of a prepared broadcast by Richard I. Frankensteen were deleted to conform with the code of the National Association of Broadcasters and not the Smith-Connally Antistrike Act.

Hungarian Desire To Quit Nazis Seen

London, Aug. 19 (AP).—Signs of growing Hungarian desire to cut loose from the Nazis was seen in a carefully-guarded speech made by Premier Nicolas Kallay, broadcast today and apparently aimed at rallying the people around the regent, Administrator Nicholas Horthy.

"All the factories of the country are at work but all work for Hungary," he said. "We, who have not started this world conflagration, cannot extinguish it. But if we look after our own house and watch it carefully we will save our house and the fire will not destroy it."

Rev. Eliot White, Episcopal Rector, Joins Communists

New York, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Rev. Eliot White, former rector of Grace Episcopal Church here who once expressed approval of companionate marriage, today announced he was espousing communism because "it backed up the Bible."

The 71-year-old retired clergyman said the "the creator gave the world to all the people and not to a few," and that because the Communist Party held the same view, he and his wife were joining.

"I've been thinking of this step for a long time," the clergyman said. He was relieved of his duties at Grace Episcopal Church here in 1931 after he demanded an ecclesiastical trial for his support of companionate marriage. He then picketed the residence of Bishop Manning of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

Archbishop Lenihan Dies in Iowa at 87

Dubuque, Iowa, Aug. 19 (AP).—The Most Rev. Mathias C. Lenihan, D.D., titular Archbishop of Preslavo, Italy, and the first Bishop of Great Falls, Mont., died at his home today.

Archbishop Lenihan was born in Dubuque and was ordained here as the first native priest of Iowa December 20, 1879. He was made bishop of Great Falls September 21, 1904. He had lived here since his retirement as Bishop of the Montana diocese January 30, 1930.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Bovingdon Case

The case of John Bovingdon is quite settled in the mind of Leo T. Crowley. The titular chief of the Office of Economic Warfare has made it plain once more that the Dies Committee policies on personnel are to prevail in his agency. He has summarily dismissed a petition for Bovingdon's reinstatement signed by some 2000 Federal employes who recognize that their own job security is menaced by the arbitrary treatment meted out to this fellow worker. In spite of their determination to seek a court test, there is probably very little that they can do about the matter. There is nothing at all that John Bovingdon can do to recover either his job or his reputation. Leo Crowley, in his wisdom, has decided to throw Bovingdon to the lions "in the best interest of the agency."

It seems to us altogether unwise to leave a decision of this sort to the wisdom of Mr. Crowley or, for that matter, of any other individual agency head. The decision, remember, did not concern the quality of the employe's work or his qualifications for the position which he held. No charge has yet been made regarding Mr. Bovingdon's professional ability. The sole charges on which Mr. Crowley's decision was based were those presented by the Dies Committee, calling Mr. Bovingdon a "communistic ballet dancer"—whatever that may mean in the weird semantics of the Texas Congressman.

If Federal employes are to have any semblance of security in their jobs, they must be afforded protection against such arbitrary decisions by their administrative superiors. When charges are brought against them respecting their integrity or loyalty or general fitness for Government service, they are entitled to a day in court, entitled at the very least to a consideration of the charges on their merits and not on a basis of sheer expediency. Without such protection for Government workers, there can be no civil service and no merit system worthy of the name.

The remedy is simple enough. There is no way to provide backbone for all Government administrators. But there is a way to save them, and their subordinates, from the consequences of their own spinelessness. The Post again urges President Roosevelt to establish a committee of distinguished and disinterested civilians to pass upon any allegations respecting the character of Federal employes. The committee might well include an educator, a businessman, a labor leader, a member of the clergy and a member of the bench or bar—men upon whose fairness Congress and the general public alike can place full reliance. Such a committee would end the process of intimidation by which the constitutional authority of the Government's executive branch is slowly being whittled away.

Badoglio Speaks

Except for the original statement he made at the time he assumed the premiership on July 25, a statement notable only for the assertion that "the war goes on," Marshal Badoglio has not taken the Italian people into his confidence regarding his plans. Yet the clamor inside Italy has steadily grown as week after week has passed, as the peace that the overwhelming majority of the people of that country so ardently desire has continued to elude them, and as more and more Italian cities have been devastated by Allied bombs.

It is hardly surprising, therefore, that the mere announcement that Marshal Badoglio was going to speak over the radio to his fellow countrymen and that another speaker would be former Premier Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, a prominent anti-Fascist, was enough to cause revolutionary manifestations in Genoa, Turin and Milan temporarily to subside. Presumably the Italian people expected Marshal Badoglio and Signor Orlando to tell them what was happening. If so, their disappointment will be great, and there is likely to be a sharp increase in Italian turmoil during the next few days.

Badoglio spoke for only three minutes and, it appears, both the phrasing and the delivery of his speech were unimpressive. He spoke of the "sacred soil of Sicily" having had to be abandoned in the face of superior force. He declared that nothing that has happened can break the ties binding the Sicilians to their fellow Italians on the mainland. And he appealed for unity. Having asked for the bread of peace, the Italians got from the marshal only a smoke-screen of cloudy rhetoric.

Nor was Orlando any more satisfactory. His remarks, too, were more significant for what they left unsaid than for what they said. But in view of his anti-Fascist background—he was never reconciled to the regime established by Mussolini—some of his statements appear to have a cryptic meaning, particularly his plea that the Sicilians not withdraw from "the mother country" whatever their "sufferings" under the "oppressor."

Since the reception given the Allied troops by the inhabitants of Sicily were uniformly enthusiastic, as Signor Orlando probably knows, his reference to the "oppressor" may very well have referred not to the Allies, who now control the island, but to Mussolini and the Germans. In any event it is doubtful if anything that either Badoglio or Orlando said on this occasion will ease the mounting crisis in the kingdom, a crisis now rapidly leading to a climax.

Balanced Sanctions

The President has at last acted to apply sanctions under the Smith-Connally Anti-strike Act to labor as well as employers. Power to compel employers to comply with orders of the War Labor Board clearly exists in the right of plant seizure. The fact that this right of seizure has had to be used to assure resumption of work by striking coal miners emphasizes the need for subjecting unions to suitable penalties for noncompliance that would really have "teeth." To take over the employer's property in case of strikes that tie up war production is not only a penalty that does not fit the crime, it is a procedure that may even be regarded as a boon by a recalcitrant union.

In his executive order to Judge Vinson, economic stabilization director, the President has, therefore, undertaken to correct the injustices of the existing procedure. In future the War Labor Board will be provided with a variety of weapons for giving effect to its orders, whether they are directed toward rebellious employers or employes. In the former case the WLB need not proceed to the drastic extreme of plant seizure. Instead the board may call upon the Director of Economic Stabilization to withdraw priorities, and revoke war contracts—in short, it may apply suitable economic penalties that will make an employer who wants to remain in business fearful of defying its orders.

In case of union noncompliance, penalties, unfortunately, cannot be applied without first taking over the plant involved in the labor disturbance, as specified by the Anti-strike Act. But, thereafter, the WLB is empowered by executive order to withdraw benefits and privileges accruing to the union under agreements or proposed agreements with employers, "until such time as the noncomplying labor union has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the National War Labor Board its willingness and capacity to comply." For example, the union may be deprived of existing check-off privileges and have existing maintenance of membership provisions of agreements withdrawn. In other words, the President has discovered that it is quite feasible, as The Post has repeatedly suggested, to bring recalcitrant labor leaders to book under the Antistrike Act, provided the will to do so exists.

The heavy penalties imposed upon individuals who instigate strikes or lockouts, or interfere with production in plants taken over by the Government, are not the concern of the WLB. Enforcement of these provisions in regard to individual compliance is left to the Attorney General. The concluding presidential instructions make possible the application of sanctions by the WMC and Selective Service to strike agitators and other individuals through modification or cancellation of draft deferments or employment privileges or both. While it appears to be generally bad policy to employ the threat of the draft as a form of punishment, the official blacklisting of men active in fomenting labor trouble in war plants appears to be both a suitable and a powerful weapon for assuring compliance with WLB orders.

With the time approaching when the Government will be returning the coal mines to private owners, it is most important that the WLB be provided in advance with the authority required to cope with a possible defiance of its authority. However, the coal dispute merely highlights the necessity of this belated reformulation of the Administration's labor policy to put a stop to interference with war production by applying penalties without fear or favor to those responsible for work stoppages, whether employers or employes.

Eden At Quebec

The arrival at Quebec of Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, emphasizes the fact that the latest Anglo-American war conference is concerned not merely with military strategy but also with political problems. It was inevitable that this should be so. When the Anglo-American offensive was still in its preliminary stage, when the armies of the two nations were still confined to the periphery of Europe, it was relatively easy to postpone the discussion of political matters. With the conquest of Sicily, however, we are no longer at the threshold of that continent, but literally inside the gates and are preparing to storm the fortress.

This means that a political policy in line with our professed ideals and satisfactory to the members of the United Nations coalition must be worked out. That should have been done long ago, and very little time is left. The problem of our relations to the French National Committee of Liberation and with the French people whom we hope to free before very long; our attitude toward Italy and the Italian people; to Germany and the Germans; above all, our future relations with Russia—these all are matters crying out for speedy and effective solution. And, important as are the military questions which the galaxy of Anglo-American military, naval and air leaders have been considering at Quebec, the political issues which Mr. Eden and Secretary Hull, who is also to make his appearance at the conference soon, are to discuss together with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt are no less important.

Homesick Army

In one of his recent dispatches from England John Steinbeck writes that "One good letter can make the difference between a good soldier and a sick man . . . Letters are nearly the most important things that happen or don't happen." Unfortunately, long before Pearl Harbor the American people had lost the habit of writing letters, much as they had forgotten the virtues of thrift. "Don't write—telegraph" was the accepted slogan of almost every family. In those days a long leisurely letter from home was as rare as a loaf of homemade bread or a hand-knit washcloth. Life was too interrupted and hurried, and it was made more so by the radio and the movies and the automobile. And, after all, there was always the telephone when it came to the pinches. But now these media are not available, and the letter has now become the single fragile link between our servicemen and that golden word "home."

To the vast number of people, women for the most part, who are trying overnight to acquire the lost art of letter writing, much good advice has been given. The subject, indeed, has been deemed so vital to the morale of the armed forces that OWI has issued a directive outlining the "do's" and "don'ts" in writing soldiers. We are told to write often and to write simply and naturally of what we feel. Letters filled with the small events of the day, of the comings and goings of the family and the Joneses across the way, make the happiest reading, for a man can't feel cut off if he is allowed to share the life at home. They tell us that any little spark of humor brings a rich reward, and that our jokes and stories are passed about among the men like silver dollars. Above all, and this is underscored, we are warned to be cheerful, to keep our petty gripes and miserable little home-front discomforts to ourselves. A whining letter makes worried reading, for as Mr. Steinbeck says, "A man feels trapped. If something is wrong, there is nothing in the world that he can do about it."

"This is a great time for wives," he continues. "They will never in their lives be so beautiful as they are now. Their eyes will never be so bright, nor every kindness and every gentleness remembered the way it is now. They have great power now, and so many of them misuse it." We should imagine that every woman whose husband, son or brother is serving overseas will take these words to her heart. She has but to remember the pain of her own homesickness, which is the common lot of children when they take the first step out of the warm comfort of the home, to understand her power. Our women cannot afford to misuse their great privilege, for if they do, they will be failing in courage and patriotism, and will be guilty of wounding our troops just as surely as the splinters from an enemy shell.

Fares To The Pentagon

We hope that the Interstate Commerce Commission will be able to bring the Government buildings on the south shore of the Potomac within the one-bus-fare zone which extends throughout the rest of the city. It is true that some of these buildings are in Virginia. Even the Pentagon appears to be on the unmarked line dividing the District and the Old Dominion. More important, however, is the fact that they are an integral part of the city. Easy access to the Pentagon is no less vital than easy access to the State Department. Certainly the fact that the Pentagon is part of the Capital ought to be considered in fixing the fares of buses that serve it.

The only real solution, of course, is the reannexation of Arlington County as part of the District. That apparently cannot be accomplished immediately. The next most desirable solution is the enactment of Senator McCarran's bill extending the jurisdiction of the District to all Federal property contiguous to the old obscure boundary line on the Virginia side of the river. That would automatically give the Public Utilities Commission jurisdiction over fares paid on carriers operating from downtown Washington to the Pentagon Building and the airport. The McCarran bill ought to be pushed when Congress resumes its session next month. In the meantime the city will be thankful for any relief that may be obtained from the conference that the ICC has initiated.

OUTBOARD MOTOR

Split the water, and race the wind
That is sharp as a new knife keenly thinned.
Steel your face to the cutting spray,
And swift as light you are off and away!
The sound in your ears of taut viol strings
Where the high breeze whistles and shouts and sings,
The churning foam and the waves creft wide
Are a part of this wild, glad, joyous ride.
Over your head the screaming gulls
Circle and wheel . . . the far-off hulls
Tethered to shore lie idly by
While you are released to race, to fly:
One with the water, green as jade,
One with the wind—the path you made
Closes behind your silver steed
That is foaming, leaping, straining for speed!

GRACE NOLL CROWELL.

Churchill's Courage

By Mark Sullivan

August 20, 1940

ONE WONDERS if Mr. Winston Churchill notices anniversaries. He may—when he has leisure, for he is a man of poetic imagination and is history-minded. But for four years he has had little opportunity for reflection about the past—his every hour has been crowded with the call for instant action, his eyes compelled to look to the future, a future that for most of the period contained imminent, desperate and unremitting peril.

Yet today Mr. Churchill might find spiritual assurance, confidence in his own courage, justification for his foresight and wisdom, by recalling the speech that he made exactly three years ago, August 20, 1940. That, and the weeks preceding was the time of Britain's darkest hour—not only darkest of this war but darkest in all her centuries of history. England soberly considered that conquest of her island home was more than a possibility. Her leaders gave thought to what to do in case that terrible calamity should befall. One suggestion quietly discussed with friends in this country by Lord Lothian, then British Ambassador here, was that the royal family and the Prime Minister, with the scepter and public records, and the other emblems and insignia of sovereignty and government, should be brought to Canada, to be there set up as the new capital of what fragments might be left of the British Empire.

TODAY, three years later, the Prime Minister is in Canada, not as a fleeing refugee but as a victorious leader. This, Mr. Churchill may not have concretely foreseen when he made his speech of August 20, 1940. But he did foresee what he and England must do, and to the grim tasks he dedicated himself and his country:

"Hitler is now sprawled over Europe. . . . We have seen great countries with powerful armies dashed out of existence in a few weeks. We have seen the French Republic and the renowned French army beaten into complete and total submission. . . . We must resolutely and methodically prepare ourselves for the campaigns of 1941 and 1942. Two or three years are not a long time, even in our short precarious lives. They are nothing in the history of the nation. And when we are doing the finest thing in the world, and have the honor to be the sole champion of the liberties of all Europe, we must not grudge these years, nor weary as we toil and struggle through them."

It was in that speech three years ago today that Mr. Churchill uttered one of those eloquent sentences that will be quoted as long as the English language lives. This one was about the young men of the Royal Air Force, and it will be repeated of other gallant air men so long as men shall fly. At the time of Mr. Churchill's speech, Hitler's attempt to conquer England by air was growing toward the climax of its terrible ferocity: "The great air battle which has been in progress over this island for the last few weeks has recently attained a high intensity." Then Mr. Churchill paid tribute to the young men of the Air Force who, greatly outnumbered and with equipment inferior, were bearing the brunt. Of them he said: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

IN THAT same speech, August 20, 1940, Mr. Churchill made a faint allusion to something which he foresaw but which few others thought would come to pass. He spoke of what was among the first slender gestures toward cooperation between his country and ours, timorous on our part, the leases of some naval bases in the West Indies to our Government. Mr. Churchill said: "Undoubtedly this process means that these two great organizations of the English-speaking democracies, the British Empire and the United States, will have to be somewhat mixed up together in some of their affairs for mutual and general advantage."

Though Mr. Churchill contemplated cooperation by the United States as a possibility, he did not rely upon it, and he was bravely willing that Britain stand alone. In earlier speeches he had said: "We have become the sole champions now in arms to defend the world cause. We shall do our best to be worthy of this high honor . . . but if we fail, then the whole world, including the United States, including all that we have known and cared for, will sink into the abyss of a new dark age. . . . Let us therefore brace ourselves to our duties and so bear ourselves that, if the British Empire and its Commonwealth last for a thousand years, men will still say, 'This was their finest hour.'"

Mr. Churchill's hope for help came true. At Quebec today, by his side, companion in arms and in rising triumph, stands the President of the United States.

Air Power

Sea-Air Power

By Paul Schubert

Control Of Sea Areas

WHEN IS a naval battle a naval battle?

Everyone agrees that sea power has played a major role in the great global war now going on. Everyone agrees that without ships, the United States could not now be waging offensive warfare in all theaters. Our ability to drive the German U-boat from the Atlantic has been the crux of the whole war effort—and the U-boat threatened one thing alone: our ability to move ships.

The U-boat war was fought to decide the equation of Atlantic sea power. It was fought to determine the mastery of the Atlantic sea area.

Yet the U-boat war was not "naval battle" in the conventional sense. Though the U-boat is a ship, and Britain and ourselves used ships to fight the U-boat, the U-boat warfare was not battle between ships.

THE U-BOAT war was modern naval warfare. Sea-air warfare. At one period of the U-boat offensive, the Germans were able to use long-range aircraft to scout for the U-boats. Big flying boats took off from the French coast, circled far out over the Atlantic sea lanes, and ended their flight in Norway. There they refueled, and made the return flight on another day.

The combination of aircraft and U-boats was very effective. The aircraft sent radio reports of convoy positions, probably to a U-boat control center in France, and the U-boat wolf-packs were moved about like chessmen of war, ordered to positions where they could intercept the convoys.

One of the first steps in beating the U-boat, was the knocking of these scouting seaplanes out of the sky. That was a job for aircraft.

When we began to be able to use ships plus planes, and the enemy was reduced to using ships (U-boats) alone, the first step toward victory had been taken.

The U-boat warfare was fought at sea. It was a "naval" job.

Work like this was anticipated years ago. It was foreseen that the Navy would need aircraft, lots of them, for work over the sea. It was foreseen that when that work lay relatively close to the coasts, the best planes for the job would be land-based planes.

The Navy felt that all use of aircraft over salt water, was properly "naval." But when the Navy proposed to create naval airdromes on land for combat (rather than training) purposes, the Navy ran foul of the Army. The Army maintained that a military aircraft based on land, should and must be a part of the Army Air Force. The Army maintained that it was quite immaterial where that plane fought its battles or did its bombing.

BACK IN the salad days of air power, aviation enthusiasts were men of strong convictions, particularly about academic points. As a matter of fact, back at that time, most strong-minded aeronauts were ready to scrap the Navy altogether, and the Army too, and control everything by an all-pervading air power. Echoes of these extreme voices are still heard.

When theory was cast aside, and we were at last confronted by the harsh realities of war, the men who had to fight and win that war, forgot bull-neckedness.

To fight the U-boat, the United States Navy borrowed air power from the Army Air Force, and used it side by side with naval planes and blimps. Seaplanes shared the job with land planes. Carrier-based aircraft did things land-based aircraft couldn't do—and vice versa.

In Britain, the "Coastal Command" was strengthened at the expense of "Bomber Command." Then "Coastal Command" was put under naval control, as a step toward unifying the anti-submarine job (just as the Army aviation used to fight U-boats in our part of the U-boat theater, operated under naval control, though the Army retained administration). "Bomber Command" didn't like the loss of a percentage of its precious air power—but the U-boat had to be stopped, and that was that.

The U-boat was stopped by cutting through all differences of uniform and organization—by creating a new kind of Allied sea power in the Atlantic, through the teamwork of a complete conglomerate of forces. British, Canadian, American—plus Norwegian, Polish and French . . . ships, army aircraft, naval aircraft, air force aircraft—

It all added up to sea power. It is the new sea power, born in travail and proven in action. Nothing less is sea power, nowadays. Naval strength is only one element of it. Aerial strength is another.

No two sea areas are alike. With geographical modifications, the same thing is being proven in the Mediterranean. The airman is the sailor's partner in modern "naval" warfare. But the airman's power does not stop at the coasts!

Drafting Women

There is no manpower shortage as long as workers lay off two days a week, but work Saturdays to get pay and a half; there is no shortage while six million young men are deferred, no shortage while strikers stop work because our leader is afraid to stop them and no shortage as long as offices and our streets are full of men of all ages. It is one more case of mismanagement.

Many of us are watching official Washington to see how long Lewis' miners will run away with the rights of American people at home and on the fighting front. Many are watching the pernicious movement through the Austin-Wadsworth bill to draft women, while Lewis stands guard on able-bodied slackers indorsed by him.

Why is Lewis permitted to defer settlement of the coal strike until October, when cold starts and need of fuel increases? Shame on such leaders, who fear to protect the people yet exploit the women!

Are we "dumb driven cattle" or are we women of free America, doing our part to win this war men started! They have taken our husbands, brothers, sons and grandsons; left us the whole burden at home alone; now they plan to drag us out of these homes where we have a full-time job of cooking, cleaning, washing, ironing, sewing, baby tending, often bearing, gardening and with as much war work squeezed in as possible.

The passing of this bill to draft women will be the last straw.

AN INDIGNANT AMERICAN.

Cradle Suffrage

I have read with interest your editorial in the August 11 Post under the above heading.

It would appear that we could not be much worse off if suffrage were given at birth or at a time, as you say, when able to scribble a cross. Certainly those of us over 21 and who have had suffrage for a number of years cannot claim that we have done much to rectify the ills of the world. Frankly speaking, I think any of us with even the slightest perception must admit we have made a terrible mess of things, both in politics and economics. In fact, personally, I cannot possibly see how the inhabitants of the cradle could make any worse mess of it.

Maybe Georgia is leading the way if only, as you suggest, some State would take the franchise away from those who have made such a mess of it heretofore.

World Peace

The columns of the columnists, special articles in the press and the organization of specific groups reveal some interest in planning for a new postwar world. It is interesting to note that most of the proposals for the rehabilitation of nations are based upon the idea that democracy will be universal; that all peoples shall be free and untrammeled; that there will be no discrimination relative to race, color or creed. Dictators will vanish, the peoples will have votes and every nation will be able to elect a Congress and a Franklin Delano Roosevelt of its own. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt may be elected as a new President of Liberia. Nazism and Fascism will be dead, but it is probable that Communism will survive.

But who is going to decide and establish these things? We may reasonably assume that the war will eventually be won by the Allied Nations. What then? Great Britain, the United States and Russia will stand as conquerors on the battlefield of Europe. What voice will dominate the ensuing conference?

The way to permanent peace lies in a full recognition of the blindness and arrogance that marked our conduct after the last war. We must make no separate peace with the enemy this time. We must no longer stand aloof from any efforts to establish permanent peace and the rehabilitation of the world. World affairs, of which we are a part, call for world-wide supervision and America must give her adherence and strongest support to the establishment of a World Supreme Court provided with authority and arms to enforce its decisions so that the world may be governed, at least with regard to world affairs, just as a progressive civilized democratic country is governed today.

Movie Prices

I wish your paper would register a protest against the increased admission prices the downtown movies are exacting.

Some of the patrons, who are parents of small children, could manage to attend only once a month before the price raise. With crowds to capacity, one would think the regular prices would be sufficient.

Are they making the civilians make up for the reduced rates to men in uniform?

Does OPA approve this uncalled for increase?

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

Lines To The Alva

("The gunboat Plymouth, torpedoed off the Carolinas, was formerly the Alva, 3-million-dollar Vanderbilt yacht."—News item.)

Once gleaming beauty of the peaceful seas,
Pristine and regal, born for soft, smooth ways;
A flashing symbol of great luxuries—
A yacht designed for tranquil, lazy days . . .
And now a shattered thing with ghastly wounds—
A battered hulk upon the ocean floor—
A mild, great lady who went out of bounds
And died a gallant scrapper in a war!

II

The Alva! . . . How her name shone in the news
When all the world was free from slimy hate!
How oft we read of some gay, carefree cruise
When no one dreamed of her impending fate!
She was the glamour girl of yachting magazines;
Society observed her every move;
The newsreels played her up mid tropic scenes . . .
Before she died, a scrapper "in the groove"!

III

To cruise a tranquil world in style de luxe—
To ring with merry laughter and with song—
To know the duchesses and all the dukes—
And hear the rumba dance-tunes linger long . . .
For this was she turned out a few years back,
The dream ship of a famous millionaire;
None sensed the lady would a wallop pack
And go down fighting in a wolf-packs' lair.

IV

To take her leisure on far waters blue;
To give some time to scientific aims—
(This, too, the lady found the time to do);
But all such stuff was just like playing games,
Compared to what her destiny decreed . . .
Bold sorties out where dark assassins lay—
Long nights with death about on every watch . . .
Then frightful sounds where once was, oh, so gay—
And finally a bloody, spar-strewn patch.

V

The Alva! I remember her so well
Each winter by Miami's causeway fair . . .
I see her shining now, and hear her bell . . .
And note the whiteness of her flashing there!
Immaculate, unscratched from stem to stern,
Aloof and with much hauteur in her eye . . .
Yet waiting for Ol' Davie's dice to turn
And call on her to battle and to die!

VI

Now muck through every stateroom leaves its mark
And through the portholes puzzled fishes play—
And there's a gaping wound through which the sharks
Have ample room to weave and twist and sway;
Here's to you, Alva, game, bold fighting lass—
A heroine, not just a glamour gal!
The men on fighting ships all lift a glass
And say, "Here's to a sweetheart and a pal!"

Washington has issued a new list of nondeferable occupations and it includes all race-track people. Nobody who has ever argued with a mutuels clerk over a wrong ticket will contest the claim that these fellows have terrific fighting capacities.

Book agents, ballyhoo men, fishing and hunting guides and actors' agents are also put on the nondeferable list. If the Army is looking for doggedness, book agents will prove a find. Fishing guides? Well, yes and no. Even if a fishing guide knew where the big ones among the enemy were to be taken, he would be pretty slow coming across.

But actors' agents? Oh, man! If the Army or Navy win a battle about which an actors' agent has even made a slight suggestion, the agent will demand his commission.

Ticket takers, too, are now nondeferable. They should be a help in any war. The enemy can get by almost anybody at times, but can you imagine anybody getting by a ticket taker without credentials?

Neurotic Confined

I am writing in answer to a letter written by G. T. Martin, who represents the irate residents of Anacostia. Behold, the champion of peace and quiet, he who questions the operating rules of two of the largest railroads in the country. There are 20 different signal blasts in the book of rules, all of which have a separate meaning, and I have never found the particular one which is used for, as you state, to call the firemen from the pub. Perhaps the companies should post a sign entering the district which you so aptly describe, "Quiet demanded, neurotic confined in this district, if a noise is made he threatens to dump your train in the river."

Production Letdown

By William T. Shenkel

Not Due To Complacency

WHATEVER THE reasons may be for the failure of war production to reach the scheduled goals during the last couple of months, it is growing increasingly clear that public complacency played only a minor part, if indeed it was a factor at all.

Recent surveys made by governmental and other responsible agencies indicate that Washington's fears lest Allied war front victories would cause a home front letdown have been unfounded up to now. Actually, the public seems to be anticipating a longer war than do some of the officials who feared the public reaction to victory.

To determine the exact reason why output has leveled off, War Production Board regional men recently conducted a survey of 600 war plants. They found, to their surprise, that the chief complaint of 60 per cent of the manufacturers was lack of manpower to increase production. Next in order of their importance in the production letdown was shortage of materials and critical component parts, and design changes dictated by the armed services. Such factors as absenteeism, strikes, and production slowdowns—the sort of thing that would indicate complacency—were far down on the list.

ANOTHER LESS tangible factor in the Nation's production troubles, and one which may become more serious if steps are not taken to remedy it, is the risk, real or fancied, which a lot of war materials manufacturers are taking. Many companies are handling Government contracts a great deal larger than their total capitalization. It is not inconceivable that a 10 per cent mistake or loss on a contract would wipe out the company in some cases. Under conditions like that, a manufacturer is likely to play the game pretty close to the belt on inventories, with a resulting slowdown at times for lack of materials.

A somewhat related problem is that of contract termination. Any long delay in settling up on such huge contracts when the war finally ends could easily ruin a firm.

Now that they believe they have their fingers on the reasons for the production difficulties, WPB officials feel they have their job half licked. They don't see much chance of making up the lost production of the last couple of months, but they have hopes of bringing output a whole lot closer to the schedules. For this reason, Donald Nelson is looking to the future with a lot of assurance and there is a possibility that he'll take his long-delayed trip to Britain this fall. And unlike a lot of WPB men who have gone abroad, he'll be back.

Actually, the production troubles of the last couple of months haven't been as drastic as some statements would indicate. War output did not slump, contrary to the popular belief. It merely didn't increase as much as had been expected. That loss of production was important, of course, but it doesn't mar the truly great production job the home front has done.

Once before in this war, public apathy was said to be a reason why the United States couldn't meet its war production goals. That has now been disproved many times over by the torrent of material flowing to the fronts. The current claims that the public has grown complacent appear to be meeting the same fate.

work at unaccustomed tasks all contribute to movement from job to job. This may be reduced by the newly tightened manpower rules.

The Gallup Poll . . .

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 19.—One provision of the Connally-Smith Act to which labor union leaders strenuously object is the provision forbidding unions to contribute money to political parties.

When Congress convenes next month union leaders will undoubtedly seek the repeal of this as well as other parts of the act. If Congress reflects the will of the people, however, the unions will face an uphill fight to remove that particular provision.

A survey of public opinion reveals that the outlawing of union campaign donations is approved by an overwhelming majority. In fact, the public is more strongly in favor of this feature of the Connally-Smith Act than it is of the similar provision in the Hatch Act which forbids business corporations to donate money to political parties. Both reforms are approved by a heavy vote.

The country's reaction was measured in an Institute survey in which voters were asked two questions, as follows:

"Do you think labor unions should or should not be allowed to give money to campaign funds of political parties?"

Should Not	65
Undecided	18

"Do you think business corporations should or should not be allowed to give money to campaign fund of political parties?"

Should Not	59
Undecided	18

It is significant that the rank and file of voters in the Democratic Party, whose coffers have been greatly aided in the past by union contributions, are almost as much in favor of the Connally-Smith ban on such contributions as the Republicans are.

Labor Union Contributions

	Republicans	Democrats
Should Be Permitted	14%	20%
Should Not	70	61
Undecided	16	19

The rank and file of the two parties also see eye to eye on the outlawing of corporate donations to political campaigns, as the following table shows:

Business Corp. Contributions

	Republicans	Democrats
Should Be Permitted	23%	24%
Should Not	60	57
Undecided	17	19

However much the leaders in the labor movement may oppose the Connally-Smith ban, the rank and file of union members are apparently satisfied to let it stand.

The vote of union members included in the poll is as follows:

	Union Members
Unions Should Contribute Funds to Parties	24%
Should Not	58

National Income Put at 143 Billion

The Commerce Department, reporting that national income reached "the unprecedented annual rate" of 143 billion dollars in the first six months of this year, estimated last night that Americans will have nearly 37 billion dollars of 1943 income left over at the end of the year, even after they've paid their taxes.

Writing in the department's monthly "Survey of Current Business," George Jaszi of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce said such net savings "include windfalls . . . and . . . exceed the amount of voluntary saving which constitutes an offset against inflation."

WPA Orders All Frills Off Bathing Suits

The frills have got to come off mittens and mufflers, swimming suits and sweaters. To conserve materials, the War Production Board last night ordered all knitted outer garments standardized for the duration.

CHAPTER XVII

Moscow Dateline

By Henry C. Cassidy

Germans Caught In Own Trap

A great people, or a strong system, is one that can undergo such a test, as the battle of Moscow, know the danger and rise above it. That, Moscow did. Its nerves were steadied by a supreme display of calmness and confidence on the part of its leaders. On November 7 they went through the ritual observance of the twenty-fourth anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution almost under the eyes of the Germans.

On the eve of the anniversary, the Moscow Soviet called its traditional meeting. The Mayakovsky subway station, instead of the Bolshoi Theater, was the scene of the meeting. But the important thing was that it was held and that Stalin spoke.

HENRY C. CASSIDY

The next morning, the Red army paraded on Red Square. Again it was not a foolhardy display. Just as the Moscow Soviet had gone underground for its meeting, so the Red army went through Red Square in 13 minutes, starting at 8 a. m., three hours before the regular time. But it did hold its parade.

Stalin stood atop Lenin's tomb, muffled to the throat in his long, unadorned greatcoat and wearing his khaki kepi with the little five-pointed red star and the gold-crossed hammer and sickle above the brim. He spoke quietly into a microphone that carried his voice to the amplifiers on the Kremlin wall and sent it reverberating across Red Square.

"It is in strenuous circumstances that we are today celebrating the twenty-fourth anniversary of the October Revolution. The perfidious attack of the German brigands and the war which has been forced upon us have placed our country in jeopardy," he said. "We have temporarily lost a number of regions, the enemy has appeared at the gates of Leningrad and Moscow."

No more did he mention the battle of Moscow. Instead, he went on to point out that the Soviet Union had been in even greater difficulty before, in 1918, when three-quarters of the country was occupied, the Russians had no allies, no army, and faced a shortage of food, clothing, and arms, yet emerged victorious. Now, he said, the Soviet position was far better, with the country richer, supported by allies, and defended by a strong army.

Here Stalin, the military genius, made one of his few military miscalculations. Before Russia was invaded, he had overestimated the power of the Balkans to form a front against Germany. Now, he underestimated the power of the Germans to carry on the war.

Forecasts Hitler's End

"The enemy is not so strong as some frightened little intellectuals imagine," he said. "The devil is not so terrible a he is painted. Another few months, another half year, perhaps another brief year, and Hitler Germany is bound to burst beneath the weight of its crimes."

There, Stalin was wrong. A year later, the Germans were to be laying siege to Stalingrad. But they were defeated before Moscow, and Stalin's confidence was an important factor in that defeat.

Nine days later, the battle was on again. The Germans started their second general offensive against Moscow November 16. The great armies collided, the plan and counter-plan started working.

The Germans struck their first blow on the Russian right flank. The third and fourth tank armies attacked in the Volokolamsk sector and farther north toward the Moscow Sea, the artificial body of water forming part of the Moscow-Volga canal system forty miles north of the capital. The panzer divisions drove the Russians behind the Volga, north of the Moscow Sea, and covered their own left flank under this great lake.

Then the offensive spread southward. Part of the German left wing descended on Moscow through Klin, Solnechnogosk, and Istra; part carried out the encircling maneuver through Yakhroma and Dimitrov toward Zagorsk.

Foe Nears Capital

The Germans hit the Russian left flank November 18, when the second tank army attacked southeast of Tula toward Kashira and Riazan. Part of this force pushed up toward Moscow, cutting the Tula-Serpukhov highway, reaching Venev and approaching Kashira; part struck through Stalinogorsk and Mikhailov toward Riazan and Kolomna, to complete the encirclement.

In the center the Germans broke through in the Narofominsk sector, penetrating the Russian defense 12 to 15 miles, carrying their advanced forces within 25 miles of the capital.

So far the German plan seemed to be succeeding. But the Russian plan also was in full operation. It called, in the first phase, for a stubborn defense. What this meant was exemplified on November 16, the first day of the German offensive, in the Volokolamsk sector, by one of the grandest acts of heroism of the war.

Maj. Gen. I. V. Panfilov, a dapper little fellow who had been military commissar of the middle-Asiatic Khirgiz Republic, defended the Volokolamsk-Moscow highway with the 316th Red Army Infantry Division, later to become the Eighth Guards Infantry Division. General Panfilov died in the field. Twenty-eight of his troops, isolated at one point, died in their trenches. But they exacted, as the price of their lives, 18 enemy tanks. And they checked the Germans.

The four Moscow Communist divisions went into action in the first lines. They had had little training, there were not enough automatic guns to go around, but they sacrificed their bodies to the defense. Their losses were horrible, but their resistance was strong. In sheer desperation, they delayed the Germans, while in the rear and on the flanks, other forces were gathering.

Berlin Misguided

Those were bright days for the Germans. They had estimated the maximum strength of the Red army at 330 divisions. They had counted that number, they thought, in defeat. Now, before them appeared a few ragged new divisions of hastily mobilized workers, fighting with the spirit of demons but without the arms, training, or experience of regular troops. The Germans thought the end was in sight. Berlin editors were advised, December 2, to leave space on their front pages to announce the fall of Moscow.

During the first week of December, the Germans reached their farthest points of advance, cutting the Moscow-Volga canal to the north at Dimitrov, spreading south through Istra, Zvenigorod, and Narofominsk and looping around Tula, north almost to Kashira and east to Mikhailov and Yerifan. The nearest they came to Moscow was the outskirts of the little Moscow-Volga canal port Khimki, 5 miles north of Moscow, connected with the capital by a commuters' bus line.

Stalin, at that moment of crisis, was in personal command of the defense. Lieut. Gen. K. K. Rokossovsky, hard-pressed in the Istra Lakes sector, received a telephone call: "Stalin speaking. Report your situation." The general outlined his position. "Hold firm, we'll help you," was the answer. Maj. Gen. P. A. Belov, moving into position in the Kashira sector, was called to the telephone, told by the same voice to liquidate the enemy breakthrough at Venez. Other generals, all along the front, had similar experiences.

Fresh Troops Arrive

In the meantime, regularly, as often as every quarter of an hour, trains were passing along railway lines to the front, carrying fresh young troops, dressed in warm winter uniforms and armed to the teeth with modern automatic weapons.

Inside and outside the German armored claws, these reserves stiffened the Russian resistance. The Germans began to scratch vainly for ground. Their left arm was pinned down on the Moscow-Volga canal. Their center was blocked east of Narofominsk. Their right arm was stopped before Kashira. They dangled awkwardly, in danger. The Russians' hour to strike, with their full force, had come.

The Red army launched its counteroffensive on December 6. By December 11, it had achieved these results:

The German flanks were broken, their center rolled back, their campaign ruined. They started their retreat.

In the battle of Moscow, from November 16 to December 10, the Soviet high command estimated the Red army killed more than 85,000 Germans, captured or destroyed 1434 tanks, 5416 vehicles, 575 field guns, 339 mortars and 870 machine guns.

The Germans were caught in a trap of their own making. They had made a mistake they were to repeat a year later at Stalingrad. The Allies had often been criticized for doing "too little, too late." The Germans undertook "too much, too soon."

Moscow was saved.

Philippine Rescue Near

Quezon So Predicts

By the Associated Press

President Manuel Quezon of the Philippines, 65 years old yesterday, sent a birthday message to his people saying 'the time of redemption is not far off."

Exiled and long ill, Quezon took heart from President Roosevelt's pledge in a speech last week that the Philippine Republic shall be established once Japan's power is destroyed.

Mr. Roosevelt added to that pledge yesterday, saying in a birthday message to Quezon, "I am certain that in the not too distant future your country and people will be freed from our common enemy."

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who saw first hand the heroism of Filipinos at Bataan and Coregidor, sent a message asking God's blessings for Quezon and adding: "May he preserve you for that coming great birthday of the Philippine republic."

From Chiang Kai-shek, China's generalissimo, came "best wishes for your personal welfare and the prosperity of your nation."

The Quezon family is at Saranac Lake, N. Y., where the Philippine President is recuperating from an illness.

Quezon replied to President Roosevelt's message that he was "overjoyed" by its assurance and he told MacArthur that "I am praying for the day when I may join you again in our triumphant return to the Philippines."

In his broadcast to the islands, Quezon suggested that if any one there takes seriously the promise of Japan to grant independence, he should examine the Japanese pattern for "independence" in Korea, Manchuria and occupied China.

Plane Plant Output Probe Opens Today

Chairman Truman (Democrat) of Missouri, of the Senate's National Defense Investigating Committee, will open public hearings today on the output of the Wright Aeronautical Corp. at Lockland, Ohio, near Cincinnati. Sessions will be held in the Federal Courthouse in Cincinnati. The Truman committee charged in a report released early in July that the Lockland plant, subsidiary of Curtiss-Wright Corp. producing engines for Army planes, had turned out defective units.

Living Cost No. 1 Cry

Urban Area Price Protests Mount

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Demands for immediate Administration action to further cut living costs were heard at the Capitol yesterday as white-collar protests against increased prices kicked back on Congress.

Returning members, particularly from urban districts, reported high living costs the No. 1 theme in most home sectors. Members were hearing from fixed-salary constituents and passing on complaints to Government agencies.

Two symptomatic developments:

1. Representative Adolph J. Sabath (Democrat) of Illinois, chairman of the House Rules Committee, wrote War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes he had made a personal investigation of retail prices of fruits and vegetables "and I say without hesitation that the prices charged in stores are not only outrageous, but criminal."

Taking the Stump

2. Spokesmen for the Congressional Committee for Protection of Consumers, composed of some 50 urban Congressmen, said their key members are taking the stump against price increases during the recess, and will renew their drive for price rollbacks in Congress next month.

War Mobilizer Byrnes has promised a substantial reduction in the cost of actual necessities, in connection with the Administration's forthcoming food plans, but the program is expected to revive the issue of direct food subsidies, on which Congress is still divided.

As opposed to urban demands for price cuts, farm groups, usually dominant in Congress, will renew their fight on price rollbacks and subsidies.

Resistance Urged

In his letter to Byrnes, Representative Sabath urged the War Mobilizer to resist "the demands of the so-called agricultural leaders to increase prices which are now absolutely unjustified."

Sabath charged that the farm-labor shortage "is not anywhere near as critical as is publicized," and asserted, "The hue and cry that farmers must be encouraged cannot be taken in good faith because you and I know that they are growing all they can in view of the already high prices."

To Prevent Gouging

"It is my sincere hope," the Illinoisan wrote Byrnes, "that immediate steps will be taken to relieve the consuming public, especially the 20 millions of white-collar workers whose wages have not been increased, and to prevent further gouging by avaricious and unpatriotic groups."

In addition to his complaint that fruit and vegetable prices are way out of line, the House Rules Chairman said that "exorbitant prices being charged for meals in hotels and restaurants is deserving of immediate attention."

"I know," he told Byrnes, "that the (restaurant) prices are from 50 to 75 per cent higher per order than six months ago, with portions reduced at least 50 per cent."

Strike Menaces Air Training At West Point

By the Associated Press

West Point, N. Y., Aug. 19.—A strike of 200 workers at West strike of 800 workers and at an auxiliary field at Galeville threatened to interrupt flight training of the United States Military Academy aviation cadets, officials said today.

Col. A. B. Jones of the Corps of Engineers issued a statement in New York stating that the strike was called by the Building Trades Council of Newburgh, N. Y., and that "it was intimated that they desired the district engineer force," a contractor at Montgomery Airport, nearby, "to enter into a union agreement." The union could not be reached for comment.

The strike, involving principally operating engineers, teamsters and chauffeurs, which began Tuesday, was holding up completion of paving projects and other war contracts in the vicinity, academy officials said.

Colonel Jones called the strike "a clear violation of the agreement of July 22, 1941," between Government defense construction agencies and the construction trades department of the American Federation of Labor, which he said provided that "there shall be no stoppage of work on account of jurisdictional disputes or for any other cause . . . "

Maj. Gen. Francis B. Wilby, academy superintendent, said if the work was stopped any length of time the war effort would be seriously affected because of interruption of the cadet flight training program.

Bovingdon Ouster Test Seen

Court action to test the legality of the dismissal of John Bovingdon from a job as principal economic analyst of the Office of Economic Warfare may be taken, according to a statement of the United Federal Workers, CIO, Local 203, yesterday, following a conference with Director Leo T. Crowley who has refused reinstatement of the economist.

Crowley insisted, the union statement said, that he had not intended to yield to "anybody's smear or charges" when he dismissed Bovingdon and that he actually never received a request by Congressman Dies to investigate the case.

Answering Crowley's contention that OEW's job was too important to be jeopardized by any public controversy, the statement claimed the procedure followed in the case "threatened to destroy the morale of Federal workers, undermined their job security and, unwittingly, strengthened the hand of Martin Dies."

Louise B. Gerrard, local representative, said that Crowley had promised the union another conference after his return from Wisconsin, where he expects to seek conversations on the matter with Supreme Court Justice Douglas and Senator La Follette, both known for their interest in civil liberty cases.

In a leaflet to Federal employes the union will urge mass protests, it was said, and press for a hearing without prejudice of all insinuations brought against Bovingdon.

Airline Head Warns Against Postwar Errors

Three pitfalls into which the aviation industry may tumble in the immediate postwar world were described yesterday by C. Bedell Munro, president of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines, speaking at the Junior Board of Commerce luncheon at the Annapolis Hotel.

The dangers to the industry, he said, are "creation of an air transport monopoly in the foreign field, which would fence in not only our own horizons but our progress; the projected invasion of the air world by surface carriers seeking a gigantic monopoly in the field of national transportation; and the growth of destructive, mushroom airlines without adequate Federal control."

"We know that in the postwar period that unless an adequate program is formulated, employes of ours now in the armed forces will have to replace many of those serving now loyally on the home front," Monro said.

"With the cessation of war contracts, commercial activities must be returned at once not only to prevent levels but far beyond to supply obs for employes now in the services and for present employes in both military and commercial phases.

"This program can be carried out only if suspended services are restored and only if equipment is made available for greater than prewar operation. We have then accomplished but one step in the maintenance of our airlines, because this will take care only of former and present employes.

HAIL HILDEGARDE! The Statler will present Hildegarde (for our money, the most marvelous songbird of them all) for two weeks in its Embassy Room, beginning September 7, says Manager Fred G. Kenny. Bob Grant and his orchestra will come along with Hildegarde. This is Hildegarde's first nitery engagement in Washington outside of a one night appearance at a "champagne and orchids opening" at the Mayflower that cost that hostelry around $1500.

More jive than has ever been heard under one roof in our town is being turned loose at the Brown Derby. It's that combo of Three Cats and a Fiddle with the Three Loose Nuts.

BROWN DERBY DAYS are rolling along at the Lotus. It's a picture of Naughty Nineties gallantry when the moustachioed and derbied Melodaires prance with the bustled and bonneted Lotus Buds, sing "Tell Me, Pretty Maiden." For a romantic, teary touch, one of the Buds yodels "Curse of an Aching Heart" while the Melodaires give barber shop chords.

GLEN ECHO FRONT. Sammy Ferro, the mad trombonist of Paul Kain's Glen Echo Orchestra, will soon be in uniform and is going to try for the Coast Guard. Pianist Ken Foy is now a sailor boy and drummer Don Lamond is a yard bird. They've been replaced by Ross Del Roy and Gene Kolben, both ace swing men.

Harold Nagel, new maestro at the Carlton, was sent to London by his family to study English commercial methods. He did most of his studying after dark, wound up as bandleader at the Cosmopolitan Club.

HOW MASKS ARE BORN. Quantities of compliments have been given to dancers Fred and Ann Carroll, now at the Casino Royal, on the satirical movie star masks they wear in their impersonations. These masks are made by a young Pennsylvania artist, Violet Clarke, discovered by the Carrolls. She's now working on Boyer, Jerry Colonna and Carmen Miranda masks for a new Carroll act.

AN IMPRESARIO-GREETER is Jack Mason, now in charge of the Roosevelt Hotel's Victory Room. Manhattanish Mason has had years in the theater both as actor and executive; he often lends his talents to camp shows and bond rallies. Last week he was emcee at the Civilian Defense Rally at the Griffith Stadium, had the pleasant task of introducing Tommy Reynolds' band from the Victory Room which, you may be sure, he did with a flourish.

All good Virginians will be delighted to know that Eddy Rogers, accomplished violinist-maestro now at Del Rio, is a Norfolk boy. His band comes to Washington from a tour of the Midwest.

LOVELY TO LOOK AT. Like Carmen Miranda without the fruit chapeau is Roberta, chic seeress of Treasure Island. She goes in for high hair-dos, splashy blouses of tropical prints with long white skirts. . . . Warbler Helene Peters now at the Old New Orleans, wears turquoise earrings and necklace with her blue and black chiffon gown while the blue ostrich feathers in her hair suggest that she's all ready to be presented at court. . . . Prettiest creature we've ever seen at a piano is Kay Arden of the Neptune Room. Lads in uniform are always giving their requests to her in person instead of handing them to the waitress. . . . A lovely eyeful will be missing from the Anchor Room after September 4. Georgia and her partner, Jerry, close on that date. . . .

Mayfair's Dardanelle wears gabardine suits on the hottest days, looks cool as a rose. Promotion Manager Jack Coleman, rubbing his hands, says it's because Mayfair's air is changed 18 times an hour. . . . The prettiest blonde in Burt's Trans-Lux is no hostess. She's Margaret Lopatin, the boss lady. . . . Dark-eyed Bee Carter of Myles Hallett's band on the Starlight Roof, likes picture gowns with only a scrap of bodice and billowing skirts.

GOURMETS' DEPARTMENT. The Troika's stuffed breast of chicken a la Kieff is what you might call a dream dish. . . . And what Oriental patience it must require to prepare the tid-bits of boned fried chicken at Ruby Foo's. . . . Owner Joe Moss of Restaurant "400", has invented a new dessert —rice pudding topped with chocolate ice cream.

Cool Weather, No Rain Forecast Here for Today

Continued cool weather today was predicted last night by the Weather Bureau. No rain was forecast.

Following another day of lowered temperatures yesterday, when the high was 81 at 4 p. m. and 5 p. m., and the low was 61 at 6:55 a. m., today, if the prediction holds true, will be the fourth straight day in which the temperatures failed to increase to uncomfortable heights.

Yesterday's high of 81 was made more temperate by a humidity of 36 per cent at 2:30 and during the remainder of the afternoon. The highest humidity yesterday, which was low as against recent days, was 55 per cent at 8:30 a. m.

90% of WACS in Africa Elect to Reenlist

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, Aug. 19 (AP).—Nine out of 10 WACS stationed in the North African theater elected to reenlist in the Regular Army when their auxiliary status was abolished, it was officially disclosed today.

The majority of those returning to the United States resigned because of deaths in their families necessitating their presence, Capt. Westray Battle Boyce said.

Ancient Stones Of All Hallows Arrive in D. C.

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Staff Writer

Stones from the ruins of All Hallows Barkingside-by-the-Tower, ancient London church that survived the great fire of 1666 but crumbled under the Nazi "blitz" of 1940, arrived at the Washington Cathedral yesterday.

The stones will be placed in the Washington Cathedral fabric when new additions are made, fulfilling a plan initiated last year by the Rev. P. B. Clayton, All Hallows vicar, when he preached at the Cathedral. He is now chaplain on a British oil tanker.

Samuel Pepys watched the great London fire from the steeple of All Hallows, and William Penn was baptized there in 1644. A college of priests was built there through efforts of Richard III.

"About 2 in the morning," penned Pepys in his diary, "my wife calls me up, and tells me of new cryes of fire, it being come to Barking Church, which is at the bottom of our lane (Sethinge Lane)."

Pepys told of the fire's effect on the church and how he climbed up its tower after making sure his own home nearby was safe.

". . . it having only burned the dyall of Barking Church, and part of the porch and there quenched," he wrote. "I up to the top of Barking steeple, and there saw the saddest sight of desolation that I ever saw; everywhere great fires, oyle-collars and brimstone, and other things burning."

This was not the original church tower, or steeple, but one built in 1659 to replace the original. The church got its name from the ancient convent of Barking in Essex, to which it once belonged. Its proximity to the Tower of London made it important as the scene of important civic ceremonies.

Wellesley to Lose Its Feminine Touch

Wellesley, Mass., Aug. 19 (AP).—The 73-year-old exclusively feminine complexion of Wellesley College will take on a masculine tinge about October 1.

Two hundred male supply officers will be transferred on that date from the Naval Supply Corps School at Harvard University, because of an overflow, and they will take over some of the most time-honored quarters at Wellesley.

If you are on your feet all day—walking the floor or standing in front of a machine—just sprinkle Allen's Foot-Ease on your feet and into your shoes every morning. This soothing powder really brings quick relief from the discomfort of tired, burning feet. When feet tend to swell and shoes feel pinched from all day standing, try Allen's Foot-Ease to relieve this congestion. Also acts to absorb excessive perspiration and prevent offensive foot odors. If you want real foot comfort, be sure to ask for Allen's Foot-Ease—the easy, simple way to all-day standing and walking comfort. Get it today at all druggists.

If You Get Up Nights You Can't Feel Right
If you have to get up 3 or more times a night your rest is broken and it's no wonder if you feel old and run down before your time. Functional rather than organic or systemic Kidney and Bladder trouble often may be the cause of many pains and symptoms simply because the Kidneys may be tired and not working fast enough in filtering and removing irritating excess acids, poisons and wastes from your blood. So if you get up nights or suffer from burning, scanty or frequent passages, leg pains, backache, or swollen ankles, due to non-organic or non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles, you'll make no mistake in trying the prescription called Cystex. Because it has given such joyous happy relief in so high a percentage of such cases, Cystex is sold under a guarantee of money back on return of empty package unless completely satisfactory to you. Cystex costs only 35c at druggists and the guarantee protects you.

Asthma Mucus Loosened For Thousands By 1st Dose of Mendaco
If you suffer from choking, gasping, wheezing, recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma, here is good news for you. A prescription called Mendaco perfected by a physician in his private practice contains ingredients which start circulating thru the blood within a very short time after the first dose, thus reaching the congested Bronchial tubes where it usually quickly helps liquefy, loosen and remove thick strangling mucus (phlegm), thereby promoting freer breathing and more restful sleep. Fortunately Mendaco has now been made available to sufferers from recurring spasms of Bronchial Asthma thru all drug stores and has proved so helpful to so many thousands it is offered under a guarantee of money back unless completely satisfactory. You have everything to gain, so get Mendaco from your druggist today for only 60c. The guaranteed trial offer protects you.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

THE SPANISH and Nazi radio blared forth a message last weekend, which, if true, sounds very suspicious for supposedly neutral Spain. On the basis of the Axis-Spanish announcement, it would appear that Germany had established a secret bomber base in the Spanish Balearic Islands or somewhere in Spain.

What the German radio claimed was that a squadron of Nazi torpedo planes (on Friday, August 13) sank 70,000 tons of Allied shipping including two destroyers and four large merchant ships, just east of Gibraltar, as a big convoy was entering the Mediterranean.

The interesting thing about the Nazi communique was that the raid was reported made by torpedo planes. It happens that torpedo planes have a very limited radius between 300 and 400 miles. Because of the tremendous weight of the torpedo they cannot fly far; cannot spare much time hovering around in the air looking for their target. In fact some of the torpedo planes which went out to get the Bismarck were purely sacrifice planes never expected to come back.

Compared to this 300-400 mile radius, it is a full 800 miles from Gibraltar to the nearest base in France.

Big mystery, therefore, is where the Nazi torpedo planes came from. Was it the nearby Balearic Isles, or a hidden point on the coast of Spain? This is the first case in a long time that Axis torpedo planes have been able to penetrate anywhere near Gibraltar.

The Spanish radio gave further corroborating details, told how the Allied convoy was composed of 70 ships bound for Africa and how German pilots had been picked up by Spanish ships, while a German plane made an emergency landing at Aguilas.

But there was nothing to explain how German torpedo planes were able to make this record-breaking flight. So, either the Nazis have developed a new long-range torpedo plane or else Franco has given the Nazis a secret base in Spain.

NOTE: Secretary Hull recently told newsmen that he was entirely satisfied with his foreign policy, considered Franco with the United States.

Yes, We Have No Bananas

WHO GETS Mexico's bananas? While President Roosevelt is in Quebec, he might say a word to Prime Minister Mackenzie King about the question, for Canada is now getting most of the bananas that would normally come to the United States from Mexico and Guatemala.

This is because United States price ceilings have made this market less attractive.

United States fruit merchants, done out of a good product, appealed to the Office of Defense Transportation which appealed to the Interstate Commission, which issued a ban on use of the United States cars to carry freight from one foreign country to another.

This was aimed at banana cars sent from Mexico across the USA to Canada. It stopped the shipments, but not for long. Promptly, the Mexican Embassy in Washington protested to the State Department, asking relief from the ban, and Mr. Hull acted to ODT.

Shortage probably will be an agreement to limit banana shipments to Canada, cutting off the big shipments, and making more bananas available to the USA.

Jimmy Byrnes' Whiskers

FORMER JUSTICE JIMMY Byrnes went out to dinner the other night at the home of his old friend Walter Brown, taking with him the Byrnes' family pet, "Whiskers," a wire-haired terrier, which recently has been featured pictorially in Washington newspapers.

"Whiskers" was tied in the rear garden of the Brown home while the guests went in to dinner. But he protested loudly and vociferously.

"I guess we'll have to do something about 'Whiskers'," Justice Byrnes finally remarked. "He's been taking himself seriously lately. It all comes from getting his picture in the newspapers."

Capital Chaff

PEOPLE who have talked to the duPonts lately find that they are very much opposed to Wendell Willkie, consider him too progressive, but are very strong for Governor Dewey . . . Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, who has not been so keen about Willkie lately, took a trip through New England this summer and was amazed at Willkie's popularity. In that part of the country, according to Bridges, there is no question whom the Republicans want as their 1944 nominee . . . The AFL and CIO got together in Illinois recently and decided that Democratic Senator Scott Lucas' labor record was too reactionary for them. On the other hand his probable Republican opponent for reelection, Richard Lyons, was even worse. So labor groups are now looking around for an independent candidate to run for Senator in Illinois . . . Gen. Allen Gullion, efficient Provost Marshal, gets credit for the smooth operation of German-Italian prison camps in the USA.

Well-Behaved Soldiers

CAPT. George Vournas has given friends in the White House one of the finest tributes which could be paid the American Army. Writing from North Africa, he says:

"I walked home with a colonel at a late hour in a city in North Africa in control of our troops. On our way we met many unescorted women. We were particularly impressed.

"Our boys behave here as if they were on Connecticut ave. in Washington. I am sure this exemplary behavior will constitute a great national asset with these people in the future."

Merry-Go-Round

HARRY HOPKINS' brother-in-law, Frank Amie, is vigorously anti-New Deal. He has a war job in Washington . . . One of Nelson Rockefeller's best radio programs to Latin America is a news commentary by Argentine newsman Fernando Ortiz Echague, who broadcasts from New York . . . But when he criticized the Argentine government, Argentina stopped its long-wave relay of his short-wave broadcast . . . More and more women have become Washington correspondents. When Secretary of State Hull opened a recent press conference with his usual, "Good morning, gentlemen," he looked around and added, "I should say 'Good morning ladies,' too. The ladies have increased in numbers"

Smallest Gain In Area Shown By D. C. Sales

By S. Oliver Goodman

Of the 11 largest cities in this Federal Reserve District, Washington department store sales in the first seven months this year showed the smallest gain over the same 1942 period.

The sales increase for seven reporting local stores was 8 per cent as compared with the January-July period last year, according to the Richmond Reserve Bank's monthly report received here yesterday. This contrasted with a 15 per cent upturn for the Fifth Reserve District as a whole and gains in other cities ranging as high as 46 per cent.

The July sales gain in Washington was 5 per cent over the same month last year, against a 15 per cent advance for the entire Fifth Reserve District.

Individual cities' gains compared as follows:

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Local Dividends Voted

Directors of Woodward & Lothrop, local department store, have declared quarterly dividends of 50 cents a share on common stock and $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock. Both dividends are payable September 28 to stockholders of record September 16.

Directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation, Washington industrial banking firm, have declared quarterly dividends on the 6 per cent cumulative participating preferred stock, on the 7 per cent cumulative prior preferred stock, and 25 cents on the common stock. All dividends are payable September 11 to stockholders of record August 31.

Marschner Promoted

D. C. Marschner has been named acting sales promotion manager of the Shell Oil Company. He spent some time in Washington last year as a member of the committee which conducted the scrap rubber drive.

Foundry Group to Meet

W. W. Rose, executive vice president of the Gray Iron Founders Society of Washington, yesterday announced that 500 foundry executives will meet in Cincinnati on October 5 and 6 for the group's fifteenth annual convention.

U. A. L. Net Rises Sharply

United Air Lines reported yesterday for the June quarter net income of $1,170,622, equal to 75 cents a capital share, compared with $739,297, or 49 cents a share, in the second period of 1942.

W. A. Patterson, president, said the company operated nearly 11 per cent more revenue passenger miles, 74 per cent more mail ton miles and 12 per cent more express ton miles than in the June quarter of last year, despite having fewer planes due to war necessities.

The report expressed the hope that "with a continued insistent demand for additional air travel facilities" the armed forces soon would permit the allocation of more planes to commercial service.

Attention was called to United's inauguration of new, direct passenger-mail-express services between Washington, Toledo, Chicago and other cities along the company's transcontinental route to all major Pacific Coast cities.

Insurance Sales Spurt

Washington life insurance sales totaled $6,140,000 in July, an increase of 35 per cent over the total for the same month last year. Sales of ordinary policies aggregated $37,003,000 here for the first seven months this year, down 2 per cent.

Maryland and Virginia showed upturns of 41 per cent and 37 per cent, respectively, in July. Nationally, life insurance sales increased 31 per cent last month, according to the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau of Hartford, Conn.

Air Express Heavier

Northwest Airlines planes carried 104,124 pounds of air express during July, an increase of more than 2000 over June, J. W. Hutchinson, Washington district traffic manager for NWA., reported yesterday.

On the Line

Col. 'Chick' Harding's Bombardiers Thrill to Old Football Yarns Between Raids

(Editor's note: Bob Considine herewith returns to "On the Line" for a day with a special sports story from Britain.)

By Bob Considine

International News Service Staff Writer

London, Aug. 19.—The man who led the Fortress raid on Trondheim, one of the longest and most hazardous attacks of the war, was Col. Chick Harding, the Army quarterback during the golden era of football at West Point.

The tough, genial little Army flier, who looks and talks a lot like Jimmy Dykes, commands one of the big Fortress stations near here. Every time he takes his squadrons into the sky he probes a little deeper into Germany. You can be sure that when the Forts make their first raid on Berlin, Harding will be up there—pitching.

Kipling springs from one of the most remarkable sports teams of them all, the Army teams of the middle 1920's. Nearly every regular of that period has made a fine name for himself in this war. Almost daily they are bearing out the words of Knute Rockne.

Rockne's 1925 team was beaten, 27 to 0, by the Army team, and in sympathizing with his battered boys after the game the coach said, "Never mind today, you men. One of these days there's going to be another war, and those fellows who beat you today are going to fight it for you. He'll be in good hands."

Most of the players are full colonels today. Several are brigadier generals, notably Blondy Saunders, the giant tackle of that Army grid era. Saunders, who was called blondy because he had the blackest hair on the team, has won nearly every decoration the Army can offer and to that he has added the rarely bestowed Navy Cross. He is now commanding a brand new super-bomber outfit, soon to be unleashed on the enemy.

Two from the old team are captured: Moe Daly, who, when his bombers were finally destroyed in the Philippines, picked up a machine gun and joined the ground forces; and Tom Trapnell, who must have been captured while protecting the retreat of our main forces to Bataan. Art Meehan, another stalwart on those middle '20 teams was killed over a south Pacific Island.

Col. Light Horse Harry Wilson commands a medium bomber group now in action. Brig. Gen. Chuck Born commands our fighters in the Caribbean. Col. Rosy O'Donnell, after a number of hair-raising escapes from the Japs, is now a special assistant to General Arnold.

Col. Gar Davison, soon to be a general, is an outstanding engineer. Col. Bill Wood is attached to the general staff in Washington. Col. Tiny Hewitt is in action. Ed Garbisch is back in the Army and so is his teammate Bud Sprague. Two of the team's greater players—Fats Ellenger and Red Cagle—are dead.

Chick Harding recently sat up all night with his good friends, Bill Hearst, Capt. Tex McCrary, Lieut. Eric Friedheim and me, talking football. The radio in his hut headquarters moo'ed the sweetest Bing Crosby records "... Played by an Italian station to make our boys in Sicily and North Africa homesick." There was an extremely dangerous raid coming up in the morning and Chick would be in the first bomber. But he wanted to go on with the bull session. He could sleep some other time.

"Those were good days ... That 21-21 game at Soldier Field. I'll never forget that one. Navy had us 14-0 at the quarter, then we went ahead 21-14 near the end, but they scored and Tom Hamilton kicked the extra point. Never saw such kicking. He was a heluva player, that Hamilton.

"And the Syracuse game at West Point. Somebody busted Trapnell's nose early in the game. We put in Marblehead Elias to take care of the guy. Marblehead did, but somebody else took care of Marblehead. What a riot that was. I was backed up in the corner of the field, ready to take a punt, during the game, and the Syracuse cheering section's cannon got me at point-blank range, with a heavy charge of confetti. Every time you were tackled you had to cover up your face, to keep from getting knocked cold. Great fun, looking back on it.

"And those Notre Dame games were always something to look forward to. They beat us two out of three times, while I was there, but we should have won the odd game. The Four Horsemen beat us 12-6. ... I made the touchdown, somehow. Daly and Ellenger would say, 'Chick's called another dam' fool play, but let's make it work for him.' I weighed 140 then and nobody would believe I was the team's quarterback. But I was, whenever I could keep Garbisch quiet.

"We lost to Christy Flanagan's Notre Dame team, though. We should have beaten them, but they were always surprising us. We surprised them once, too. They'd always go to mass on the morning of the game. One day they showed up and found a lot of us there ahead of them. There were more Catholics on the Army team that year than there were on the Notre Dames."

Harding coached at West Point, as an assistant to Backfield Coach Red Blaik, after his graduation. He scouted Navy so much one season "that I nearly won my 'N'." In his subsequent years of service in the Army he was a great organizer for athletics at every camp where he served—and he has been all over the world. For the past year he has been hacking away the African underbrush, building American airfields. He owns the DFC for this latter work and for a record 14-hour flight from one of these African fields to Trinidad.

"They're nice to have," he said, about his decorations. "I just don't want any of them posthumously."

WASHINGTON, AUG. 20, 1943

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The Redskins have into Chicago this morning and unless memories are very short they will be wanting to whup the daylights out of the College All-Stars next Wednesday evening. The Redskins have an old score to settle.

POVICH

It's a blot on their record that a Redskin team suffered the worst beating in all the 10-year history of the Pro League Champions vs. the College All-Americans. That was in 1938, after the Redskins had won the National League title. They were licked, 28-16, by the Collegians in what still stands as the most lopsided score in the history of the series.

That was the night when Sammy Baugh's passing wasn't enough to win. In fact, Baugh was outpassed that night by Cecil Isbell, fresh out of Purdue. Isbell's aerial thrusts figured in all four of the Collegians' touchdowns. Isbell went on from there to do all right in the pro league as the passing partner of Don Hutson with the Green Bay Packers.

end

Northwestern University's stadium will be sold out for the Wednesday night contest, and Sammy Baugh's name alone is magic to sell out most any football game in Chicago. This city has seen a lot of Baugh. He's a terrific drawing card here and has been since August, 1937, when he came up from Texas Christian to pitch the All Star Collegians to a 6-6 tie with the Packers.

They saw Baugh again in Chicago that same season and this time he was a pro and that was an unforgettable game. It was the cold December afternoon when Baugh was in the Redskins' backfield and the Redskins were playing the Bears for the pro championship at Wrigley Field. Baugh won that game for the Redskins.

Here in Chicago they'll never forget the Redskins' first play from scrimmage that day. It was surprising, to say the least. Baugh was quarter-backing the team and the Redskins had the ball on their own 5-yard line. There was another pretty good football player in the Redskins' backfield, name of Cliff Battles. Baugh took the pass from center as if he were standing on the 50-yard line, faded back into the end zone, audaciously threw a pass to Battles from behind the goal line, and saw it go for 55 yards before Battles slipped on the ice and was tackled.

Sammy Baugh never had a day in football like that one. He was virtually a one-legged player in the second half, limping badly after rough treatment by the Bears. His left leg was raw from an ugly gash suffered when he was thrown on the sharp ice, but he stood out there a stoic figure and calmly threw two identical passes to Wayne Millner, each one for a touchdown, to win the game for the Redskins.

Sammy's first act in Chicago today was to visit a physician and seek help for what has been a painfully sprained back. The condition of that back will have much to do with Wednesday night's score. It will decide in great measure what happens to the Redskins this season, because in the style of play that Coach "Dutch" Bergman has installed with the Redskins, Baugh will handle the ball much more frequently than he did under Coach Ray Flaherty.

It was in Chicago that Baugh got his first initiation into the rigors of pro football. That was in the 1937 All Star-Packers game when Baugh was one of the College All-Americans. He was playing safety man, and he was carrying back a punt when he was hit by something tantamount to a load of bricks.

"It was a Green Bay tackle and he liked to have jarred my teeth out, he hit me so hard," Sammy recalls. "But he was nice. He picked me up, and then he said: 'Ain't this a heluva way to make a living, Sammy?'"

Phils Defeat Cards Aided By Errors, 6-5

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 19.—The Phillies scored four uneared runs in the sixth inning, after the side should have been retired, to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 6 to 5 before 13,733 paying customers at Shibe Park tonight.

The Cards knocked Dick Barrett out of the box in the eighth and came within one run of tying the score, but Lefty Jack Kraus came to the rescue and stopped the St. Louis attack cold.

Ray Sanders' triple and Whitey Kurowski's home run were the big wallops in the Cards' rally, each driving home two runs. Kurowski also had a double and triple.

Max Lanier, making his first start against the Phillies in his three years with the Cards, suffered the loss.

Schwitzer And Shapiro In Net Finals

Britt Schwitzer and Beryl Shapiro will battle it out tomorrow afternoon for the singles championship of the District Recreation Tournament on the 16th and Kennedy sts. courts.

Schwitzer moved into the final round with a 6—2, 6—2 victory over George Shumaker yesterday in the semifinals, and Shapiro eliminated Miles Cooper, 6—0, 6—1, to gain the other bracket. They will meet tomorrow at 2:30 p. m.

Men's doubles moved into the semifinals. Haney and Botts defeated Avon and Meininger, 6—2, 6—0; Shapiro and Kay defeated Hedding and Jenkins, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3; Gottlieb and Le Grand defeated Munez and Peabody 6—3, 7—5, and Love and Shumaker defeated Beal and Allnut, 6—1, 6—3.

The doubles semifinals will be played this afternoon at 6 p. m., with Haney and Bottts playing Shapiro and Kay, and Gottlieb and LeGrand meeting Love and Shumaker.

Women's semifinals will bring together Sara Moore and Louise Hohenthal at 3 p. m. and Mrs. David Gray and Pearl McCoy at 6 p. m.

Entries Close Today For District Meet

Singles and doubles entries for the District of Columbia tennis championships will close today at 6 p. m. at Edgemoor Club, site of the tournament, the Tennis Shop and with Harry Brinkerhoff, at the 16th and Kennedy sts. courts. Play starts Sunday.

Lieut. Johnny Van Ryn, who with Wilmer Allison, reigned supreme in national doubles play for many years, has entered the doubles teamed with Bud Chandler, formerly No. 4 nationally. Cliff Sutter, formerly ranked No. 3, is expected to enter singles and with Lieut. Dick Murphy, once ranked No. 12, will enter the doubles.

Redskins, in Chicago, Workout For First Time Since Sunday

Sammy Baugh Still Favoring Injury; Ray Ruett, V. M. I. Rookie, Also on Shelf

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Post Staff Writer

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The 30 Washington Redskins who, so they say, should beat the 75 college All-Stars in the tenth annual August grid classic next Wednesday night, took up quarters here today and ran through a light workout at Loyola University Field, their first since the squad game Sunday in San Diego.

Fifteen new faces dotted the 30-man squad, plus the Redskins' brand new coach, Dutch Bergman, who faces the toughest task of any pro coach in the past history of the pro champs-college All-Star games. In college squad this year is a conglomeration of ex-college stars, pros, servicemen, etc., as all eligibility were dropped for the war-year game.

All Redskins were in uniform for the late afternoon workout, after arriving six hours late, but two of them, Sammy Baugh and Rookie Ray Ruett, the end from V. M. I., who is a sort of a Lefty Gomez type, took it easy.

Baugh is still favoring the sacrolumbar sprain in his back which kept him out of the squad game except for four passes, and instead of whipping those in the Baugh fashion he was turning his entire body with the motion of his arm.

Whether Sammy injured his back kicking or passing is not known, and how soon it will be up to par is another question. Rest is the principal requisite with occasional treatments. His only part in the workout was obliging the photographers and jogging around the field. Ruett has a sprained ankle but will back in action soon.

Bergman has 15 members of the squad of 31 which whipped the Chicago Bears in the play-off last year. Three others have previous pro league experience, Bob Masters, who scored a touchdown against the Redskins for the Philadelphia Eagles last year, and Joe Pasque and Warren Plunkett, of the dismantled Cleveland Rams. Plunkett will join the squad tomorrow, having finished a post graduate course in engineering at University of Minnesota.

Seven of the new men are rookies with Jack Jenkins of Vanderbilt a standout in a group which includes George Washington's Frank Seho, a sub sophomore back with the Colonials last year who may stick. Three other first year men will join the team

York Clouts 24th; Tigers, Bosox Split

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 19.—Rudy York smashed his 24th homer of the season and the 11th this month as the Detroit Tigers divided a double-header with the Boston Red Sox today. The Sox stamped out a ninth inning rally to take the opener, 4 to 3, and Virgil Trucks pitched a four-hit shutout as Detroit won the nightcap, 10 to 0.

York's clout came in the eighth inning of the second game off Emmett O'Neill. He now needs eight round-trippers in 13 games to crack his own major league record for one month's production. York drove in six runs.

Manager Joe Cronin's two run pinch double in the opener led to Lefty Hal Newhouser's seventh successive defeat. Dick Newsome got good help to notch his fourth victory.

Trucks gained his 11th victory as the Tigers blasted Rookie George Woods and O'Neill for 14 hits in the nightcap.

Gordon's Double, Hemsley's Long Fly Decides After Midnight Tilt

Cleveland, Aug. 19 (AP).—For the second consecutive day, the Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees ran into extra innings, as the Yankees took a 2-to-1 decision in an after midnight game tonight.

Delayed more than an hour in the second inning by a light failure in Municipal Stadium, the game stretched to 13 innings when the Yankees scored a ninth-inning tally.

The winning tally came when Joe Gordon doubled, and eventually scored on Pinch Hitter Rollie Hemsley's long fly.

Grays Wallop Crackers, 12 to 2

The Homestead Grays had little trouble in pasting a 12-to-2 defeat on the Atlanta Black Crackers at Griffith Stadium, last night before a crowd of 7000. The Taylor men raked Ted Echols and Lefty Bunn, his successor, for 17 solid base blows.

Josh Gibson led the assult with a triple and two singles in three attempts, while Benjamin drove home four talleis and scored two himself in six appearances.

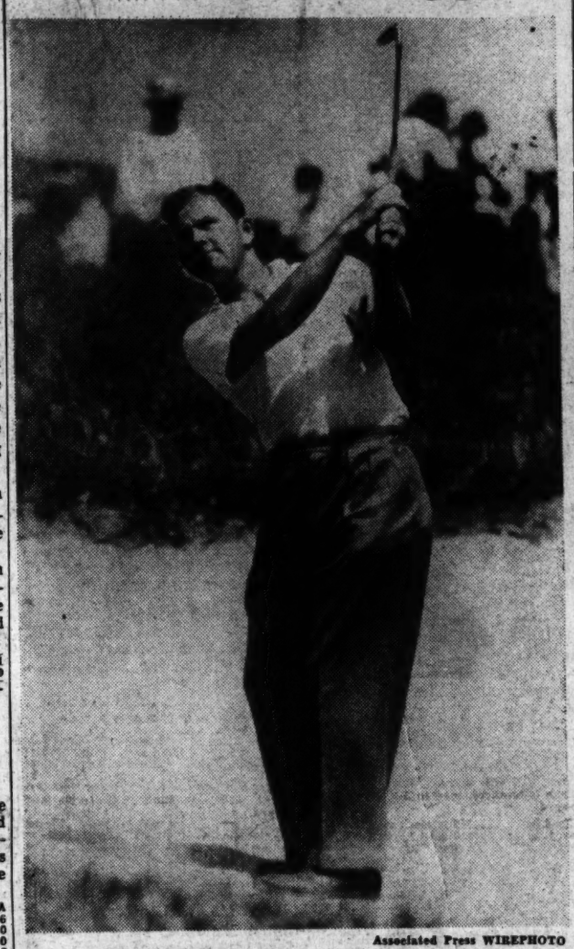
Byrd, Cochran Score In Pro-Amateur Golf



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BYRD BLASTS THE SAND—Sammy Byrd, former major league baseball player, explodes one out of a sand trap guarding the 18th green as he and his partner, Amateur Bob Cochran of St. Louis, paced the field to win the pro-amateur golf championship at Chicago yesterday.

Ex-Yankee, Tam Runner-Up, Shoot 10 Birdies and Eagle to Top Crack Field

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 19.—Snipping 11 strokes from par, the team of Sam Byrd, of Philadelphia, and Amateur Bob Cochran of St. Louis, authored a 36-hole card of 131 over the heavily-wooded Beverly Hills course today to win the pro-amateur best-ball championship.

The event, which the Chicago District Golf Association and the P. G. A. hope to make national in scope after the war, preceded the Chicago Victory National Tournament beginning tomorrow when a chosen field of 42 of the country's top pros and amateurs compete in 72 holes of medal play.

As twosomes, the cream of the available golf crop cracked the 36, 35—71 par with ease in today's best ball matches but tomorrow should be a different story. The stars will be strictly on their own over the hemmed-in fairways, which require long, accurate tee shots, and the scattering of fox-hole traps, which vexed contestants of the 1931 national amateur—the last big meet held at Beverly.

The card of Byrd, former outfielder for the New York Yankees, and Cochran, runner-up in the recent Tam o' Shanter All-America Amateur tournament, was decorated with 10 birdies, 1 eagle and but 1 bogey in the 36-holes of play. The eagle, a 3 on the 558-yard seventh hole, was made by Byrd, who dropped a 45-yard chip shot from the apron of a trap. It was the only two-under-par hole of the day, and helped give the team a 31, 33—64 in the first round for a one-stroke lead over Jug McSpaden of Philadelphia, and Sergt. Jim McHale, stationed at Baltimore.

At the 27-hole juncture, Byrd and Cochran had posted a 99 to become locked with Mike Turnesa of White Plains, N. Y., and Jim Frisina of Taylorsville, Ill., and with only a single stroke advantage over Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis. McSpaden, Tam o' Shanter champion, and Hale, former Philadelphia pro, came in with 101. But on the last nine Byrd and Cochran unleashed a 32 to clinch the title.

McSpaden and Hale registered a sensational 31, with the latter carding four birdies, for runner-up honors with a 132 aggregate. Turnesa-Frisina finished with 66, 67—133 and Revolta-Wehrle with 67, 67—134. Tony Manero of Greenwich, Conn., and Ted Payseur, Northwestern University golf coach, fell in the 134 bracket with 68, 66.

Trailing at 135 were Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, and Harold Foreman of Chicago and Lieut. Lawson Little of Hutchinson, Kans., and Steve Kovach of Tarentum, Pa.

Wow! Lookit, Guys! A Pretty Blonde To Coach Team!

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 19.—The manpower shortage led today to the appointment of Pauline Rugh, comely blonde physical instructor, as football coach for Bell Township High School at Salina, 20 miles east of Pittsburgh.

The former Penn State co-ed explained she took the post in an emergency because "we had the equipment, the boys wanted to play and there was no man available to coach them."

"The Rockne, Warner or model 'T' system?" She was asked. "Why," she gasped. "I'm going to have a system all my own. It's going to be a surprise to everyone, even myself!"

'Biggie' Goldberg Signs With Cards

Chicago, Aug. 18 (AP).—Marshall (Biggie) Goldberg sent in his contract for his fifth season with the Chicago Cardinals in the National Football League today on the eve of the Cards' departure for their Waukesha, Wis., training camp.

Leonard Lets Chicago Down With 4 Hits

Hurler Drives In Valuable Run in 7th With Single; Orval Grove Bows

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Chicago, Aug. 19—The Nats were sort of wonderful today, and beat the White Sox, 4 to 3. Wonder No. 1 was a home run by Rookie Sherrard Robertson. Another home run by Jake Early was a minor wonder. Underlining the Nats' whole performance was a four-hit pitching job by knuckle-balling Dutch Leonard.

The Nats had what it takes to win a ball game and, incidentally, it took all they had, because the White Sox suddenly came up with three runs in the eighth inning and had the tying run on base when Leonard stomped 'em out.

Robertson Hits Homer

Very unlike the Nats, the Nats launched a home-run attack against Orval Grove in the second inning to give Leonard a 3-0 lead. Rookie Robertson, swept into the lineup when Ossie Bluege reshuffled his infield, hit the first pitch he saw in the second inning for his first major league home run, a lengthy swat into the lower deck of rightfield.

That started it. Then Gerry Priddy whacked a two-bagger down the leftfield line, and then Jake Early got tough. He hit a homer into the rightfield deck, too, longer and prettier than Robertson's—prettier because it fetched in two runs.

Leonard himself got the Nats their very useful fourth run. That happened in the seventh inning, with Gerry Priddy getting an assist. Priddy drew a walk from Grove and stole second, languishing there until two were out when Leonard scored him with a sharp single to left.

Maryland Half-Mile Tracks Denied Fall Racing Dates

Four Major Ovals to Run Thirty Days

Pimlico Scene Of Entire Card; Bel Air, Marlboro, Cumberland Hit

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Aug. 19.—The Maryland Racing Commission unanimously turned thumbs down on fall racing at the State's half-mile tracks this year, denying today applications for dates from Cumberland, Bel Air and Marlboro.

A brief announcement after today's executive session said that the commission had acted unanimously on a motion by Member Courtenay H. Jenifer and seconded by George P. Mahoney.

The remaining member and chairman, Frank Small, jr., declined to elaborate on the statement.

"There were a thousand factors involved," Small told newspapermen after the session, "and when they all simmered down, we just decided it would be better this way."

Small Declines to Comment

Asked whether the gasoline shortage and the present ban on pleasure driving was one of the factors involved, Small declined to comment, saying there were so many considerations that he could not remember all of them.

"That's all there is to say," he added.

Hagerstown is the only one of the State's five half-mile tracks which has conducted a meeting this year, staging 10 days of the sport last month. The fifth track, Timonium, has been taken over by the War Department.

Both Bel Air and Marlboro are well removed from centers of population, and presumably would be seriously hampered unless hte ban on pleasure driving is removed. Fairgo, the Cumberland track, is within a few miles of the city.

In their applications for dates, Cumberland had sought for the 10 days from September 1 to 11; Marlboro had asked for split dates from September 6 to 11 and from September 15 to 18, and Bel Air had asked for 10 days prior to the opening of the major track season, preferably the 10 days ending October 2.

Today's meeting of the commission to act on the applications was postponed several times, including twice this week. It had been scheduled for Monday, delayed until Tuesday, and then shifted to today. An announcement last week indicated that the body was waiting to see if the Office of Price Administration would authorize any relaxation of the pleasure driving ban.

At Pimlico Only

The denial of dates to the half-mile racks meant that the only racing to be conducted in this center of the sport his fall would be at Pimlico in Baltimore, where the four major associations—Pimlico, Laurel, Bowie and Havre de Grace—will jointly conduct 30 days from October 9 to November 13.

The action also cut by more than half the total number of days of racing in Maryland this year. There are normally 150 days—100 at the four major tracks and 50 at the five half-milers.

Thus far in 1943 there have been only 30 days—20 at Pimlico in the spring and 10 at Hagerstown. The staging of the joint fall meeting at Pimlico will raise the total only to 60 days.

Harridge Refuses Protest by Dykes

Chicago, Aug. 19 (AP).—Manager Jim Dykes of the Chicago White Sox, today was notified by President Will Harridge of the American League that his protest of the second game of a double-header at New York, July 25, was not allowed.

The protest arose from Umpire George Pipgras' calling a balk against Sox Hurler Orval Grove with the bases loaded, sending a run across the plate to break a 3-3 tie. The Yanks went on to win 6 to 3.

Jimmy Bivins Starts Drills Here Today

Washington will get its first look at Jimmy Bivins, sensational Negro heavyweight from Cleveland, today at 3 p. m., when the generally recognized duration champion reports to conclude training for his 10-round date Tuesday night at Griffith Stadium with Herbert Marshall, hard-hitting New York Negro heavyweight.

Bivins will check into Promoter Goldie Ahearn's new gym, 419 9th st. nw., where he is slated to spar with Teddy Wint and others. Marshall will go through his paces at 2 p. m. The public is invited to attend both workouts free.

In predicting a gate of upward of $20,000, Ahearn yesterday announced a five-round return bout involving Larry Torpey, Philadelphia bantamweight, and youthful Jimmy Jeannette, local Merrick Boys Club star. These two youngsters fought a similar five-rounder on the Montgomery-Wills card that was a scorcher.

Billy Banks, popular local Negro featherweight, who meets the veteran Harry Jeffra, former bantam and featherweight champion, in the 10-round semifinal, is being rounded into the greatest shape of his career, his trainer, Billy (El Kadir) Edwards said yesterday. Edwards, confident Banks would whip the former two-time champion, announced Banks would challenge both Charley and Danny Petro as well as Lew Hanbury following the Jeffra bout, but stated Hanbury was especially sought. It was a defeat at the hands of Hanbury that made Banks temporarily hang up the gloves last summer.

Redskins Arrive For All-Star Game

here, Ollie Oia of Georgetown, who arrives tomorrow, and Walter Ziemba of Notre Dame and Elmer Wekheiser, Dubuque, who will play with the College All-Stars and then shift to the Redskins.

Five with the 'Skin squad at present are here for the All-Star game early, lending a helping hand in the manpower shortage. They are Roman Benix, Don Nolander, Bal Mena, Walter Halapeck and Steve Bagarus, and Bagarus is the man Bergman wishes he could keep.

Thus of the 30 present, five will be dropped due to service commitments after the All-Star and three will be picked up, necessitating a cut of three to league limitations of 25 before the league opens October 3.

Coach Bergman was in conference with Chicago Bear Coaches Hunk Anderson and Luke Johnson this afternoon, picking up tips on the All-Star squad. League rivalries are forgotten when the pros meet the Collegians . . . the Redskins' season ticket sale is now breaking records with every ticket sold in Washington . . . Al Matuza, Georgetown's center of four years ago, signed for his third year with the Bears . . . Walter Halapeck, who will leave the squad next Wednesday, is the only Phi Beta Kappa ever with the team. He attended Cornell . . . Danny Fortmann of the Bears is believed to be the only PBK in the league last year . . . Steve Bagarus drew more attention than Sammy Baugh today as the soldier on leave was a star with South Bend High and Notre Dame and is a native Chicagoan . . . the All-Stars took it easy today after a Wednesday night scrimmage with Camp Grant.

The Reel Dope

Report to the Capital City On the Local Bass Situation

By Tom Moore McBride
Post Fishing Editor

("The Reel Dope" also appears in the resort section of The Post each Sunday.)

If the currently cooler weather holds—and present forecasts are that it will for a couple of days—there should be some action for the bass fishing clan this weekend. And while the best fishing is somewhat inaccessable due to the continued pleasure driving ban, there are a few places nearby where fly and plug and live minnow fishermen should be able to hang a couple.

Easiest places to reach, though probably the least productive, is the Potomac out from Fletchers boathouse—Stop 10 on the Glen Echo carline—and around the flume above Chain Bridge—Stop 20 on the same line.

Live minnows are the best bait up here and are easily taken from the canal above the bridge with a small-mesh dip net. Bait the net with a piece of bread, held down by a piece of string and wait for a mess of minnows to hover over it before you lift. There are quite a few crappies to be ta

The Federal Diary

Jerry Kluttz is making a tour of the Nation's subcapitals to see first-hand what the 92 per cent of the Federal employes outside of Washington are doing. His series will start soon. Meantime, Federal employes are pinchhitting for him. Today's author prefers to remain anonymous.

In the years to come, when the tiny tikes lisp to me, "Gwandma, what did 'oo do in World War II?" I don't know whether I'll be able to face them or not. If they have seen the historical source material of our day, the Congressional Record, public speeches and documents, magazine articles, and the daily press, they will quite justifiably disown me entirely, doubt my sanity, and marvel that the country ever survived such a perilous period of sabotage by civil servants. Yes, I am a Government worker.

Right now, the folks at home have much the same idea. The former boss gave me a superior smile and cracked. "You should have plenty of time to write to us back here; after all, you work for the Government." An old family friend came to my defense stoutly with, "I told the neighbors that it just couldn't be as bad in Washington as they say, or you wouldn't stay there." And a very nice gentleman to whom I had just been introduced paid me what he thought was the compliment supreme when he murmured, "I never would have suspected that you worked for the Government."

Ironically enough, at a time when civilian workers are playing a more vital part in the life of the Nation than ever before, they have been selected as a favorite subject of belittling criticism and abuse. The smart-alec humorists, the rabble rousers anxious for a scrapegoat, the politicians after a popular cause, the sensation-seeking press (particularly if the sensation can be made at the expense of a political opponent)—all are joining the witch hunt. The victim has been dunked again and again into a pool of verbal slime until small wonder the folks at home are well indoctrinated with the belief that the typical Washington office consists of a horde of slightly cracked professors, a multitude of unmarried, physically perfect youths fresh from college, pulling down tremendous salaries, and thousands of bored, inefficient typists with nothing to do.

It is fortunate that "Heaven will protect the working girl," because surely few others have raised a voice to champion her good name or that of her brother if they work for Uncle Sam. As a result, a few hundred thousand people who have offered their services to the Federal Government, many at considerable personal and financial sacrifice, and who are doing their best at the jobs to which they have been appointed, are getting slightly fed up with being characterized as public enemies.

We are not suggesting that the civil servant is above criticism. We are, however, decrying the fact that so little effort has been made to present his case fairly to the public. Nor have the adjustments which have been made given consideration to the efficiency and morale of the Government worker. Rather, our own administrators have followed a policy of appeasement—appeasement of Congress, appeasement of the press, and appeasement of a misinformed public.

A few months ago, charges were launched that the Government was a haven for draft dodgers. Misleading, meaningless and contradictory figures were bandied about. Heads of departments and agencies fell over each other in a scramble to show how few of their employes were worth deferring (and consequently, we reason, how poorly chosen they were or how unimportant was the work being done.) When the smoke had cleared away, it appeared that the Government's policy in most cases had been commendably conservative regarding deferments and that there were singularly few draft evaders in our ranks. But by that time, the public had lost interest.

L'affaire Bovingdon is now making history and may well develop into a "cause celebre," reflecting wholesale discredit to the Federal service. It would have been quite unnecessary were there an intelligent and uniform policy for dealing with such charges against Government employes. An acknowledgement of responsibility by Civil Service and the agencies for persons they have certified and hired, and a willingness to defend such persons right out in public where people can know about it might save us such childish and short-sighted spectacles. As a compliment to such a policy, however, Civil Service and the agencies should pursue a continuous program for raising standards and increasing efficiency from within. A good housekeeper has no fear of snoopy neighbors and can ignore their remarks with equanimity.

In an era when the trend points unquestionably to a strong Federal Government encompassing many phases of normal as well as wartime life, it should be one of the country's major aims to build up a force of civil servants fine in quality, efficient in action, and inspired in leadership—a service to which the young and strong, the capable and experienced, the ambitious and idealistic will be proud to aspire. Certainly many changes within the Civil Service structure and personnel will be necessary before such a millennium will be reached.

Ride 'Em, Commandos!

Blue Springs, Mo.—An emergency landing almost turned into a steeplechase when an Army cargo glider accidentally released from its tow plane yesterday. The craft hurdled one fence, crashed through two others, leaped two ditches and ducked under telephone wires before coming to a stop. The crew was uninjured.

Beef on Beef

Topeka, Kans.—Cattlemen are planning a meeting as "an uprising to raise a little hell about dilly-dallying in Washington," says W. J. Miller, livestock association secretary, "and it won't be any boys' convention."

"They may ask some Congressmen and Senators if rationing took away backbones along with T-bones," he declared.

Truck Kills Boy, 2, Near His Home

Traffic Fatalities Now Total 55; Two Held for Court In Recent Deaths

D. C. traffic deaths this year ... 55
Deaths this date last year 65
District total last year 108

A 2-year-old Negro boy was killed by a truck yesterday boosting the D. C. traffic death toll to 55 as a coroner's jury held two men responsible for a recent traffic fatality.

At the same time, two men escaped injury in a spectacular trolley-truck crash.

The truck victim was Carl Smith of 1511 1st. st. nw., who ran into the side of the heavy vehicle and was thrown under its wheels in front of his home. He died at Sibley Hospital of a fractured skull.

Police said the truck was operated by James E. Wills, Negro, 28, of 220 G st. sw., who will appear at a coroner's inquest later this week.

Two Bound for Court

James Thomas, Negro, 33, 125 Pierce st. nw., and John T. G. Jones, Negro, 26, of 1356 C st. ne., were ordered bound over for Municipal Court action under the Negligent Homicide Act in the death of John B. Worden, 15, of Brentwood, Md.

The youth was killed Monday, when an ice truck driven by Thomas overturned at Tennessee ave. and C st. ne., pinning him underneath. Jones was driving a sedan which struck the truck.

Streetcar Damaged

In another, accident yesterday, Howard H. Henderson, 23, of 1611 D st. ne., a streetcar motorman, and Howard E. Hasse, 34, of Baltimore, truck driver, were uninjured when Henderson's trolley crashed into the rear of a 10-ton truck in the 600 block D st. ne.

The motorman said the truck stopped suddenly in front of the streetcar, but the truck driver told a conflicting story, saying he had been stopped for some seconds inquiring directions. Police said damage to the trolley was extensive.

Current-Saving Dimout Campaign To Be Opened Soon

A drive to condition the national public for the volunteer "conservation dimout" scheduled to begin here and through the country September 15 will get under way in 10 days by use of advertisements in newspapers and over the radio, it was learned last night.

Under the joint sponsorship of the Petroleum Administration for War, the Office of Defense Transportation and the War Production Board, citizens and business will be asked to turn off all non-essential lighting during the day and every night at 10 p. m. This applies to store window lighting, advertising signs, theater fronts and other unessential exterior lighting, which may be turned on at dusk, but off at 10.

The PAW will urge a conservation program for oil and the ODT will inaugurate a campaign to curtail transportation while the WPB, through utilities, will act to curb use of power in nonessential displays.

While the "dimout" is to be directed from Washington, each community, including Washington, will manage its own cooperation. No penalties are provided for those who will cooperate, according to J. A. Krug, head of the power division of the WPB.

Witnesses Will Convene Today

The Washington regional phase of the annual Jehovah's Witnesses convention will open today at Turner's Arena, 14th and W sts. nw., continuing through Sunday.

Because of gas rationing, this year's convention is being regionalized, with Minneapolis as the key city, and from which place N. H. Knorr, president of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, will address his message to all the conventions Sunday at 4 p. m. His topic will be "Freedom in the New World."

One hundred regional conventions are convening simultaneously throughout the United States. The local gathering will hear Knorr's address by amplified telephonic transmission.

Father Hurley Given Jesuit Novitiate Post

The Rev. Philip S. Hurley, S. J., member of the college faculty at Georgetown University, has been appointed administrator of the Jesuit novitiate St. Andrew-on-the-Hudson, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Father Hurley, who was professor of religion in the sophomore class, came to Georgetown in 1941 after serving his tertianship at Auriesville, Pa. He was also director of the library at the college and active in student affairs, having been moderator of the Washington Club and the Mask and Bauble Club.

Mrs. Doolittle to Volunteer For Plane-Plotting Service

Col. F. R. Chamberlain, jr., Mrs. James Doolittle and Lieut. Col. William D. Hooper at the Washington Antiaircraft Artillery Command's plotting board.

Mrs. Jimmie Doolittle, wife of the general who bombed Tokyo with a 20 cent bombsight, yesterday took off her shoes and walked in stocking feet on the Washington Antiaircraft Artillery Command's plotting board to see how it works.

In Mrs. Doolittle, the volunteers who plot the course of planes over the Capital area have a prospective member. And that makes them happy because they need immediately 75 day workers and some night workers.

Mrs. Doolittle visited for the first time the information center, the location of which is a military secret, to see how hundreds of women spend their spare time in helping the antiaircraft artillerymen keep their eye on airplanes approaching and passing over Washington.

All day long, the anonymous legions receive reports from the soldier observers manning posts throughout the Military District of Washington. Reports come in code-like jargon on direct telephone wires to the information center and volunteers at a filter board translate and relay the messages to fellow workers on the operations board. The latter amble about in soft slippers on a huge map and trace both civilian and military plane flights in the area.

It is their job to give the alert to antiaircraft guns protecting the Capital if enemy planes appear.

Mrs. Doolittle, who naturally would be interested in anything connected with airplanes, had nothing but compliments for the efficient work of the women volunteers. She said she would like to join their ranks and would try to find a way to add it to her many other commitments after completing a tour of war plants.

The volunteers wear dark blue slacks and blouses, receive the insignia of the Military District of Washington after completing 100 hours work and are awarded a replica of the cross guns of the Coast Artillery Corps after 250 hours. This may seem little reward, but the workers realize they are freeing men to man the guns.

Washingtonians who want to join may apply at the interviewing office, 2324 F st. nw.

Col. Frederick R. Chamberlian, jr., is commanding officer of the Washington AAAC, which supervises the work of the volunteers. Their work is coordinated with the Aircraft Warning Service whose volunteer members spot planes for the interceptor units of the First Fighter Command.

Now Is Time To Donate Your Blood

Tomorrow Still 'Almost Wide Open' For Appointments, Center Reports

Call District 3300

There is still time today for you to donate a pint of your blood to the District Red Cross Blood Donor Center.

There won't be time after the invasion of Europe commences. It will be too late on "D day at H hour" to get your plasma overseas to save the lives of men who may be casualties of that invasion.

Yesterday, as a result of The Post's front-page editorial urging immediate contributions to the Blood Donor Center, the telephones in the center's quarters at 51 Louisiana ave. nw. kept up a steady jingle as prospective donors made appointments.

Yet the ceiling has not been reached. Mrs. Loretta Bickford, chairman of the center, declared yesterday that Saturday still is "almost wide open" for appointments, which may be made for any hour until 2:15 p. m. On other days blood may be given until 7:15 p. m., but Saturday is notoriously a slow day.

If every District resident could walk through the wards of Walter Reed Hospital, there would be no "slow days" at the Blood Donor Center. If every District resident could interview the boys recuperating at Forest Glen, Md., from wounds received in action, there would be no vacant hours. If every District resident could hear the one-legged veteran back from Tunisia say sincerely: "The Red Cross would be doing its job if it just did its blood plasma work alone," the center would have to request the telephone company for a dozen new phones to handle the calls.

You may make your appointment by calling District 3300. About 45 minutes should be allowed for each donation, and donors should not eat greasy or fatty foods within four hours of appointments.

Often it requires courage to make yourself give your blood the first time. But donors agree that after that first donation you have no further fears. It doesn't hurt one-millionth as much as getting shot.

City News In Brief

Fritz, one of the two rhinoceroses at the National Zoological Park and one of the 10 such animals in the country, is dead and buried.

Dr. W. M. Mann, park director, believes death probably resulted from an attack of pneumonia that Fritz suffered six months ago. To make sure, the Department of Agriculture will perform an autopsy on several organs removed before burial. The skin, an inch and a half thick, and two horns have been turned over to the National Museum.

Being only 16, Fritz died at a comparatively early age, Dr. Mann said. The animal, of the South African variety, had been in the Zoo 13 years. Dr. Mann picked it from four others during a tour of German zoos in 1920.

Type O Blood Needed

In an appeal for voluntary blood donors in behalf of the Rev. William H. Jackson, published in The Post yesterday, the type of blood needed was incorrectly stated. Type O blood is the proper kind required to bring the Rev. Mr. Jackson back to health.

The supply of type O blood is exhausted at Freedmen's Hospital where the Negro pastor is being treated. The generosity of readers who last December helped save the Rev. Mr. Jackson's life with voluntary donations of blood is once again appealed to so that he may achieve complete recovery.

Playground Improved

School children attending Leland Junior High School this fall will find an improved playground and a new lighting system.

Plans now nearing completion call for the play area to be increased a third and the installation of subsurface drainage to free it from mud. Flourescent lighting fixtures are being placed in the class rooms to eliminate eye strain.

More Buses Restored

The Capital Transit Co announced yesterday the restoration of full service on an additional number of bus lines as the result of the recent OPA action increasing the mileage allowed buses and other forms of transportation.

Those lines affected are: K-4, Chillum; H-2, Crosstown, G-8, Greenbelt; F-1 and F-2, Hyattsville and College Park; T-3, New Hampshire ave. suburban (rush-hour); H-4, Park Road; E-1 and E-2, Rhode Island ave.; F-6, Sargeant rd.-Green Meadows, and J-3, Takoma express via 9th st.

Agriculturists Meet Monday In Farm Crisis

Just when relief shipments of corn and hay into the nearby drought-stricken area where a 50 million dollar damage exists, will begin and what percentage of the cost the Government will assume will be decided Monday at a meeting of agricultural leaders and J. B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Government support of farmers was approved Wednesday.

Heading the committee to meet with Hutson is Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Extension Service of the University of Maryland. Associated with him as committee members are B. D. Derrick, secretary of the Virginia-Maryland Milk Producers' Association of Washington; Roy Weagley, Culpeper, Va., Farm Bureau; L. M. Walker, commissioner of agriculture for Virginia; W. P. Wyson, general manager of the Southern States Cooperatives of Richmond; Dr. Roger Cordett, director of the Experimentation Station of Maryland; Charles Potter of the Extension Service of the Department of Agriculture, and C. E. Wise, secretary of the Maryland Farm Bureau.

It was learned railroads are not expected to reduce their rates for the duration of the emergency shipments and the Government is expected Monday to assume the cost of shipments of hay and corn from the West. Whether or not the Government will go further and pay part of the cost of the hay itself could not be learned. It does not have to purchase the corn as it already owns nearly four million bushels.

Agents of the various agencies involved yesterday were scouring the country for hay and up to a late hour yesterday none had been reported as available. It was indicated, however, a sufficient tonnage would be found for use here.

Milk Cooler Suggested as Delivery Aid

In order to conserve milk and prevent illness householders absent when milk is delivered should improvise a cooler, Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health officer said yesterday.

Ruhland suggested that householders pad a wooden box with many layers of old newspapers, on top, bottom and sides and place a crock with ice in it within the box, so that milk will keep fresh, during the present daytime deliveries.

The health officer warned that it was important not only to guard against illness, but also to prevent milk wastage as supplies are decreasing.

Dairymen in the Washington milk shed are producing 3 per cent less milk than they did in 1942 despite the increase in users, the Department of Agriculture revealed yesterday. During the first six months of this year milk sales were 24 per cent higher than in 1942, and milk had to be imported to meet the demand.

Eisenhower Completes His Work With OWI

Milton Eisenhower, associate director of the Office of War Information, completed his OWI work yesterday the agency announced, and expects to leave today for Manhattan, Kans., to resume his duties as president of Kansas State College.

Eisenhower, who resigned formally on June 30, was highly praised by OWI Director Elmer Davis, who said the Kansan would be retained as an OWI consultant, without compensation.

Battalion Dance Tuesday

The Junior Council of the National Council of Jewish Women will fete the 30th Engineers Battalion of Fort Belvoir at a fiesta dance to be given in the South American Room of the Statler August 24. The affair will mark the fourth birthday anniversary of the battalion. It had previously been reported that the dance was set for August 17. All members of the armed forces are invited.

Six More Fined In Restaurant Cleanup Drive

The drive to lave food establishments of the menace of insanitation netted six more persons punished yesterday, Four food operators were fined in Municipal Court, while two others forfeited collateral when they failed to appear to answer charges.

Albert L. Westhal, grocer, of 709 2d st. nw., was fined $25 for having decomposed neck meat in a case.

Albert A. Footer, delicatessen, 3333 Connecticut ave. nw., was fined $10 on a charge of having a dirty meat case with a slimy bottom, dirty rags and dirty meat slicer.

Alley Saley, restaurant, of 5600 Connecticut av. nw., was fined $10 for having unclean drinking utensils.

Nick Karras, restaurant, of 2228 18th st. nw., was fined $10 for having unclean glasses.

Alice Frank, restaurant, 1712 14th st. nw., forfeited $25 on charges of having unclean glasses.

Sam Wong, restaurant, 1334 14th st. nw., forfeited $25 on charges of having unclean glasses.

During the last seven days, 10 restaurateurs have been fined sums of from $10 to $25. Forfeitures were recorded against four restaurateurs. Four grocers were fined $25 each while eight forfeited.

Dupont Circle With Million In Equity, Sold

The Dupont Circle building on Connecticut ave. between N st. and Dupont Circle, nw., was sold yesterday at public auction for $100,000 over existing obligations of $1,178,749.96 owed the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. as a first mortgage.

The buyer of record is the Ducirco Corporation of Delaware with headquarters at Wilmington. A representative of the corporation posted a certified check for $20,000 and agreed to make the rest of the payment within 30 days.

The sale was ordered by the U. S. District Court for the purpose of satisfying a note issued by Dupont Circle, Inc., owners of the building, to the Commercial Credit Corporation, Inc., in the amount of $250,000. The note was dated July 3, 1941. The total assessed valuation was $1,396,000.

The Ducirco Corporation agreed to recognize a lease agreement with the Government for rental of the property for $15,038 per month. The lease is for one year but has a four-year renewal option.

Speculation ran rife among real estate operators as to just who constitute the Delaware corporation. The unidentified buyer's representative did not clarify the situation.

The building has figured prominently in the news at various times for two years. It was there that Mayris Chaney, ballet dancer, was interviewed about her OCD position. Lease of the property, now occupied by the OCD, was challenged at one time by the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Clubs Will Sell Bonds

The District Federation of Women's Clubs will launch a three-week war bond campaign Wednesday to raise $115,000 for the purchase of an ambulance plane, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Carlton Duffus will serve as chairman of the ambulance plane committee together with Mrs. John Shaw, cochairman. Others serving on the committee include Mrs. Tilman Bacon Parks, Miss Etta Taggart, Mrs. Charles H. Baird and Mrs. Frank J. McMaugh.

Union Picnic Tomorrow

OPA Branch, Local 203, United Federal Workers of America will hold a moonlight picnic tomorrow at Grove 25, Rock Creek Park, 16th and Kennedy sts. Twenty-five soldiers will attend at guests.

ICC Hears Lower Fare Proposals

Army, Navy Offer Five-Point Method Of Cutting Costs for Government Workers

By Elwin Stouffer
Post Staff Writer

The Army and Navy yesterday laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission, for its guidance, a five-pronged proposal which would reduce transportation rates to Government facilities in nearby Virginia $9.66 to $37 a year per rider.

The proposal was made during the first day of hearings being conducted by the ICC and undertaken as the result of the Government's efforts to obtain reduced transportation costs for employes of the Pentagon Building, The Navy Annex and the Army Air Force Annex at Gravelly Point.

The five-point proposal, which was submitted under the direction of Col. Albert M. Barron, chief counsel for the War Department in the case, was not represented as the official suggestion of the department but rather as a comparison and the probable effects of the various means of reducing rates.

The proposals were:

Suggested Changes

First: Selling three tickets for 40 cents, amounting to 13 1/3 cents a ticket, which would be good on the Capital Transit buses and three Virginia lines. The Arlington & Fairfax Co.'s Rosslyn line would be exempt. There is a 5-cent fare on this line.

Second: A 5-cent trans-Potomac only fare which would be good on all lines except the Fairfax-Arlington. Fares from 12th st. and Pennsylvania ave. and from 11th and E sts. nw. would be reduced from 10 to 5 cents.

Third: A straight 10-cent fare from any point in the District, to any of the four Virginia Federal buildings, but which would not recognize District passes or tokens.

Fourth: Either a straight 10-cent fare or a token fare, amounting to 8 1/3 cents, but which would not recognize passes.

Fifth: To include the Government facilities in the Virginia area in the District transportation area allowing the 10-cent straight tokens issued by any Virginia or District company would be good on all fare or the use of passes or tokens.

Would Reduce Income

At the present time these estimated income of all bus lines servicing the Government buildings in Arlington is $1,624,000. Under the fifth proposal, which represents the most drastic reduction in rates, the total annual income of all the bus lines would be reduced by an estimated $715,374 for this service.

During yesterday's proceedings the ICC took under consideration the contention of H. E. Kenter, representing the Virginia State Corporation Commission, that they lacked jurisdiction in the matter. The contention was based on a purported ruling that the ICC itself had made in which it would not exercise jurisdiction over points between the District and Virginia which were construed to be a commercial part of the District.

Once again the old problem of where the District boundary line lay came into the fore when a map was introduced by the Government which showed a high water line, dating back to 1791, and which ran through about one-third of the Pentagon Building.

Edward E. Franklin, a War Department statistician, indicated, with a series of tables, that many more employes were leaving the less accessible Government facilities in Virginia and elsewhere than was the case in the District. He also said the average wage of a War Department employe working in the Pentagon was $1440 or less.

Hurting War Effort

This contention was backed by Maj. Gen. John T. Lewis, commanding general of the Washington Military District who asserted that "extremely high and discriminatory" transportation rates to the Pentagon were hurting the war effort by creating a large turnover in civilian personnel.

Col. Albert M. Barron, chief counsel for the War Department, estimated at the hearing that the turnover at the Pentagon is approximately 36.8 per cent higher "than among similar employes at accessible locations within the District such as the Munitions Building."

Another witness, Lieut. Comdr. R. F. Randolph of the Office of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, said the Navy Department blamed the high turnover at the Annex in Arlington on prevailing bus fares.

The hearings will continue today at 9:30 a. m., and are expected to run through tomorrow.

Victory Sidelights

5736 Recruited as Defense Workers; Drive Continues

The recently concluded two weeks' campaign to recruit 20,000 additional defense workers, which cost approximately $7000 of civilian defense funds, netted a total of 5736 volunteers to date, according to figures released yesterday by Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, District civilian defense director.

Whitehurst said the recruiting campaign will extend through September 10 and will be handled mainly through the efforts of members of civilian defense units. He said that he expected the present figure on volunteers to be increased considerably by that time.

The municipal government gave the greatest number of recruits with a total of 1985, it was announced by District Assessor Edward A. Dent, chairman of the District government committee.

The air raid warden service gained the greatest number of recruits with 1874. Auxiliary police obtained 316 recruits and firemen 271. Other categories of service claimed the balance.

The campaign opened July 30 with a three-hour parade of military and civilian defense units.

Band to Give Program

The Army War College Dance Band will play at the Sylvan Theater tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. in a variety program presented by the D. C. Recreation Department in cooperation with the War Hospitality Committee. In addition, Pfc. Gabriel Cocco, accordion player, Tom Glazer, singing guitar player, and Agnes D'Angeles, blues singer, will appear.

Battalion Dance Tuesday

A dance celebrating the fourth anniversary of the establishment of the Thirtieth Engineers Battalion of Fort Belvoir, Va., will be staged Tuesday in the South American room of the Hotel Statler.

All servicemen are invited to attend the dance sponsored jointly by the Junior Council of Jewish Women and the USO Jewish Welfare Board.

WAVE Directs Airport Traffic

By Genevieve Reynolds

She's one of the first women traffic cops of the air. No, she doesn't scoot among the clouds in an airplane bawling out the pilots or pinching them for speeding. From her glass encased tower, she does direct the landing and take off of hundreds of Navy airplanes. Moreover, attractive Dorothy Helen Knee, petty officer third class in the Navy, hopes she never has to leave her exciting job.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

"There are no ranks in the air," she said smilingly. "That's one time we can tell the admirals and captains what to do—they listen and comply."

Occasionally, a pilot calling in for directions is startled to hear a girl's voice. He can't resist an exclamatory remark such as—"what's going on here—well, what next?" Soon they get get accustomed to it, explained Miss Knee, who holds the rating of specialist (T) third class.

Before a plane attempts to land, the pilot calls in by radio . . . at least he is supposed to.

DOROTHY HELEN KNEE

Recently two planes that looked identical radioed in to give the position and landing. Both gave the same information. Now Miss Knee had to do some fast thinking and talking. The planes were close to the field and coming in—in five minutes more they would have crashed into each other. In the nick of time Petty Officer Knee directed one to land at a stated position and commanded the other to circle above. So the pilot did, just above the wings of the other plane. It was perfect timing and a good miss. It's such hair raising events as these that gives a thrill to the job.

Regardless of how tense the moment or nerve racking, the traffic cop must keep her voice unchanged, well modulated and calm. If nervousness or fright creeps into her voice, she will confuse the pilots whom she is directing by radio. Enthusiastic, alert Miss Knee has all the qualities necessary to being a good traffic cop. She speaks distinctly but quietly. In a pleasant authoritative voice she tells the pilot how to taxi in and out, what speed and position.

Figuratively speaking, the air traffic cop's office is the Tower of Babel. What with the radio going 24 hours a day, voices coming in and going out, plus the scratch, scratch of static, there's excitement in the air all the time. The traffic cops are relieved every three or four hours. Then they have study time or free time, or sometimes go up in a plane to gain a greater understanding of their jobs. On alternate night watches they also have passive defense duty.

Seeing and talking with people gives Miss Knee a big thrill. Bubbling over with enthusiasm for the Navy, she hopes the WAVES won't vanish with the war. If there's a peacetime WAVE organization, you'll find her right there.

"I guess I have been lucky," she said. "I've been three firsts already. I was among the first ten sent to Cedar Falls, Iowa, one of the first to be sent to the Air Control Tower School in Atlanta and one of the first to be called to the Air Control Tower in Anacostia."

Before going into the Navy as an apprentice seaman, Helen said that she did dull, boring office work. The only work she enjoyed before going into the WAVES was a short fling as a receptionist and telephone operator. Her father was a harbor pilot for many years—now he works at Brooklyn Navy Yard—and her uncle is a merchant seaman.

Do hug neck in back and avoid too much fullness there.

Don't have the low-in-back gathered neckline.

Hints for Gardeners

You can be a Victory garden dirt-farmer without spoiling the looks of your hands. Most garden stains, whether from soil, grass, or handling tools, will come off readily with soap, water, and a nail brush. Ground-in dirt is harder to remove, but will usually respond to soaking the hands in sudsy water for a few minutes.

Fingernails can be a problem but there is a simple preventive. Just dig your nails into a cake of soap before you head for the cabbage patch. Two solids can't occupy the same space at the same time—and the soap will come out easily.

Speaking of preventive steps, you can save yourself labor indoors by reminding your fellow gardners to leave their work shoes in the cellar, or on the porch. Brushing out trouser cuffs before entering the house is another way of keeping the good earth where it belongs—outdoors.

LANSBURGH'S—Children's Shoes—Second Floor

Your Baby and Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Since this is the month for visits to the doctor and dentist, it is smart to have a philosophy toward such experiences well worked out in advance. Then the parent can be consistent.

Is she going to try to hide from the child anything of slightly disagreeable or even of painful nature to which he may be subjected? If she is, she can hide it only once. After that the child is arrayed against her and the doctor or dentist as if they were deadly enemies. He can be fooled once but never again.

So that's out. Obviously, her best course is to be honest. She should not terrify the child or threaten him with the doctor, merely stiffen his own resistance so he is able to met a new experience courageously.

Most of us can "stand" anything provided we know what is about to happen. We don't want anything put over on us. The child is no different. If he knows what is to happen, half of his apprehension is removed.

Too many children come to the doctor's office determined to fight to the last ditch before being subjugated. They are trembling, hysterical and combative. They make the task of doctor or dentist doubly hard as well as risking emotional exhaustion for themselves. There is no reason why a doctor should battle with a well child to give him a physical examination.

If the child knows the sensation he will experience in the dentist's chair hardly exceeds that of a mild, dizzy tickle, he can take it. It's enraging to the dentist to have to chase a patient around the room and hold him down by main force in order for him to make that discovery.

Preparation for either event consists of telling the child exactly what will happen to him, from the very moment he enters the offices. The wait, the kind of equipment used, even the undressing—in the doctor's office—and what will be done right through to the very end. If there are to be shots the child should know of what they consist and the sensation he will feel.

It isn't enough to tell a child, "He won't hurt you," and then to let him be surprised and shocked when there is some pain. But if he sticks out his chin and expects there will be some sensation, which may be unpleasant for the moment, he will have the stamina to stand up under it. Children so treated are braver than adults.

Our leaflet, "Handicaps of the School Child," may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper. It discusses conditions which need to be looked into before school begins.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

Good figures are scarcer than pretty faces, says a New York restaurant man who watches the crowds come and go, and who has arrived at the conviction that the percentage of women who have really good figures is almost too small to notice.

"And," he went on in the brutally frank way men sometimes have, "while the business girls are trimmer by comparison than the woman who don't work, they get hippy."

What's wrong with the figures of the women who don't work?" I demanded, "and how can you tell they're not business women?"

"You can tell they don't go to business by the time of day they're out on the streets. As for what's wrong, you ask me? Well, look at that one. She could lose 50 pounds and she would still be fat."

Now, that's his opinion, not mine, and just one man's opinion at that. Some men insist they like women pleasingly plump. I must admit I have never yet heard a man say he liked them fat. And the difference between plump and fat is about 25 pounds.

It is true the home makers are the ones who have the hardest time keeping down to plump. They have their minds on food most of the time because it is so important to the rest of the family. They have to plan the menus, get the food, cook it, serve it, eat it, then clear off the table. Anyone would have to be almost objectionably strong-minded to keep from overeating under those circumstances.

But with every excuse in the world for being fat, no woman likes it. In fact, the women who really appreciate being slim are the ones who have been fat. And they all have some tips to pass along to the rest of you who are thinking of slimming down.

They urge secrecy about your intention until you are going strong on your program. Then you will have your appetite under control and nothing anyone can say—you're bound to have to stand a lot of kidding from the family—will sway you. You can diet without anyone being the wiser simply by sticking to the list of the essential foods. You will probably eat as much as you are eating now, but your choice of foods will be in the low calorie department and that will make a big difference on the scales. By planning the family menus around these same essential foods, more leeway as to calories, you will assure them of good nutrition and your own diet will not be extra work.

Here is the list of essential foods on which you can reduce, and which should form the basis of the family's three meals a day:

Nutrition Essentials	Calories
Fruits: 1 whole orange or ½ grapefruit, or 2/3 glass of fruit juice, plus 1 or 2 other fruits	225
Eggs and cheese: 1 egg and 1 serving cheese, or 2 eggs	150
Milk: 2 glasses skim milk or buttermilk (use whole milk for non-reducers), or 1 glass, plus 1 oz. yellow cheese	180
Vegetables: 2 cooked, or a green leafy or yellow, and preferably green, plus 1 other, cooked	100
Raw vegetables: 1 serving, either a green salad or celery, carrot strips, tomatoes or coleslaw	25
Bread: 100 per cent whole wheat or enriched, 3 thin slices, each ¼-inch thick, or 1 serving cereal, and 2 slices	150
Butter: 2 teaspoons for bread or vegetables	65

THE GENTLER SEX

By Malvina Lindsay

In England—Now

"Everybody, it seemed to us at first glance, needed some new clothes, a month in the North Woods and, maybe, a bath."
WILLIAM H. STONEMAN, Chicago Daily News Correspondent, describing London on his recent return there.

I

Oh to be in England,
Now that August's there,
And be sure no girls in their new fall blacks
Would on the scene appear.

II

Oh to be in London,
And walk on Regent Street,
And wear the clothes I bought in June
Without feeling obsolete.

III

Oh to strut in Piccadilly,
And the palm to none to yield,
Though I wear no raspberry velvet hat
And sport no Chesterfield.

At the Luncheon

"I am Mrs. Blink."

"Oh, how do you do! I'm Mrs. Blank."

"Isn't it a lovely luncheon?"

"Perfectly delightful."

"Tell me, who is the woman directly across—in the green Chetnik turban?"

"I really don't know. You see, I—I—well, I don't happen to know anybody here."

"Me, either. By the way, did you happen to catch the name of the hostess?"

"No, I really didn't. You see, her secretary called and my maid answered. She said it was something about some postwar soybean product."

"Oh, I understood it was some kind of a movement—to get the Government to do something or other."

"Wait a minute . . . The woman on the other side of me says she thought it was to awaken interest in saving cantaloupe rinds."

"But the woman on the other side of me says it's in the interest of some presidential candidate."

"Republican or Democrat?"

"She doesn't know which."

"Well, anyway, it's a very lovely luncheon."

"Perfectly delightful."

Nice Kitty

(News Item: London—Domestic cats are being drafted by the Ministry of Supply, which is mobilizing them to wage war on mice and rats, which are infesting secret British food dumps.)

No more dark looks for Tabby
When a blessed event impends;
No more worry over homes for her offspring—
They are greeted with loud Amens!
No more throwing of shoes at night howlers—
They're patriotic citizens!

Comfort for Gardeners

Victory gardeners who have been turned into defeat gardeners by the drought may console themselves that in their agricultural failures they are in famous and historic company. Some of New England's greatest writers and thinkers failed to make a success of their Brook Farm experiment, the Transcendentalist community established at West Roxbury, Mass., in 1841.

Nathaniel Hawthorne, who, with Charles A. Dana, was a director of agriculture the first year, went into his job with a fine enthusiasm and insisted on being known as Plowman Hawthorne. But he later retreated to the literary life, his chief returns from his agricultural experiment being inspiration for his novel, "A Blithedale Romance."

Notwithstanding the help and interest of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Bronson Alcott, Margaret Fuller and other literary leaders, the Brook Farm experiment in combining high thinking with hard working was abandoned after many reverses.

Henry David Thoreau, the naturalist, had a little better luck raising beans, peas, turnips, potatoes and sweet corn on the shore of Walden Pond in 1845. But his turnips and corn were "too late to amount to anything," he afterward recorded, and out of the beans and potatoes raised in his 2½-acre patch he only made a profit of $8.71½ for the entire season. However, he was able to eat, and he realized his ambition to simplify his life. He also had the privacy to think as he hoed his beans, and out of this and his acquired intimacy with wild life he got a book that was to make his name live in American literature, even though it brought him no fortune or fame while he lived.

So gardeners of 1943 may be able to compute their rewards from their labor in some other returns than their parched, wilting and barren plants.

Ladies, if you're wondering why you can't beg, borrow or steal a pair of nylon stockings these days, this picture will explain it all. Thousands of yards of tough, resilient nylon are used daily at the Cole of California, Inc., parachute company in making 'chutes for our paratroops, helping to land them on battlefronts throughout the world. The shiny, white material, which is made from coal and feels like silk, is cut, stitched and fashioned into parachutes by women workers here. They are carefully inspected (above) for perfection and safety in operation, and then shipped directly to the War Department ready for use

Penalties of Overeating

By Logan Clendening, M.D.

Intestinal fortitude is the kind of phrase that can lead to some misunderstanding. I am not sure that I agree with the general conception that relates mental to organic types. I have known several people with "good hearts" who have made a mess of their own and their family's lives.

So with intestinal fortitude. Lots of people have intestines which run away but come back to fight another day. I am speaking of the people who euphemistically and in the most polite circles are referred to as having irritable colons.

Now this simply means that their colons are not made of iron, but of flesh and blood. It means that their colons shy off a little when put through the routine of showing the visiting fireman the town Saturday night. The visiting fireman has no irritable colon—where his large intestine ought to be is something in between a Flying Fortress and festung Europa.

Saturday night they start at Good Charley's, eat a shovelful of those sandwiches made of hardboiled eggs, and the other kind made of tough, coiled-up fish, then go on to a good rousing dinner at the Steak Joint and after visiting a few hot spots wind up at the Dirty Spoon for a few waffles, doughnuts, wheat cakes and coffee.

Instead of jeering at the fellow with an irritable colon after a night like this, you ought to compliment his colon on showing great common sense in getting rid of the dregs of the evening's de bauch.

The treatment of the irritable colon patient, then, is fairly simple. First is psychological. He must get it through his dome he is not a visiting fireman type. It sometimes takes a long time to do this. The other part of the treatment is dietary. Eat the things that are simple to digest and do not subject your digestive system to a test of strength with nature's most durable foods.

Diet for Irritable Colon

A sample "smooth" diet for these people is:

Beverages: Coffee, cream, malted milk.

Bread and cereals: White bread, crackers, white rice, spaghetti, noodles, macaroni, cream of wheat (exclude whole-wheat products, bran or other forms of cellulose).

Vegetables: Mashed potatoes, puree of peas, beans, asparagus, beets, carrots.

Fruits: Ripe bananas, strained orange juice, strained tomato blancmange.

Sources of protein: Cottage cheese, American cheese, cream cheese, eggs, chicken (white meat), fish, scraped beef, cream soups.

Other foods: Salt, butter, olive oil.

Two-Way Treasure!

By Ruth Gregory

We're not Kidding (that's a pun). We found it yesterday—the late lamented girdle with the two-way stretch. Stacks of 'em.

It seems that months ago this particular store placed an order for a quantity of these all-lastex girdles. They'd just about given up hope, when, lo, the shipment arrived long after lastex foundations had disappeared from counters elsewhere.

No snaps, no fasteners—it's your old favorite pull-on, the prewar kind that we frankly didn't expect to see again for quite some time. They come in small, medium and large and are about $5.

It could happen again, of course. We've heard tales, too, of wonderful new synthetic materials destined to crowd lastex right out of the picture. But this is now. And if you need support, this is the best answer we've found.

For further information please call NAtional 4200, Extension 324.

On Your Toes

Standing at an ironing board all morning, or behind a counter or at war work all day, may sometimes result in hot, tired feet. When feet ache and burn, the whole body seems out of kilter, and for efficiency's sake, if for no other, we must do something to secure relief.

One of the simplest ways is to soak the feet alternately in warm soapy water and in cool clear water. Sit down comfortably while the feet are soaking so the whole body can relax. End with the cool water, then dry the feet gently with a soft clean towel. Sprinkle with talcum or foot powder.

Put on clean stockings or socks, and wear a different pair of shoes. Doctors warn against wearing loose bedroom slippers or down-at-the-heel shoes while doing a job that calls for long standing. Take a tip from our men and women in uniform, and wear well-fitting low-heeled oxfords if you have to be on your feet a lot. A pair of these sensible shoes should be in every woman's wardrobe these days when there is so much walking to do, and when so many tasks keep one active. At least one of the shoe ration coupons should be used for footwear that gives firm support and helps prevent fatigue.

Save White Bags

"Waste not, want not" is in line with Uncle Sam's request that nothing useful be discarded. It is a good adage to remember in connection with summer accessories which women usually buy for just a single season's use. This summer, white pocketbooks, gloves, socks, as well as summer dresses, should be given the very best treatment in order that they may be usable again next year.

To keep white bags in condition for a second season, they need attention. Most of this year's white bags are washable. The secret in washing them lies in using the minimum amount of water. Wring a soft cloth out of a fairly sudsy solution and wipe over the surface of the bag. To rinse, use a clean cloth wrung out of clear water. Wipe dry and do not handle until the leather or fabric is thoroughly dry. Brush the inside of the bag, too. It will hold its shape better if it is lightly stuffed with old tissue paper before it is stored away.

In Armenia, jam is preserved in jam "rugs." The jam is spread on cloth, dried, and rolled up and stored for future use.

Brazilian War Minister Feted at Embassy Party

Envoy Is Host at Stag Dinner for Gen. Dutra Before Large Reception Last Evening

After last night's brilliant dinner and reception at the Brazilian Embassy, August of 1943 will be known to social Washington as "the month Gen. Eurico Gaspar Dutra visited here."

Brazil's visiting Minister of War has been feted at a number of glittering events since his arrival earlier in the week, but last evening was the first time that Capital civilians had a chance to meet the Latin American soldier-statesman.

A large dinner with a strictly masculine guest list started off the evening in the Embassy on Massachusetts ave. Later on hordes of Capital officialdom dropped in for a reception, for which 750 invitations had been issued. Cabinet members were out in full force and the non-vacationers among the high-ranking judiciary were on hand to greet General Dutra and his party. The Latin American Embassies were unanimously represented among the guests—with the emphasis on the military attaches—and our own Army and Navy filled the spacious rooms of the Embassy with gold epaulets and silver stars.

Sumner Welles Among Guests

Among the Brazilian guests of Ambassador Martins at dinner were Maj. Gen. Leitao de Carvalho, Admiral A. R. de Vasconcellos, Col. Armande Ararigbola, Col. Stenoi Caio de Albuquerque Lima, Col. Jose Bina Machado, Comdr. Edmundo Amorin do Valle, Col. V. A. Secco, Col. J. V. Sayao Cardoso, Lieut. Col. Antonio Jose Coelho do Reis, Maj. Niranda Mendes, Maj. Jose Pinheiro Ulhoa Cintra, Oswaldo G. Aranha, Col. Heitor Pedroso and Fernando Lobo.

The United States officials at the dinner could have formed a high-policy conference. They included the Undersecretary of State, Sumner Welles; the Undersecretary of the Navy, James Forrestal; the Assistant Secretary of State, Breckinridge Long; Lieut. Gen. Joseph McNarney, Maj. Gen. George V. Strong, Maj. Gen. J. G. Ord, Rear Admiral W. O. Spears, Rear Admiral H. C. Train, Donald Nelson, Edward Stettinius, George Summerlin, Rear Admiral E. L. Cochrane, Brig. Gen. C. M. Adams, United States Military Attache in Rio; Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Col. L. C. Strong, Col. Kenner Hertford, William Batt, Philip Bonsal, Lieut. Col. W. Johnston, Lieut. Col. O. T. Jamerson and Lieut. C. D. Burton.

Col Frank Knox Gives Luncheon

Earlier in the day General Dutra was guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox. At the noon party were Admiral Thomas C. Hart, Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, Rear Admiral H. C. Train, Rear Admiral W. O. Spears, Capt. A. D. Struble, Capt. D. P. Moon, Rawleigh Warner, Capt. M. B. Gardner and Capt. L. S. Perry.

Also in the group were Lieut. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, Maj. Gen. J. G. Ord, Brig. Gen. Claude M. Adams, Col. Kenner F. Hertford, Capt. Vernon A. Walters, Lieut. C. B. Burton, Philip Bonsal, the Brazilian Ambassador, Carlos Martins; Gen. Leitao de Carvalho, Vice Admiral Alvaro Rodrigues de Vasconcellos, Fernando Lobo, Col. Armando de Souzae Mello Ararigboia, Col. Vasco Alves Secco, Col. Joab Vicente Sayao Cardoso, Col. Steino Caio de Albuquerque Lima, Comdr. Edmundo Amorim do Valle, Maj. Miguel Lampert, Col. Jose Bina Machado, Lieut. Col. Antonia Jose Coelho dos Reis, Maj. Aluzio Damandes and Maj. Jose Pinheiro Wlhoa Cintra.

Dr. Baralt In Capital From Cuba

That it is, once again, the Americas' turn to "take over" and carry high a torch that was lit in Europe before the war is the belief of Dr. Luis A. Baralt of Cuba. Senor Baralt has come to the United States to attend the meeting of the committee which is to organize the International Center of Intellectual Cooperation in accordance with the resolution adopted at the Second Inter-American Congress of Intellectual Cooperation held in Havana in November, 1941. For the period of the emergency this center is to serve in place of the International Institute of Intellectual Cooperation created by the League of Nations and that had its seat in Paris.

Dr. Baralt, a technical adviser to the Cuban Delegation, besides being a lawyer, is a professor of philosophy at the University of Havana. He was one of the organizers of the Cuban-American Cultural Institute and is also very well known in Cuba as a playwright, a producer—he has been called "the Cuban Max Reinhardt"—and a leader in all artistic theatrical enterprises. A former director of public education and one-time secretary general of the Havana University Summer School, he has lectured extensively in different universities of the United States and is himself a Harvard graduate.

Senor Baralt is but one of the first arrivals to the meeting which is to be held the second week in September in New York and in Washington. The committee itself is composed of seven members: Miguel Ozorio de Almeida of Brazil (chairman), James T. Shotwell of the United States, Cosme de la Torriente of Cuba, Alfonso Reyes of Mexico, Francisco Walker Linares of Chile, Julian Nogueira of Uruguay and Victor Lascano of Argentina. Also attending the meeting will be Herminio Rodriguez of Cuba (secretary), and four technical experts: Malcolm Davis of the United States, Antonio Castro Leal of Mexico, Mariano Brull of Cuba and Jacques Maritain of France.

During a recent visit to the Pan American Union Dr. Baralt expressed his assurance that the Center of Intellectual Cooperation would be one of the organizations to carry on the work for better understanding among peoples.

Shirley Poerstel To be Wed Today

Miss Shirley Poerstel, daughter of Mrs. Maxwell Poerstal and the late Maxwell Poerstal of Mount Vernon, Va., and Bethesda, Md., will be married today to Lieut James Franklin Prewett, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Prewett of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss June Wilson Hull will attend the bride as maid of honor and Midshipman Richard H. Poerstel, brother of the bride, will be best man. The ceremony will take place at the Walter Reed Chapel Annex in Forest Glen, Md.

After a brief honeymoon, the couple will make their home at Camp McCain, Miss.

Brazilian Diplomat Going Home

Saying farewells has been an unpleasant task for Hugo Gouthier, Second Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy, and pretty Mme. Gouthier, who are leaving today for Miami to take a plane for home.

It has been more than four years since this attractive couple arrived in Washington and friendships made here over the years have been tried and true. Senhor Gouthier is going back to Rio de Janeiro for a post with the Foreign Embassy.

A true cosmopolite, Hugo Gouthier has served in various diplomatic capacities in almost every country in the world, yet the United States is tops on his list. It is here, he feels, that people really know how to live, and during his short span of life in Washington, he has come to admire and love the "Americanos."

Mme. Gouthier, a real beauty, is as lovely to look at as she is nice to know, and she shares her husband's opinion on everything American. An accomplished linguist, she speaks French, Italian, English, Spanish and Portuguese with equal facility. She fairly floats when she dances and is a dream to watch when she tangoes. Something of a student, Mme. Gouthier has also been interested in archeology, American history and literature, and a spare moment will always find her with a book.

Miss Jane Howard Is Fiancee of Lieut. Anderson

Lieut. F. Carrol Howard, USNR, and Mrs. Howard of University Park, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jane Carter, to Lieut. Harry W. Anderson, U. S. Army Air Corps. Lieutenant Anderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Anderson of this city.

Miss Howard is a graduate of the University of Maryland, where she was president of her sorority, Alpha Omicron Pi, and also president of the Pan Hellenic Council. Lieutenant Anderson, also a graduate of the University of Maryland and a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, recently received his wings as a pilot from the Pampa Army Air Field at Pampa, Tex., and is now stationed at Fort Worth.

Wedding plans have not as yet been completed.

Fall Schedule Set For AWVS Classes

Mrs. Daniel C. Long, head of the American Women's Volunteer Service Training Schools, has recently announced the fall schedule for training classes, which are rapidly growing in scope.

On Friday, September 3, an indoctrination course, lasting 1 hour, will be given at 10:30 in the morning. Classes in advanced first aid will begin on September 8 and each Monday, Wednesday and Friday thereafter until the required 12 hours is finished. Classes begin at 10 on those mornings and last for 2 hours. Standard first aid classes will begin that same day and will be held at the same time until the required 22 hours is completed. A 6-hour course in fingerprinting will begin on September 14 and will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1 o'clock until 3. Other indoctrination courses will open on Friday, September 17 and October 1 at 10:30. On October 4, another standard first aid class will begin with the same meeting days and hours as the earlier class, and a six-hour course in D. C. map reading will begin that same day, to meet from 1 o'clock to 3 in the afternoon on Monday, days and Fridays.

Other classes to begin in October are air raid precaution which will open a 14-hour session on Tuesdays and Thursdays, classes to be held from 1 until 3; home repairs, to begin October 4, a 10-hour class to be held from 10 to 12 on Mondays and Wednesdays; basic photography, to begin on October 11 for 20 hours, classes on Mondays and Thursdays from 10 to 12. Another indoctrination course will be held on Friday, October 15. A 20-hour motor mechanics class will begin on October 18—to be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Mrs. Long has recently been appointed to the training staff of the Office of Civilian Defense. This office recently awarded her a red, white and blue campaign ribbon for her 4000 hours spent in volunteer work.

Club for British Forces Opened on Columbia Road

Officially opening the British Empire Forces Club at 1773 Columbia Road last evening was A. B. Grant of New York, vice president of the British War Relief Society of the United States. Other guests for the affair, which was a small party for the servicemen of the British forces and friends of British war relief, were Sir Ronald Campbell, Minister of the British Embassy, and Thomas P. Morgan, jr., of Washington, chairman of British war relief.

The lounge, opened for noncommissioned officers and enlisted personnel in the British Empire forces is equipped with ping-pong tables, card tables, dart boards, reading nooks, and piano. Pictures were given the club by the National Geographic Society. A garden at the back of the lounge is another feature of the recreation facilities.

On Saturday and Sunday evening, the men may bring guests to the club, including young women from the territorial services.

The club is sponsored by the national British war relief organization but plans were carried out by the local shop committee. A joint planning group from the local chapter and from the British armed forces included Mrs. James E. Schwab, Mrs. George Wyphe, G. A. R. Mergard, Roy E. Lowe, squadron leader E. E. Smith, RCAF, Pay Lieut. L. B. Charles, RN, Flight Lieut. H. G. Baker, RAF, Lieut. Col. W. W. Manton, British army.

Two Washington Girls Become Brides Of Servicemen in Recent Ceremonies

Two Washington girls became brides of servicemen this past week.

On Tuesday afternoon, Miss Audrey Elizabeth Vogelsang was married to Tom Smith Vaughn, USAAF. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bennett Vogelsang and Mr. Vaughn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lester Vaughn.

Their wedding took place in the Church of the Nativity at 7:3, with the Rev. A. R. Norris officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of blush pink satin with a very long train, with which she wore a finger-tip veil of illusion held in place by orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book with a white orchid, from which hung bouvardia tied with streamers of white satin.

Mrs. Kathleen Mahoney was the matron of honor, wearing blue, and Miss Janice Housley, attired in dobonnet, was the maid of honor. They carried Talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Roberta MacMorris, attired in rust, and Miss Marcella Snow, dressed in green. They carried pink roses. Their gowns were fitted velvet bodices with full taffeta skirts and all the attendants wore flowers in their hair to match their bouquets.

The bridegroom had J. D. Day, cousin of the bride, as his best man, and the ushers were R. Farron, George Butler, USCG, and Edward Fuegle, USN.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride.

Scull-Masi

The wedding of Miss Miriam Margaretta Masi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Masi of Arlington, Va., and Lieut. Lewis Reed Scull, son of Mrs. Lewis B. Scull of Washington and Atlantic City, took place in St. Alban's Chapel, Washington, on Saturday, August 14.

The bride wore a floor-length dress of white lace and net and tiara set with seed pearls, holding a finger-tip veil, and carried a white orchid surrounded by white gladioli. She was given in marriage by her father. Her maid of honor and only attendant was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Jane Masi, who wore a dusty pink gown, fashioned the same as the bride's, a large picture hat of pink net and carried deep red roses.

The bridegroom, who recently obtained his commission at Camp Davis, N. C., had as his best man Corp. Henry D. McKee. The ushers were John P. Carr, Ralph Bogle, and Joseph F. Masi.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Masi.

Ceremony Takes Place in All Saints Church At Chevy Chase Circle; Reception Follows

Wearing a rare old gown of cream pina cloth embroidered in butterfly design, Miss Louisa Catherine Adams Clement, daughter of Mrs. Donald Cameron Bingham of Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Clarence Erskine Clement, was married last evening at 6:30 o'clock to Lieut. Comdr. Harry Hull, USN, son of Mrs. Charles Thomas Phillips of Georgia and Washington, and the late Harry Hull. Both the bride and bridegroom are members of prominent Washington families. The ceremony was in the All Saints Church at Chevy Chase Circle, with the Rev. Dr. Charles Lowry officiating.

Given in marriage by her stepfather, Capt. Donald Cameron Bingham, USN, retired, the bride was a lovely picture in the heirloom gown fashioned with short sleeves and long train with full-length veil and face veil of tulle, held in place with a juliet cap fashioned of lace, tulle and orange blossoms. She carried a prayerbook covered with butterfly orchids, which was carried by her maternal grandmother in her wedding.

Miss Sarah Bond Welch, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Welch of Annapolis, Md., was maid of honor and the only bridal attendant. She wore a gown of robin's egg blue tulle and matching hat. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses.

Navy Men Are Ushers

Lieut. Comdr. John Thomas Blackburn, USN, was best man. Lieut. William Blum, USNR; Maj. John Wesley Brabner-Smith, USA; Robert S. Welch, jr., of Annapolis, Md.; Lieut. Ferdinand P. Schoettle, USNR; Lieut. Comdr. Robert L. Evans, USN; Arnold Augur Willcox and Lieut. Comdr. Richard Byrd, USN, were ushers. A reception at the Chevy Chase Club followed the ceremony. Assisting at the affair were Miss Mary Louise Adams Clement of Edge Hill, Warrenton, Va., and Mrs. Francis Cogswell, aunts of the bride.

Out-of-town guests included Miss Clement from Warrenton, Miss Lucy Powell, Cape May, N. J.; Capt. Dwight Dickinson, Medical Corps, USN, and Mrs. Dickinson, of Baltimore, and Dr. and Mrs. Robert S. Welch of Annapolis.

Mrs. Bingham, mother of the bride, wore a gown of gray and red crepe flower print. Her hat was of gray straw and her corsage was of gardenias.

The bride, a popular member of the younger set here, was graduated from Holton Arms with high honors in 1939 and received her A. B. degree cum laude from Bryn Mawr last June. In 1940, the year of her debut, she presented a check covering the amount of a gala ball, which her aunt was to give her, to the late Lord Lothian, then British Ambassador, to be used for British relief. Sponsored by the French Alliance, the French Ambassador presented her with a prize a few years ago for her prowess in his language. Last summer she was an exchange student at the University of Havana, Cuba, where she studied Spanish and took various courses in Latin-American music and dancing.

Have Left For West Coast

Lieut. Comdr. Hull attended Friends School here during his boyhood and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1932. He has just returned from active duty in the South Pacific, where he commanded a submarine.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Hull left following the ceremony for the West Coast. En route they will stop at Yellowstone Park. After a few weeks he will return to active duty.

On Northern Trip

Mrs. Thomas Dowling and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Shreve Dowling, are spending a week in New York and will visit in Paterson, N. J., and Philadelphia before returning to Chevy Chase.

Peru Fliers To Be Guests At Reception

Lots of gold braid will be in evidence in the East Room of the Mayflower this afternoon when United States officers and a group of Latin-American service men turn out to meet ten Peruvian aviation officers who have recently graduated from the Navy's air training course at Corpus Christi, Tex.

The Air Attache of the Peruvian Embassy, Col. Armando Revoredo, and Senora de Revoredo, will be hosts at the "after six" party this afternoon. The ten flyers are in the second class of Peruvians to graduate from the school. A third class is there now.

Some time ago our Navy Department extended an invitation to the Latin-American countries to send a group of their men here for air training. The countries have responded with a will and now a number of Latin-American cadets report to Texas for flight training.

Before returning to their countries the graduates are taken on a tour of the United States, through various munitions and aircraft factories, and usually manage a several days visit in the Capital.

At the fete this afternoon Latin-American diplomats will be in the gathering as well as a group of guests from the State Department.

Betsy Ann Myrick Completes Plans For Wedding

Details have been completed for the wedding on August 28 of Miss Betsy Ann Myrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Fullilove Myrick of Silver Spring, Md., to Lieut. William Johnson Nichols, jr., USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Nichols of College Park, Md.

The ceremony will take place at 8 p. m. at historic Grace Episcopal Church in Woodside, Md., with the Rev. Walter Gale, rector, officiating. Immediately following the ceremony a reception for close friends and relatives will be held at the Myrick home on Woodside Parkway.

Miss Myrick has chosen her sister, Miss Virginia Kate Myrick, for maid of honor and Miss Betty Berner, of Washington, will be bridesmaid. Alfred Norton will serve as best man and those selected for ushers are Hal C. Farrell and William Kingery of Washington.

Since Lieutenant Nichols is stationed at Quantico, Va., Miss Myrick plans to keep her residence with her parents and join her husband for weekends. She is employed in the War Department. Both are graduates of the University of Maryland.

Think, Shop, Cook New, And Blue and Red Points Will Prove a Blessing

Cooking isolationism is as out of date as the political kind. Anything goes now that will make up an appealing, nutritious meal. Rationing was a bit difficult at first, but now we have it working about as good as a new top spins.

Point-rationing pulled the ace right out of the pack in cookery adventure. Women who couldn't tell kidney from kale, or tripe from trout, can now tell them apart and cook them up in commendable fashion.

Our cookery vocabulary, too, underwent a change. Extenders! Drippings! Stretchers! Whipping agents! These are the terms that have virtually turned our cooking inside out. And the inner lining is just as good as the outside, too.

The use of red points to obtain the meat supply has meant learning many new cuts of meat. And these unfamiliar cuts have produced some grand dishes, too. Blue points have set us to figuring what's best bought fresh. It is to be hoped that these good things which have emerged from rationing will become so firmly entrenched in our food habits that cooks will carry on with them long after the war has ended.

Out of Rut

American cookery has come out of a rut as a result of the war. We think new, shop new, and cook new. We have learned that a lamb stew full of vitamin foods such as carrots, cabbage, potatoes, onions and any other vegetable available, or to one's taste, can be equally as delicious as a prime cut of beef. We have learned that a little of this combined with a bit of another food gives us a dish that's worth writing about.

In this hot summer time we have been able to use versatile cold cuts in many different ways. The summer is not over; so try some of these suggestions for using the cold cuts which are all meat, no bone, no waste.

Bologna, a low-priced sausage with 100 per cent meat content, predominantly beef, requires 6 points per pound. There are usually about 16 slices of this mildly seasoned meat to a pound. This is a meat that can be served hot or cold. If you would like to use it cold, serve it with a fruit-filled cantaloupe, or a corn pudding or a bounteous vegetable salad. You can round out the meal with enriched bread, a rather filling dessert, and suit the beverage to the day's temperature.

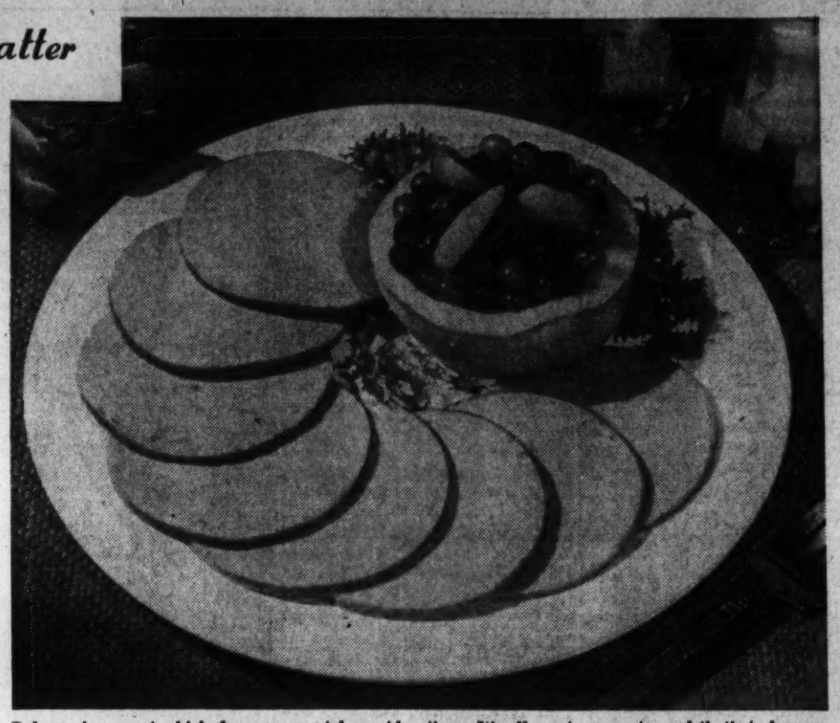
Bologna slices can also be fried, made into bologna cups and filled with hot potato salad. This will make a very tempting platter. Here are the directions:

BOLOGNA CUPS WITH POTATO SALAD

Place 8 thin slices of bologna (about ½ pound) in a frying pan and heat gradually until the edges curl up to a form a perfect cup. Fill with hot potato salad.

HOT POTATO SALAD

Cook potatoes in boiling salted water to make 4 cupfuls. Cut potatoes in cubes. Add to the potato cubes ½ cup chopped onion, ½ cup chopped green pepper. Over these vegetables pour a dressing made by combining 1-3 cup vinegar, 1 beaten egg, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar and ¼ cup bacon drippings. Fill bologna cups and serve hot.



Bologna is a meat which deserves special consideration. It's all meat, no waste, and that's to be considered in these days of point-buying. Serve it cold, arranged on a platter with a fruit-filled melon. Pare rind from and iced cantalope and hollow out the inside enough to hold washed and chilled blackberries, grapes, sliced peaches and any other fruits desired

Hot Spiced Tongue is also a meat dish that is packed with plenty of goodness. Tongue is among the variety of meats which do not require so many points. Serve it with Peasant Potatoes and any other foods you think will round out the meal. Here's my suggestion for rounding out the menu:

Dinner Menu

Hot Spiced Tongue
Peasant Potatoes Carrots
Sliced Cucumbers and Onions
Enriched Bread Butter
Chilled Cantaloupe Balls
Beverage

The recipes for making the Spiced Tongue and Peasant Potatoes follow:

SPICED TONGUE

Buy 1 medium-size beef tongue. Scrape, cut away excess tissue. Place in kettle and add hot water to cover. Add 1 tablespoon salt. Cook slowly about 3 hours or until tender. Cool and skin tongue. Mix together ½ cup vinegar, ½ cup sirup, ½ cup raisins and ¼ teaspoon each of allspice, cinnamon and cloves. Place the tongue in a roasting pan, pour on the sauce and let simmer on top of stove for about 45 minutes, basting frequently and turning at 15-minute intervals.

PEASANT POTATOES

Wash, peel and cube 7 medium-size potatoes. Fry in ⅛ cup of fat or drippings until brown—about 15 minutes—stirring frequently. Saute 3 tablespoons chopped onion and 3 tablespoons chopped parsley in ⅛ cup fat until onion and parsley are limp but not brown. Blend in 2 tablespoons flour and ¾ teaspoon salt. Add 1½ cups milk gradually, stirring constantly until thickened. Add to potatoes and cook about 5 minutes. Serves six.

Pancakes may seem to some appropriate for only breakfast. But make apple pancakes, serve with thick sausage cakes, a tossed green salad and dessert and you will have a meal that will satisfy the hungry breadwinners when they return home at night. Here is the way to make the Apple Pancakes:

APPLE PANCAKES

Add 2 cups milk, 1 beaten egg and 2 tablespoons melted shortening to 2 cups pancake flour. Beat until smooth. Fold in 4 apples, pared and cut into small pieces. Grease griddle lightly. Pour batter onto hot griddle, using ¼ cupful for each pancake. Bake each side until golden brown, about 3 minutes for each cake. Put small pat of butter on each pancake, sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar mixture, made by combining 2 tablespoons cinnamon with ½ cup sugar.

Carrots have been among the dependable vegetables, both in cost and availability. New interest will be shown in this vegetable if you make them into timbales according to the following recipe:

CARROT TIMBALES

Cook 2 cups sliced carrots in 1 tablespoon butter or margarine for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Add boiling water or stock to cover. Cook until soft. Drain and force through puree strainer. Add 1 egg, plus 1 egg-white, slightly beaten, and season with salt and pepper to taste. Garnish small, buttered molds with 1 hard-cooked egg, cut in fancy shapes. Fill 2-3 full of carrot mixture, set in pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake 30 to 45 minutes in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Serves six.

Heartening Supper

Beef short ribs and old-fashioned baked beans are a heartening supper. Cook the beans according to your favorite recipe then place in an open pan and top with the shortribs which have been braising at the same time. Let the two mix flavors for a half-hour or so. Need we say that brown bread and a crisp apple or cabbage salad completes the meal?

Plan Short-Cuts And Save Kitchen Time

Time-saving recipes and short cuts are necessary for the cook these days when there is so much to be accomplished. Besides, the kind of temperatures we are experiencing in Washington this summer makes one want to do everything in the easiest ways. Here are summer short cuts:

Keep a package of ready-mix biscuit mix on hand. Just add milk, shape into biscuits and bake.

Keep a sirup solution in your refrigerator for sweetening beverages—easy on sugar ration.

Boil together 2 cups of water and 2 cups of sugar for 5 minutes. Store in fruit jar or milk bottle.) Use as needed.

Save all fruit juices and sirups—use as a dessert sauce or in drinks.

Use gelatin generously in molded desserts and salads—a quick way to use leftovers.

Have a jar of French dressing on hand for a quick toss-up garden salad.

Cooked dressing or a jar of mayonnaise at hand will make other salads easy.

Eggs may be hard-cooked and left in the shell in your refrigerator until needed. Good in sauce as a garnish, creamed, in potato salad, sliced or green salads, for quick, healthful sandwiches and in many other ways.

Spare That Smudge For Better Results

The wartime scarcity of steel wool and other metal scouring materials may be a blessing in disguise to the thrifty housewife, say home economists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. As far as pots and pans are concerned, less scouring can mean a saving of heat and metal to say nothing of time and elbow grease. Shining pots and pans look nice but actually are less efficient cooking utensils than those that are dull and tarnished on the outside or dark on the bottom. A dull surface absorbs radiant heat while a bright surface reflects it.

So frying pans and kettles are most economical of heat from the top of the stove if they are dark on the bottom, and baking pans make better use of oven heat if the entire outside surface is dull. Baking tests show, for example, that cookies baked on new shining tin need an oven 25 degrees hotter than those baked on old dark tins. Tins should never be polished because the thin layer of tin on the outside soon rubs off leaving the steel underneath exposed to rust.

Spaghetti Supper

Idea for that spaghetti supper party you're having: Take an unsliced loaf of bread, cut down the center lengthwise but don't cut clear through to the bottom crust. Slash down crosswise five or six times, spread with melted butter or margarine in which a clove of garlic has been floating, then pop into the hot oven for 15 or 20 minutes. It's hot, it's crusty and as you break off hunks there's the whiff of garlic so in keeping with a meat-ball-and-spaghetti supper.

Meat Alternate

If you are looking for a new meat alternate try this: Mix together equal parts of mashed, cooked lima beans and chopped salted peanuts. Season lightly with salt, and a goodly amount of minced onions and celery. Shape into cakes or croquettes, roll in flour and cook in deep or shallow hot fat. Serve plain or with savory sauce.

When You Waste Food, You Sabotage the War Effort

It has been estimated that 15 per cent of our foods are thrown out—wasted in our kitchens. Check the following questions. Your answers should be "yes," otherwise start today to prevent waste in your kitchen.

Do you cook meats at low or moderate temperatures to prevent shrinkage and to prevent burning the fat?

Do you strain, save, and use the fat?

Do you sell the excess fats for munitions?

Do you save fruit juices and syrups from the canned fruits and use them in sauces, fruit drinks, desserts, etc.?

Do you use excess vegetable juices—the "pot likker" in soups and sauces?

Do you combine leftover vegetables and meats into new dishes—stews, salads, scalloped dishes, pies, etc.

Do you buy in quantities best suited to your needs?

Do you store fresh vegetables properly to keep them crisp, fresh and nutritious?

Do you use leftover toast, the "heel" and the crust of bread for bread crumbs?

Are you careful to pare vegetables and fruits to prevent waste?

Do you see that no milk or cream goes to waste?

Do you keep your garbage pail from being a saboteur?

Armour Ideas Make the Most of Meat

Quick, Individual Barbecued Meat Loaves

Cut your baking time in half tonight by making individual barbecued loaves instead of one big meat loaf! It takes only 1½ pounds of ground beef to make 8 of them . . . and everyone gets the cherished crust! Beef chuck is a good juicy cut to use for meat loaves—and you can count on good flavor and high food value if you get Armour's. For the Armour brand is an unfailing sign of choice quality in beef.

Mix ½ cup fine dry bread crumbs with ½ cup Armour's Evaporated Milk and season with 2 tsps. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper. To this add 1½ lbs. ground Armour's branded beef chuck, ½ lb. ground lean pork, 2 tbsps. chopped onion and blend well. Shape into 8 individual meat loaves and place in a shallow pan. Use half of these per portion for 4 loaves.

Over them pour barbecue sauce you make this way: Heat together ½ cup catsup, ½ cup vinegar, 1 tbsp. Worcestershire Sauce, 1 tsp. chili powder and 2 tbsps. chopped onion. Bake 45 min. at 350° F., basting once or twice.

'Heaven Can Wait,' Palace, A Superlative Feature

By Marjorie Kelly

When Henry Van Cleve presented himself at the reception room of Hell, Satan asked him to name some specific crimes he'd committed by way of establishing his fitness for admission. "Crimes?" said Henry. "To tell you the truth, I can't think of any. But I can safely say that my whole life has been one continous misdemeanor."

That's the introduction to the story of "Heaven Can Wait," which opened yesterday morning at Loew's Palace. In the palatial underworld office, big enough to be Billy Rose's, Satan, played by Laird Cregar (who else would be so logical for the role?) listens to Henry Van Cleve's story of a long and wayward life. The best way to tell his story, Henry says, is to begin with the first woman in his life, and he starts out with his mother. The second was his grandmother, who squabbled with his mother over his infant attentions. "What do you think of that?" Henry wants to know. "My diapers needed changing and already women were fighting over me."

That was the start. The next was the girl who lived around the corner and at the age of six was already adept at the art of coaxing a boy's treasure from him—so much so that it took two beautiful beetles neatly encased in cardboard boxes to get her permission to walk with her to the corner. And after that there was the mademoiselle who taught him French and much else, including a proverb to the effect that "a kiss is like candy, which you eat for its beautiful taste, and that is sufficient reason for eating candy."

But chiefly it is of Henry's love for his wife, which deepens through the 25 years of their marriage from a romantic, poetic but still spoiled-little-boy attachment to the maure, almost grateful devotion of a man who has spent many happy years with a woman who continues to be altogether charming in his eyes.

This is more than Henry Van Cleve's story, however. It is the story of a family, told through the adventures of one member in such a way that the lives of his grandfather and his son merge with his and turn out to be the same story really—the story of a man who lives a good life, pleasant if occasionally renegade, who never does anything very bad because why should he? Life has treated him well, he is secure, he has all the possessions he could want; he likes music and he has it; he likes pretty girls and he can afford them; and whatever he wishes to do for the people he likes, he can afford that, too.

It is a story told with humor and understanding, with many little sidelights on human nature conveyed in the Lubitch manner, which is irresistible because it assumes intelligence in the observer and is content to make an observation without beating it into the ground.

Don Ameche gives what looked to me like the best performance of his career as the principal Van Cleve. He grows old convincingly and gracefully, a feat which involves a little more than cornstarch in the hair and deepening of the lines around the eyes, many other performances I have in mind notwithstanding. Gene Tierney is lovely in Technicolor. The strange vivid blue of her eyes, particularly, is something that shouldn't be wasted on uncolored film. She plays Henry Van Cleve's wife at three ages, 20, 30 and 45, approximately, and establishes herself as an actress of considerable versatility by the ease with which she makes the transitions.

Charles Coburn, whom we will probably see from now on in as many pictures as the producers can manage to squeeze him into, plays the eldest of the Van Cleves, and is even funnier than he was in "The More the Merrier." Allyn Joslyn is well cast as the pedantic, stuffed-shirt cousin. There are a number of nicely-done bit parts by actors of established merit, including Eugene Pallette, Marjorie Main, Spring Byington, and Signe Haaso, and there is ap attractive moppet named Mino Pipitone, jr., who appears briefly as Henry Van Cleve's son at an early age.

A Casanova's Downfall

HELENE REYNOLDS

In "Heaven Can Wait" at the Palace, Henry Van Cleve (Don Ameche) meets his match in this chorus girl from the Ziegfeld line. Hearing that his son has become entangled with the lady, Henry goes to her with the idea of wooing her away from his son. It doesn't work. His technique is dated.

'Saludos Amigos' and 'Next of Kin' Open at RKO-Keith's

By Angele de T. Gingras

RKO-Keith's has a double-decker this week. First is 'Saludos Amigos" ("Hello Friends" to you!" Walt Disney's gay technicolor featurette of South America. The second is the grim British film, "Next of Kin."

Donald Duck, all cartooned-up as a tourist from the States, begins his South American travels to the tune of ancient Inca music. The cartoon setting is Lake Titicaca in Peru.

From there Donald proceeds to see the Inca country aorund. He meets a snooty llama who makes everybody feel like nothing at all and a smarty-pants papoose riding in his mama's mantilla, who springs a flash light bulb on Donald before the North American Duck can adjust his Kodak. Then to the music of the "Llama Serenade" an Inca folk tune, he and the snooty llama get tangled with a jittery swinging bridge. Finally Donald finds himself on a street watching people who walk with the wind and against the wind.

Next Disney gives us the cartoon tale of the little-boy Mail Plane, Pedro. Pedro is busy studying Airflow in school when Father gets a cold in his cylinder head and Mother gets low oil pressure. Pedro is obliged to fly the mail from Argentina to Chile. He puts his muffler under his metal chin and, to the music of a Chilean folk dance, the Cueca, goes out over the storm ridden heights of Mount Aconcagua.

Then back in Argentina the North American Disney dog, Goofy, with a swish of a cartoon pen, has become El Gaucho Goofy, Down in Rio Disney dips his pen in a Samba rhythm and in flaming color pots and produces Joe Carioca, the talkative Brazilian Sambabird with a boogie-woogie jitter in his tail feathers. He takes a fancy to Donald Duck and the two go to a cafe in Rio where they drink Brazilian firewater which does things for Donald's throat and emotions.

The cartoon is full of Latin laughter and color. However, we felt some of the charm of the film was lost when the shots of the Disney artists working were intruded on these cartoon characters, which belong to the land of imagination.

The second feature, "Next of Kin," is the grim English screen story of soldiers talking out of turn and thereby warning the enemy of troop movements.

An enemy town is taken and the airdromes and docks bombed by the English but the casualties are high. The bodies of Englishmen hurtle across the screen-sky and fall dead on the bomb-scorched grass because somebody couldn't "keep it under his hat." The last voice in the film says, "And the Next of Kin will be notified." This is a powerful picture and should button up the lips of every American who has any scrap of war information.

HEDDA HOPPER

Crowded Hollywood

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 19.—Now that Betty Hutton is home, the studio is buying more stories for her. The latest one is by Dwight Mitchell Wiley, called "The Griswood Story." It's about a teacher and his wife who were married the day after they'd met in the last World War and keep talking about it until their daughter becomes frantic, leaves home, goes out and meets a soldier and marries him the day after she meets him. Sounds monotonous, but it's funny. . . . Miliza Korjus, whom we called "gorgeous" in "The Great Waltz," is leaving Mexico to do a concert tour in this country, under the guidance of Charlie Wagner. . . . I never did believe Errol Flynn had married Nora Eddington. Remember last time Doris Duke Cromwell visited on this coast and Errol paid her marked attention? We all thought then she would be the next bride. I still think so. She's in Reno, getting freed. . . . Half the girls who went to hear Sinatra in the Hollywood bowl took their radios along, and while the orchestra was getting on with its classical program, they were listening to their hero over the air waves. Ninety per cent of the mob were girls under 16.

BETTY HUTTON

Housing

The housing shortage has caused a funny situation. Linda Darnell and Pev Marley bought a big place on the Palisades, but can't get furniture. Betty Grable and Harry James bought the David Rose house, then found they couldn't get possession of it. They have lots of furniture, so they're moving their stuff into Linda Darnell's place, and the four will share the same domicile. Gosh! There's enough stars in the household to do a picture on their own, what with Linda, Betty Grable, Harry James and Camera Man Pev Marley . . . Richard Jaeckel, taken from a mail clerk's job at 20th-Century for an acting job in "Guadalcanal Diary," doesn't want to be an actor. Says he, "I'm going to be a Scout counselor.' He's 17. As soon as he's old enough, he'll join the Army . . . Danny Kaye, the marvelous entertainer, goes into the Army when he finishes "Up in Arms."

Joan Sulks

Arturo De Cordova, that Latin lover, must be mighty good. Joan Fontaine's been out of cast of "Frenchman's Creek" for three whole days—sulking, they say. Understand Eddie Small is going ahead with his plans for life of Valentino, which Doris Anderson is writing, hoping against hope for Arturo . . . Akim Tamiroff, whose next will be "A Medal for Benny," turned down another swell part to do a camp tour for the soldiers.

LEONARD LYONS

Follies of Producers

(Leonard Lyons is on vacation. His guest columnist today is Dick Maney, Broadway press agent.)

The next time you see a man batting his temple with the heel of his palm don't think he's trying to get water out of his ears. It may well be that he is a theatrical producer practicing self-assault in penance for a folly of his own coinage. For the conduct of the Broadway impresario either when trapped in adversity or drunk with triumph has long baffled students of the abnormal. A box-office sag, a sour review in the Times, mutiny among the bassoons, a tantrum by his star, a Hollywood coup—any of these may lead him into caprices that defy Freud. Here, then, are specimens of occupational madness.

RAYMOND MASSEY

Back in 1931 Norman-Bel Geddes thought that the parishioners would be better for an inspection of "Hamlet." With Raymond Massey as the melancholic he set up his revival at the Broadhurst. That the solemnity of the evening might not be shattered by the noisy intrusion of late comers Geddes engaged detectives to toss out the tardy with implicit instructions that there were to be no exceptions to his ukase. And who were the first two ejectees? Mrs. Joshua Cosden, Bel Geddes' backer in the enterprise, and the dramatic critic of an evening paper.

A Baltimore critic had hailed "Arsenic and Old Lace" as "the funniest murder play ever written." The auspices were extravagant and Producers Lindsay and Crouse were jubilant. The play opened in New York on Friday night, January 10, 1941, and the critical praise in next morning's newspapers was so inflammatory that thousands funneled down on the Fulton box-office pleading for pews. They were doomed to disappointment. Lindsay and Crouse had forgotten to order tickets beyond the first week.

This might be called the frustration of Mrs. Katzenberger. As those who have seen "The Skin of Our Teeth" are aware, Sabina lures Mr. Antrobus into her Atlantic City cabana in the second act for reasons that had best be kept from the children. As Sabina Tallulah Bankhead had complained that the cabana—in the bowels of the orchestra pit—was too cramped, did not permit of ready entrance and exit. Producer Myerberg dissented, rejected Tallulah's proposal that a part of the front row seats be removed to permit a larger arena for her amoral antics.

The stalemate was solved when Miss Bankhead brought her screwdriver to the Plymouth and attacked the offending chairs. Myerberg capitulated and Mrs. Katzenberger was automatically dispossessed.

Jed Harris was scorched with the fierce desire to revive some of Eugene O'Neill's one-act plays. Mr. O'Neill was agreeable and all that was needed to bring the venture to a boil was a few thousand dollars. In this fiscal crisis he addressed Otto Kahn, benefactor of the arts, a gentleman whose purse was always open to those plotting commendable sorties in the theater. In his reply Mr. Kahn expressed his admiration for O'Neill, applauded Harris for his wish to animate the too little seen one-acters, but added that the moment was not ripe for so ambitious an enterprise. He cautioned delay. Mr. Harris' reply was a model of brevity: "I asked you for your money, not your advice."

Raw Materials Enough to Fill U.S. War Needs

Stocks of critical raw materials for Allied war needs were reported adequate yesterday, but lack of labor to help translate them into fighting weapons is now the problem requiring solution.

This was disclosed at a news conference held by William L. Batt, American member of the Combined Raw Materials Board, and Sir Clive Baillieu, British member, who is resigning the post to become deputy president of the Federation of British Industries.

Batt said that such important materials as ingot alumninum and magnesium are no longer causing the concern they did at Pearl Harbor time. These items and many others vitally needed for war production have been made available in satisfactory quantities through intensive efforts by the board.

In pointing out that the job of increasing supply "is completed or in the prooess of completion," Batt stressed that there still are some materials like carbon steel, particularly, which appeared to be plentiful before but now are "a very real supply problem."

Batt expressed the conviction that the work of the joint raw materials board should be forwarded into postwar organization in some form, "at least there should be a fact-finding agency in whatever international body we decide to establish."

Batt reiterated his belief that without a joint international raw-materials board there would be a dangerous postwar scramble for whatever could be grabbed in one way or another.

Sir Clive indicated that the work of the joint board has had and will have immeasurable effect on British-American business cooperation.

Batt said he intends to leave for England with Sir Clive to discuss the changing character of the board's work, now that supply is no longer the major task before the board. He said no successor for Sir Clive has yet been chosen.

The Combined Raw Materials Board was created by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, January 26, 1942, to mobilize the raw materials available to the United States and United Kingdom for the most effective combined use by the United Nations against the enemy.

BARNETT

A resident of Washington since 1915, Mr. Barnett was born in Irvington, Va. He was a member of the Washington Board of Trade, Washington Centennial Lodge 14, and the Angle Club of Master Masons.

Surviving are his wife, Louisa May Barnett; a daughter, Mrs. William A. Benner; three sons, Arnold W., Theodore C., and Lloyd C. Barnett, jr.; a brother, W. Carroll Barnett, all of the District, and a sister, Mrs. J. R. Bobbitt of Richmond, Va.

G. L. Thiebault Rites to Be Held This Morning

Funeral services for Gaspard L. Thiebault, 53, a pressman at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, will be held at 8:30 a. m. today at his home, 3655 Suitland rd. se. Burial at Cedar Hill Cemetery will follow a requiem mass to be celebrated at 9 a. m. at St. Francis Xavier's Church. Mr. Thiebault died Tuesday at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, after a long illness.

Mr. Thiebault was born in Minneapolis, Minn., and lived in Wisconsin before moving to the District in 1935. He was a member of the Holy Name Society of St. Francis Xavier's Church and of the Washington Printing and Pressman's Union No. 1.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Delia Trombley Thiebault; two daughters, Marilyn, of the Marine Corps Women's Reserve, and Joyce Rita, and a son, Lowell, an aviation cadet in the Army Air Forces.

C. A. Kline, Student At Marist, Dies Following Accident

Funeral services for Conroy Albert Kline, 24-year-old Marist Catholic Seminary student who died in a Martinsburg, W. Va., hospital yesterday following a bicycle accident, will be held in Washington as soon as arrangements with members of his family are concluded by the Seminary.

A native of Algiers, La., Mr. Kline was leading a group of cyclists from the Seminary's camp near Harpers Ferry when he was thrown from his bicycle. Despite a head injury, he rode back to camp unassisted but died shortly afterward before an emergency operation could be performed at the hospital.

The funeral rites will be attended by the Seminary students, who will break camp tomorrow instead of on August 31, when they usually disband.

Mrs. Ross' Rites Held In Arlington Cemetery

RIGHT AROUND HOME — By Dudley Fisher

THAT SETTLES IT! YOU'VE GOT TO GET THOSE ARROWS AWAY FROM MYRTLE!
NOW IT'S DADDY'S TURN TO SHOOT!
I'LL SHOOT THESE ARROWS SO FAR SHE NEVER WILL FIND THEM!
SO YOU'RE THE GUY WHO'S BEEN SHOOTING ARROWS AROUND HERE!
I SURRENDER! GET A PENCIL AND PADER AND I'LL SIGN A FULL CONFESSION!
I DON'T WANT ANY CONFESSION! ALL I WANT IS YOUR SPARE TIRE!
PAPA GO PLOP!

JOE PALOOKA — Hell-Cat — By Ham Fisher

JANE ARDEN — Flighty Flora at Bay — By Monte Barrett and Russell Ross

SAY, LISTEN— I'M A BIG SHOT AROUND HERE AND I CAN CAUSE YOU PLENTY OF TROUBLE IF YOU DON'T BEAT IT!
NO USE APPEALING TO HIS HONESTY— I'LL SIGNAL STUN AND WE'LL TRY OUR TRICK!
BUT IT'S MY PURSE!
WHEN BULLY BRACK FOUND THE PURSE INTENDED FOR PAUL ANDREWS, JANE TRIED TO GET IT BACK BUT HE REFUSED TO GIVE IT UP—
AH HAH! I'VE GOT YOU THIS TIME, FLIGHTY FLORA—DON'T MOVE— I'VE GOT YOU COVERED!
GOOD HEAVENS, IT'S NICK, THE DETECTIVE!
HA! SO SHE IS A CROOK!

SUPERMAN — Hear Superman 5:45 P.M. Today—WOL — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

AS SUPERMAN NEARS HIS DESTINATION HE IS SIGHTED BY JAP ZERO PLANES.
IF ANY OF THOSE BULLETS HIT THEIR MARK, IT'LL BE THE END OF THESE MUNITIONS...
DETACHING A FEW OF THE AMMUNITION BOXES, SUPERMAN HURLS THEM WITH GOOD EFFECT....
ZEROS.... STAY AWAY FROM MY DOOR!
BACK AND FORTH BETWEEN AMERICA AND THE SOUTH PACIFIC WHIZZES SUPERMAN, PERFORMING THE GREATEST FEAT OF MASS TRANSPORTATION OF MILITARY EQUIPMENT SINCE THE BEGINNING OF TIME....
THAT'S ALL THERE IS, GENERAL MACARTHUR— TEMPORARILY.
YOU'VE DONE SPLENDIDLY, SUPERMAN— AND WITHOUT A MOMENT TO SPARE. OUR SCOUTS INFORM US THAT A HUGE INVASION FLEET IS FAST APPROACHING.
MAY I GO INTO ACTION WITH OUR MEN, GENERAL?
NO, SUPERMAN. THE UNITED NATIONS DON'T NEED A SUPERMAN NOW. THE IDEALS OF THE AVERAGE FELLOW WILL ENABLE US TO WIN. BUT THANKS FOR BRINGING THE WEAPONS. NOW WE'LL SHOW YOU WHAT WE CAN DO WHEN WE'VE THE TOOLS TO FIGHT WITH!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Lieut. Pat Ryan, Line Officer — By Milton Caniff

LT. TUCKER, THIS GIRL BACK AT THE BASE WAS VERY ATTRACTIVE— AND HER FRIENDS, THE MARINE AND THE SAILOR, WERE VERY FOND OF HER...
REALLY?
ONE DAY, THIS GIRL LOST HER MEMORY— SHE DIDN'T EVEN RECOGNIZE THE SAILOR AND MARINE WHO HAD BEEN HER FRIENDS... IT WAS SAD...
YES-THAT'S UNFORTUNATE... —BUT WHY DO YOU ASK ME ABOUT ALL THIS?
YOU'RE A NURSE— AND MORE IMPORTANT, A WOMAN... DO YOU THINK THAT IF SHE WERE TO RECEIVE A KISS FROM SOMEONE SHE HAD KNOWN, IT WOULD MAKE HER REMEMBER?
YES— THAT MIGHT DO IT...
THAT'S ALL I WANTED TO KNOW...
WHY DON'T I THINK OF THESE THINGS?

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — By Dale Allen

...THAT'S THE STORY, MR. KENT! AFTER SHERRY RETURNED FROM TAKING HER AUNT TO THE CLINIC, SHE HAD THE LETTER TELLING HER THAT SHE, POOR CHILD, HAD ONLY EIGHT WEEKS TO LIVE!
...AND...THE EIGHT WEEKS ARE ALMOST GONE, MRS. WORTH?
SHE TOLD ME, JUST BEFORE SHE LEFT, THAT SHE HAS A FEW DAYS...AT MOST!
POOR KID! THINK OF HER...ALONE... WAITING...WE MUST TRY TO FIND HER!
I WISH WE COULD! THIS SPECIAL DELIVERY CAME FOR HER...JUST A FEW HOURS AGO!
MRS. WORTH...I'M GOING TO OPEN THIS AND READ IT!
Miss Sherry Worth, Daily Matinee Serials, 711 E. 59th St., New York City, N.Y.

MICKEY FINN — On Their Way Again — By Lank Leonard

ONE OF OUR DESTROYERS ALONGSIDE US?
THAT'S RIGHT, MICKEY! WE CONTACTED THEM DURING THE NIGHT! THEY'VE PICKED UP THE CREW OF THE SUPPLY SHIP AND ARE STANDING BY TO TAKE OUR GUESTS ABOARD!
THANKS FOR WHAT YOU DID FOR US, RUDY! THE CAPTAIN IS GOING TO PUT IN A GOOD WORD FOR YOU!
OKAY, KID!
WELL, CAPTAIN— NOW WE CAN PROCEED ON OUR MISSION!
YES! ALL HANDS BELOW!
STAND BY TO DIVE!

MR. AND MRS. — 'T'was But a Dream — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

IT'S FIERCE THE WAY YOU HAVE TO WRESTLE WITH POINTS AND RATION STAMPS EVERY DAY
YOU DON'T KNOW THE HALF OF IT
YOU DESERVE A BREAK! HOW ABOUT FORGETTING IT ALL AND GOING OUT WITH ME FOR A REAL
OH, JOE! SWELL FEED? THAT WOULD BE WONDERFUL!
AND I DON'T MEAN PENNY-PINCHING EITHER. ORDER ALL THE THINGS YOU LIKE AND HANG THE EXPENSE!
DARLING!
WHY DID I HAVE TO WAKE UP? IT WAS SUCH A BEAUTIFUL DREAM!

DIXIE DUGAN — Again! — By J. P. McEvoy and H. J. Striebel

DON WINSLOW OF THE NAVY — G-Man Approves — By Frank Martinek

THAT'S THE SPIRIT!! I KNEW I COULD DEPEND ON YOU! NOW I'LL CALL UP DIRECTOR J. EDGAR HOOVER OF THE F.B.I.
MISTER HOOVER, THIS IS WINSLOW OF O.N.I.... I HAVE AN IMPORTANT, SECRET TASK FOR ZIGGY! I'M SATISFIED HE CAN BE DEPENDED UPON! WILL YOU LOAN HIM TO US? WE'LL BE RESPONSIBLE!!
WINSLOW, MY CONFIDENCE IN YOU IS SUCH THAT ALL I NEED IS YOUR WORD.... IF WE CAN CHANGE A SUBVERTER INTO A PATRIOT IT'S WORTH THE CHANCE!
ZIGGY, YOU'RE NOW WORKING FOR ME! HERE'S YOUR BIG CHANCE TO REDEEM YOURSELF!
THANK GOD FOR THIS OPPORTUNITY! I WILL NOT FAIL YOU!

BIG CHIEF WAHOO — By Saunders and Woggon

OH! IT'S MR. NIKKO FROM THE CURIO SHOP ISN'T IT?
QUITE SO! I BROUGHT THE LAMPSHADE YOU SELECTED! IF YOU INSIST ON MAKING A LAMP OF "THE VASE OF THE FOUR DWARFS" I FELT I SHOULD SEE PERSONALLY THAT THE SHADE FITS PROPERLY!
IT'S TOO BAD YOU MADE THE TRIP THIS HOT DAY! THE VASE IS AT AN ELECTRICAL SHOP BEING WIRED!
INDEED! WHERE IS THIS SHOP? I COULD LEAVE THE SHADE THERE!
I DON'T KNOW THE ADDRESS-- THE BOY WILL RETURN THE VASE WHEN IT'S READY!
I SEE! VERY WELL THEN--!
NITA!--THIS IS NIKKO! LISTEN CAREFULLY! MY POOL AND TRY NOT TO BLUNDER!--CALL THE LEADERS OF THE INNER CIRCLE! TELL THEM TO MEET ME HERE WITHIN AN HOUR-- THERE IS WORK TO DO!
